CROSSING THE BAR

SUNSET and evening star,
And one clear call for me!
And may there be no moaning of the bar
When I put out to sea,

But such a tide as moving seems asleep
Too full for sound and foam
When that which drew from out the boundless deep
Turns again home

Twilight and evening bell
And after that the dark!
And may there be no sadness of farewell,
When I embark;

For tho' from out our bourne of Time and Peace
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my Pilot face to face
When I have crossed the bar.

Thanks to everyone for their cards and notes, prayers and many thoughts of kindness.

Irwin at Win-Some Retreat

The 8th annual women's retreat will be held at the Boyne Mountain Resort on Friday, Nov. 2 and Saturday, Nov. 3. The retreat will provide an opportunity to join with other women for Inspiration, fellowship and encouragement.

Col. James B. Irwin, from Colorado Springs will be the featured speaker. Col. Irwin who was selected by NASA in 1966 to be an astronaut and a crew member for the moon exploration missions of Apollo 10, 12 and 15, will be speaking on the theme of "God's Love" based on the scripture, "For I am persuaded that nothing shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

Following the selection as an astronaut by NASA in 1966, he was a member of the astronaut support crew for Apollo 10 and backup lunar module pilot for Apollo 12. On the Apollo 15 mission, July 26-Aug. 7, 1971, he served as lunar module pilot. This fourth manned lunar landing mission was distinguished by the first utilization of a lunar rover. While Colonel Al Worden orbited the moon in the comnand module, Colonel Irwin and Apollo 15 commander, Colonel Dave Scott, explored Hadley Rille and the Apennine Mountains of the moon, and they collected 180 pounds of lunar surface material, including the Genesis Rock. On the flight of Apollo 15, Colonel Irwin logged 295 hours and 11 minutes in space of which 19 hours and 46 minutes were spent outside the aircraft.

Colonel Irwin was the only man to quote Scripture on the surface of the moon (Psalm 121:1). His desire to share his faith has taken him to college campuses, churches, civic groups, and more than 50 countries, including the USSR. He is the author of "To Rule The Night" which is his autobiography and personal statement of faith. When Colonel Irwin completed his mission with the space program in 1972, he founded "High Fbglit Foundation", an interdenominational Christian organization through which he shares his experiences in the Apollo 15 mission and communicates God's message throughout the world.

The seminar sessions will expand on the retreat's theme by offering practical ideas in dealing with various types of situations that women may encounter.

Jean Bauman, from Elkton, who was chosen during 1976-77 as Michigan;s Mother of the Year, will be sharing on the topic "Widsom for Women in the Home." Don Williamson, from Fort Wayne, will present a seminar on "The Christian Relating" which will provide some insight as to how one can be God's person in this troubled world. Barbara Kehoe, from Indianapolis, who has always fought a weight problem, will be sharing some thoughts on "Victory Over the Flesh". Malettor Cross, of Detroit, and also a Winning Women Retreat speaker will be speaking on "Whose Children Are They Anyway?" Daisy Hepburn from Mt. Herman, Calif., is a creative "idea lady.", She will be sharing her ideas on how to liven up any program, organization or activity with her seminar "Life With Spice". Char Potterbaum of Elkhart, Indiana, who is a well known speaker and author, and will talk on "What Shall We Do With That Clamoring Inner Child"?"

A selection of Christian books, records and tapes will be available in the bookstore. Instrumental and vocal music will be played by Marion C. Newby of London, Ontario, Evelyn Smiley of Northville, and Jeanne Jensen of Charlevoix.

James Irwin

A special Community Christian Banquet will be the highlight of the retreat weekend. Colonel Irwin will be sharing a media presentation of his trip to the moon entitled "An Astronaut's Flight Through Life".

Reservations must be in on or before Tuesday, Oct. 23, to Win-Some Women, Box 503, Petoskey, Michigan 49770. More information and registration forms may be obtained by contacting your local area coordinator, Dorothy Custer, Charlevoix and Betty Walker, East Jordan or they may be picked up at Glen's Market in Charlevoix and East Jordan.

The retreat is sponsored by the Neighborhood Bible Study classes in Petoskey. Women from 10-12 different church denominations make up the study groups. All women are invited to attend.

New speaker for Day of Renewal

St. Mary's Catholic Church (corner of Bridge and Garfield) will host the third Women's Day of Renewal from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 6. While the scheduled speaker Sister Margarita Jimanez had to cancel her plan to be in Michigan due to her mother's critical illness. Father Charles Irish and his wife, Janet, will be here for the day.

Father Irish, a priest and pastor of 13 years has been deeply involved in parish renewal at St. Lukes Episcopal Church in Akron-Bath Ohio for the past 10 years. Beginning with a renewal in his own life and ministry, Father Chuck has seen a small mission church come alive and become a loving, vital force in ministering new life to people from all denominations and locales. For the past two years, Father Irish has served as national coordinator of the Episcopal Charismatic Fellowship sponsoring teaching conferences on personal and parish renewal across the United States and has traveled to England to speak, and to Cyprus where he teaches regularly at a School of Evangelism for the Arab nations. Both he and his wife, who have five children, have spoken to Aglow fellowship groups and women's groups on marriage and family life.

Mrs. Irish will bring a special message for women concerning the Lordship of Jesus Christ in all areas of one's life and of His healing power over poor self-image and depression.

The Day of Renewal is sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Christian Women, an interdenominational group working to bring unity of faith and a common experience of worship to women in all the area churches. There will be music and worship as part of the day. Women attending are asked to bring a brown bag lunch. Beverages provided.

Do you speak Vietnamese or know of someone in the Charlevoix area who does?

If you do, Charles Duerr would like to hear from you. Duerr is chairman of a committee at the First Congregational Church which is proposing to sponsor the resettlement of a Vietnamese family.

In anticipation of the time when such a family might come to Charlevoix, Duerr is trying to line up people who might help interpret and translate.

Duerr said the United Methodist Church has also applied for a Vietnamese family and that there is a likliihood that no one in either family will be able to speak English.

Duerr has located Vietnamese speaking persons in Boyne City, Mancelona and Elk Rapids who have offered to assist, but he is anxious to have others who would be immediately available to both families.

If you can help you are asked to contact Duerr at 547-2603, Rev. Raymond Giffin of the First Congregational Church at 547-9122 ur 547-6098 or the Rev. Austin Regler of the United Methodist Church at 547-2654 or 547-5168.

THIRTY-FIVE anti-nuclear demonstrators turned out at Elzinga Park Sunday afternoon to voice their opposition to continued operation of the Big Rock Point nuclear power plant. Nuclear protesters warm up for Lansing demonstration

By Sara Gay Dammann

Thirty-five demonstrators stood in the cold wind at Elzinga Park, Sunday afternoon, to sing and speak their opposition to Big Rock nuclear power plant and nuclear power in general.

During the peaceful rally, protestors marched carrying signs to the plant entrance, but made no attempt to enter.

An organizer of the demonstration, speaking for Northern Michigan Alternative Development(NOMAD), Ron Beyer, of Traverse City, said the demonstration was: "One, to let Big Rock know we are still here; two, to focus attention on the October 21 anti-nuclear demonstration in Lansing; and to voice our opposition to Traverse City's proposed participation in nuclear power through investment.

The demonstration, which watched by Michigan State Police and Consumer's Powers Burns Security Guards, began at Elzinga Park with the mostly young men and women holding hands, standing in a circle, testifying to their opposition to nuclear power.

Four Charlevoixans, members of the Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix, took part in the rally. The group has successfully petition the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to intervene on the request of Consumer's Power to expand their spent fuel storage capacity at Big Rock.

Christa-Maria, one of the founders of the group, spoke saying in part, "I grew up in Germany and asked people what they did during the war. They said they thought something or somebody would take care of what was happening. I don't want my children and ask me what I did about nuclear power."

Joanne Bier, another Charlevoixan, said, "Each of us is given a time on this earth and with this gift of time comes a sacred responsibility to all the children of tomorrow. We must use this earth with reverence and care that they may live."

Among the demonstrators were eight members of the Big Rock 14, the group so dubbed when 14 demonstrators were arrested December 2, 1978 during another rally.

These 14 had been arrested for trespassing at Big Rock point. They had deliberately crossed security lines, they said, to focus attention on the nuclear power issue. The group plead no contest to the trespassing charge, but sentencing awaits the appeal to the Charlevoix County Circuit Court.

If they win their appeal, a jury trial will be required, during which the defendants will be able to try their case on the argument of "necessity"–that trespassing was justified to warn others of an imminent danger.

Sister Johanna Sizick, a Catholic sister from the Grand Rapids Dominican Sisters, said this demonstration was the first time she had spoken out against nuclear power, "I had no choice, but to join the cars coming up."

The demonstrators, who came from around Northern Michigan, walked from Elzinga Park to Big Rock's driveway, where Burns Security Guards, stood behind a single chain closing the entrance.

The demonstrators did not approach the chain, but formed a circle near the highway, once again singing protest songs and testifying to their reasons for opposing nuclear power.

John O'Neill, another of the Charlevoix Concerned Citizens, quoted a variety of Big Rock critics calling for the plant's closure.

Further down the driveway, State Police and Consumer's Power Company officials stood watching. Steve Irish, a Consumer's Power spokesman, stood near the demonstrators, but their was no communication between demonstrators and any Consumer's Power officials, until the demonstrators turned and walked to the chain to shake with the perplexed security guards.

After briefly commiserating with guards about the cold weather, the group marched back to the park.

Irish said the Company had offered to meet the demonstrators in downtown Charlevoix, but the offer was not accepted.

Irish reported that Big Rock will begin operating, "the end of this month or the beginning of November," not this Monday (October 15) as originally planned.

Big Rock has been closed since spring as a result of a small radioactive leak and potentially dangerous loose diffuser plate–part of the vital cooling system inside the reactor core.

Taxpayers to get break on Grandvue millage

The one-mill tax levy voted by Charlevoix County residents for the years 1977, 1978, and 1979 to build an addition to Grandvue Medical Care Facility will be reduced to .75 of a mill for 1979.

Lee Moerland, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, last week presented a resolution to the commissioners, stating that "after examining a detailed study of designated finances, projected contract costs, and other construction related expenses, we recommend...that the voted millage of one mill... be reduced to .75 of a mill for the fiscal year ending 1979."

"Designated finances" include an increase in county valuation, which would make it possible to raise a given amount of money with a lower mill rate.

Church breakfast set Saturday

$2.9 million school budget approved

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education approved a $2.9 million budget for the 1979-80 school year following a hearing held Monday night.

At the same time, the board gave its approval to a $63,700 budget for the Charlevoix Public Library which is operated by the school and a Title I budget of $77,837.

Revenue from local sources to support the budget will total $2,791,949, all of which will come from taxes except $24,364. State sources will total $152,148, a cut from $167,080 last year. Decreases in transportation, Type A Special Education and Vocational Education Added Costs account for the decreases in this category.

A decrease of revenue of $63,000 in aid from Federal aid cuts this category to $11,779 compared to $65,313 last year. Incoming transfers also accounted for a small loss, $9,187 down from $7,840.

Overall, the budget respects a 7.5 percent increase.

While the increase in revenue totals approximately 10 percent, it will be needed to balance the budget as the result of marked losses from the above sources.

Though the decrease in the enrollment required fewer teachers and the retirement of teachers high on the salary scale resulted in luring new teachers low on the salary scale, the increase in fringe benefits which will now include aides and bus drivers and other personnel and the increases in the overall costs in the operation of the school has made it necessary to increase the budget to its present figure, it was explained.

In discussing the budget, Superintendent Gordon W. VanWieran said the board had defined the budget in great detail but at best it was a guess in the final analysis. "We cannot anticipate all eventualties. We can just hope they don't happen. However, in setting up a budget we have to make some allowances for these. Like everyone, the school is faced with inflation."

For those interested in a copy of the budget, copies are available at the business offices.

Only one person came to the meeting for the budget hearing. The other five were there for other reasons.

The library budget of $63,700 will be supported by the .3 mill voted for this purpose. Included in this figure was $5,283 for necessary repairs.

The Title I program funds come from federal sources and include a carry-over of $12,100 plus 1980 funds totaling $64,737.

Charles Kitely appeared at the meeting to discuss the busing. He felt that the former method of pick-ups should be followed. However, it was explained that the school, faced with inflation, was following state guidelines by asking high school students to walk a mile to the bus pick-ups and the middle school and elementary students one-half mile. He was advised that at the present cost of fuel it costs $1.11 per mile to operate a bus. At the present time, it is costing the district $133 per day to operate its buses.

Vincent Olach said that hy following the guidelines, the school district would save from $10 to $12,000 annually. He also explained the thinking behind the double runs for high school students and a second for the younger students. He added that it was cheaper to do this than to purchase another four buses which would be necessary to send all buses out at one time. By utilizing drivers on both runs, funds are also saved on fringe benefits, it was explained. Although it will receive approximately $78,000 for transportation a school district must absorb the remainder of the estimated $218,000 it will cost to operate the buses.

City may get a new water tower

The city council Monday night agreed to investigate the cost of erecting a new water tower in the Norman Ance Industrial Park to replace the present structure on Park Avenue which is believed to have been built before the turn of the century.

City Manager James Brinker told the council that Granger Engineering of Gaylord examined the tower and said it would cost more to put it in shape than build a new one.

"It's still sound," Brinker said, "but it's falling apart."

Brinker will report back to the council as soon as he gets some cost estimates on a new structure. He said the new tank probably will have double the capacity of the present tank — or about 300,000 gallons.

Three building projects also came up for discussion at the meeting. Douglas Bathey's condominium project and the Belvedere Residences, both on Round Lake, and the proposed senior citizens housing project south of Garfield and west of State Street.

William R. McTaggart of Boyne City, representing Bathey, said he would like to add three additional units where the lower level boat slips had been planned because of safety and insurance problems. He said he didn't think he should have to go through the Planning Commission but the council disagreed.

After turning down a motion to limit the development to 13 units, the council agreed to send the 16-unit proposal to the planners.

If the project is approved, the new condominium development will have eight units on shore, five on the upper story of the former Round Lake boathouse and three in the boat well area. McTaggart said by using the boat wells, the 16 units will take up no more space than 13 units.

Architect Charles Johnson explained how the units will be placed to actually improve the view of Round Lake from Hurlbut Street.

Architect Jack Begrow appeared on behalf of the Belvedere Residences, adjacent to the Wharf condominium. The project has come under criticism because the developer has added a solar collector over the pool area, instead of the skylight which was included in the original site plan.

Councilwoman Shirley Roloff complained that the solar collector blocks the view of Round Lake from Hurlbut Street.

Begrow said the collector is so low that passersby won't be able to see it when cars are in the parking area.

Other residents have complained that air conditioning units on the roof are in violation of the 35-foot height restriction in the city's zoning ordinance.

Councilman Robert Timms noted that the city's building inspector has not received a copy of the change-order to include the solar collector, which Begrow defended as a step toward energy conservation.

After a lengthy discussion, the council asked Begrow to either remove or lower the solar collector to the satisfaction of the council and to either remove or lower the air conditioners, if they are in violation of the city's zoning ordinance.

Ralph McRae, a member of the Housing Commission, asked the council to approve two changes in the preliminary site plan for a proposed 62-unit development for senior citizens near the county jail. One change involves a 10-foot setback variance and the other a reduction in living space from 780 square feet to 650 square feet. Both changes were approved.

In other action the council:

—Agreed to purchase a Canon copier over a period of five years for $140 a month, plus a $75-a-month maintenance charge. Brinker said the new machine will cost the city $35 a month less that the present copier.

—Agreed to buy a Motorola radio for the ambulance for $2,764.50. The radio will use the same frequencies as a base station being installed at Charlevoix Area Hospital. The ambulance radio presently operates on police frequencies which are busy and noisy.

—Agreed to notify the Belvedere Club that the city is not interested in trading a closure of portions of Belvedere and Ferry avenues from June 15 to Sept. 15 for 180 feet of Lake Charlevoix frontage adjacent to Ferry Beach. Petitions asking that the offer be rejected were submitted at the last council meeting.

—Agreed to have an engineering study made on the extension of the May Street Sewer from the junction of May Street and Stover Road 900 feet east along Stover Road. Brinker said the sewer would stretch to the limits of gravity flow and would cost an estimated $24,000, $6,000 of which would be paid by the city and $18,000 by property owners through a special assessment.

—Denied a request by the Health Department that the city clorinate its water.

—Rejected a bid to sell two generators at the city light plant for $3,500.

—Authorized Mayor Sam Supernaw to renew the airport license.

—Reappointed Joe McPhillips as airport manager and Brinker as assistant manager.

—Approved a Consumers Power Co. rate agreement reached by the Michigan Power Ratepayers Association. The settlement provides for a reduction in Consumers' rate increase request before the Public Service Commission from $7,300,000 to $5,900,000.

—Discussed a proposal to acquire the former Erber garage property on Clinton Street from the Beaver Island Boat Co. by exchanging interest-free dock rental and mortgage checks over a period of 25 years. The Erber property carries a pricetag of $95,000. City attorney Frank Hoffman is working out the details.

—Authorized payment of bills and payroll totaling $164,613.57.

SWIMMING IN CHARLEVOIX WATERS is over for the season, but this picture of a diving class, taken in the 1940's, can be a teaser for summers to come. Dawn Hart found this picture post card in the walls of her home on Division Street while remodeling.

In answer to last week's question about the date of the Klooster store in Atwood, Conrad Klooster, Sr. called to say the picture was taken in 1913. His father, Henry Klooster, bought the store in 1905, and it was located where the present Klooster farm machinery store stands today.

Home health care makes sense

Concern about the delivery of health services is especially evident today with the national and local focus on economies. One way to help lower the cost of patient care, while maintaining the highest possible standard of care is a program called home health. District Health Department Number Three is the only certified Home Health Agency in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties.

Through the home health program, many people are finding it possible to remain at home for the entire duration of an illness, or to shorten their hospital stay. Home Health enables a patient to stay in the familiar surroundings of their own home and family.

The patients care is all under the direction of their own physician. When the patients physician certifies that they need skilled nursing care, physical therapy, or speech therapy, they may be placed on the program.

Services that may be provided under home health care could include: Intermittent nursing care, physical therapy, home health aides, medical supplies, speech therapy prosthesis appliances and oxygen.

Public Health nurses can provide part time skilled nursing care. The nurse will report the patient's progress to their physician. This nursing care may include skilled observation and monitoring of blood pressure, dressing changes and wound care, patient education and instruction, giving injections and many more services.

Fees for Home Health Care are based on the actual cost of the services. No one will be denied nursing care because of their inability to pay. The Health Department is also approved for insurance payments under Medicaid, Medicare and some other types of insurance coverage.

For information and referral regarding the Home Health Care Services of District Health Department Number Three call any one of the four offices: Bellaire 533-8607 Charlevoix 547-6523, Gaylord (517) 732-1794, Petoskey 347-6014.

The next regular scheduled Board of Health Meeting will be in Petoskey, Oct. 16, at 9:30.

Selling Your House by Gene Steele

THE PEOPLE WHO MOVE

This is a country on the move. Families pack up and move their homes across the street, across the state, across the country. Some move once or twice during a lifetime – others zip back and forth every few years. Perhaps YOUR family has moved a few times.

Some of these families are moving HERE, looking for a new home. More and more, these people tend to make their arrangements BEFORE they leave an old location.

How will they know about YOUR house? They won't see your ad in a local paper.

Most probably, a family about to move will be referred to a broker here. We'll be apprised of their needs: How big a house? What price range? Then we match them to a home in this location that will meet their requirements.

Shall we bring them to see your house for sale?

CHIP Counseling Center at a crossroads

On its third birthday, CHIP Counseling Center of Charlevoix stands at a crossroads.

That was the core of CHIP Director Oren Schroeder's message to the members of the center's Board of Directors and Corporation at their annual meeting October 3.

Schroeder announced the beginning of a campaign to move CHIP from a position of "financial dependence to financial independence," to insure that the counseling center continues to "serve the people who are in need, regardless of their financial situation."

The non-profit counseling center received its initial financial start in 1976 from the Woodbury Ransom family, who agreed to underwrite the center's first three years. The Ransoms participated in a series of discussions held by concerned local citizens, who felt that a mental health center, which could offer counseling services to all the people of the area, was needed in Charlevoix. When the Ransom's son, Charles Allen Ransom, "Chip", died in a boating accident, the center was named in his memory.

The Ransoms' donations have been augmented by some donations from others in the community and by the fees paid the center by clients.

Clients' fees, however, are not a major source of income. Fees are assessed according to a person's ability to pay, on a sliding scale, ranging from $1 an hour to $30 an hour for the services of one of the center's two professional therapists. Fees are established during an initial meeting with a counselor.

The average fee paid CHIP in 1979 was $8.89. An hour of counseling, however, costs the center $34.

Members of the Board of Directors and Corporation, private citizens from throughout Charlevoix County, will call on others in the community to help CHIP raise enough money to insure its future, to make up the difference between fees and costs of operations.

Their message will be that CHIP is needed.

Their evidence will be that in the past three years more than 600 people have come to CHIP seeking help and have received over 12,000 hours of counseling; that the number of people seeking help at CHIP continues to grow; and that CHIP counselors make a valuable contribution to the community as a whole, not only through individual counseling, but with community workshops on subjects such as parenting, stress, financial planning and couples communication.

Friends of CHIP Center will talk to others in the community about CHIP's work with local law enforcement. They will explain how a CHIP counselor conducts weekly therapy sessions with a group of inmates at the county jail, working on rehabilitation and changing the pattern of their lives.

Supporters of CHIP will also speak of how CHIP counselors receive referrals from other professionals, including social services personnel, judges, lawyers, police, doctors and others in mental health.

People who have turned to CHIP will talk with their friends, asking them to support CHIP's work with troubled families, adolescents, people with drug and alcohol problems and others facing personal crises.

Charlevoix Attorney Roy C. Hayes and Professional Financial Consultant Toni Bickersteth, both members of CHIP's Board of Directors have agreed to help coordinate CHIP's low key fund raising campaign. They explained that CHIP will not be embarked on large scale public fund raising, but rather an effort to reach the people who share CHIP's concerns for mental health and improving the quality of life for everyone in the community.

"I have seen CHIP help people who can never repay CHIP for what it has done for their lives, except by the way they lead their lives," Hayes, former Charlevoix Prosecuting Attorney told the group.

Schroeder's message also focussed on CHIP philosophy: "It seems to me important to be mindful of the original purposes and intent of the CHIP Center: that we are here to serve people who are in need; that we are dedicated to strengthening marital and family relationships, and that we are a helping agent in providing emotional health and 'quality of life' to the community."

Terry Smith, one of CHIP's psychotherapists provided some glimpses into the therapeutic techniques used at the center. He described individual counseling, where a person meets weekly for an hour with a therapist. Together counselor and client indetify and then work to solve the problem.

Our Opinion

CHIP heads financial support

For three years the CHIP Counseling Center has been a vital part of the Charlevoix community. In that time more than 600 people have used counseling services at the center. The center now sees an average of 75 to 100 persons a month.

The CHIP Counseling Center was founded in 1976. Since its conception the cost of operation has been underwritten by the Woodbury Ransom family and some donations from the community. But the funding will soon run out and CHIP officials will start a fund raising campaign in an effort to collect $50,000 to keep the center open for another year. Officials are also hoping to acquire long term financing for future years.

This is a very important fund raising drive that CHIP is about to embark on. We hope the community will help the CHIP Counseling Center out.

Building maintenance should be top priority

Editor:

We have just read your article on the Charlevoix school budget hearing. We think Supt. VanWieren's statement on building maintenance and repairs is entirely wrong. The taxpayers are fully aware that buildings need care and we feel that money for maintenance and repair should be a top priority item in the school budget. Neglect of school buildings is a sign of poor administration. Let's take care of the school buildings and cut the budget somewhere else if necessary.

Sincerely,
Concerned Taxpayers

We need truth and facts about nuclear power safety

Editor:

One 25 year Charlevoix resident is quoted as saying "when Big Rock was built I thought it was an honor to have a nuclear plant located here." Many people certainly shared that opinion. Seldom, if ever, does any media, anywhere, bear this opinion out today! Can big business come as a small gift package and become something different? It only takes time, money, engineering and exeuses. Could Big Rock's increased fuel storage request turn into this? We certainly cannot afford the possibility. The NRC has accepted a local questioning petition on the fuel storage issue.

We need truth and facts from all available sources to determine "3 Mile Point's" safety and future motives. We do not need high rate threats or a trained mermerizer sent in from Jackson who says to move if you question Big Rock's presence. The plant superintendent asks us to just think of Big Rock as a "good neighbor". Really, when there's a potential cancer threat to us from radiation leaks in the past or future potential accident? Why couldn't "good neighbor" have invited those folks in for coffee and a fireside chat when they came to protest peacefully instead of arrests being made? There is, however, more intelligent methods to handle protestors.

Big Rock representatives tell us in faith that spent fuel/waste problems will disappear, but no facilities are under construction or in existence for long-term commercial reactor waste storage. Salt mine storage according to new studies are not safe as claimed. Efforts for any spent fuel storage in salt mines or backyards will be actively fought here, in Michigan. Furthermore, what safety guarantees will the public have that spent fuel storage areas will actually be guarded and protected for the full period required since "temporarily" could end up "permanent" if moving or reprocessing never happens. Consumers Powerful has always the answer – nail it on the customer! Anyhow, the least we might look for is an absolutely safe and workable evacuation plan for "Area the Beautiful" before controversial Big Rock (3 Mile Point) fires up again.

Sincerely,
Jim Mills

Tight Money: Can It Really Put Brakes on Inflation?

Bob Clock

OK, I'm a tenderfoot when it comes to economics. I'll admit it. But I think that President Carter and the Federal Reserve Board are out in left field by thinking they can cool inflation by forcing interest rates into the stratosphere.

In fact, tight money appears to be adding to the fires of inflation, which, as a layman, I would naturally expect it to do. When you look at money as just another commodity in the manufacturing process, its scarcity (and resulting high cost) surely is going to drive up the cost of finished products.

And, Mr. Carter, this is what we're trying to avoid, isn't it?

I, for one, am unable to follow the labyrinthine thinking of the heavy fellows who manipulate the nation's economy. But I suspect we would be better off without so much manipulation. When you play around too much, the whole house of cards is likely to collapse.

DURING LAST week's economic turmoil, photographers were busy at stock exchanges the world over capturing the excitement on film: People everywhere, lights flashing, arms waving, floors covered with litter, total confusion.

Pictures arrived on the Unifax machine at the News-Review office in Petoskey from New York, Paris, London and Tokyo; and there wasn't a dime's worth of difference between them. It was a jungle down there in the pits.

It is frightening to realize that a major portion of the world's economy rises and falls on an institution as outwardly chaotic as the stock market. Of course, the brokers know what they are doing. If they didn't, they wouldn't be there. But I'm glad I'm somewhere else.

THE FEDERAL government predicts that mortgage interest rates, which have been climbing steadily for the past several months, will hit an unheard of 14 percent in early 1980.

That means that it is all but impossible for a young couple starting out today to buy a new home without a healthy assist from their families.

On a home with a $50,000 mortgage, interest for the first year will come to a whopping $7,000 -- which breaks down to $580 a month. Of course, they'll want to pay a little something on the principal, plus taxes and insurance. All of which translates into mortgage payments in the neighborhood of $800 a month of more.

Maybe I travel in the wrong crowd, but I don't know many young people with that kind of money. To make it, both of them are going to have to have well-paying jobs and they had better put off having children until they are in their dotage.

There won't be many frills either -- like furniture and appliances -- until the mortgage is paid.

Of course, if inflation continues at its present rate, their new property will gain in dollar value every year. But if prices stabilize or drop, they are stuck with a grinding, long-term obligation that could strain even the most ardent marital relationship. If there's an economic crash, they may lose their investment altogether.

In any event, such grossly inflated interest rates simply mean that borrowers will have to pay for their property many times over by the time they make their last mortgage payment.

As I see it, a young couple's best bet is to marry, live exclusively on one salary for five years in family-provided or low income rental housing and put every cent of the second salary into savings. Then they'll be in a position to pay cash for a home, start a family and live happily ever after.

The money merchants may not like it, but is there any other way to go?

Proposed Legislation Would Give Farmers a Break

Ralph Ostling

Farm owners would get a break on their property taxes under legislation introduced recently by my Republican colleague, Representative Nick Smith of Addison. The bill would base a farm's true cash value – the foundation for property tax assessments in Michigan – on income produced by the farmed land and the earning capacity of the property.

Under present Michigan law, farm property values are determined primarily by the price at which comparable farm land in a given area is being sold.

As you may know, Michigan law already allows a farm property's earning potential to be considered in an assessor's determination of a farm's value, but this is not being done. Assessors have never figured out how to accomplish taxing on the farmland's capacity to produce income. This bill provides a formula for taking economic factors into consideration when computing tax assessments.

Here's how a farm's earning capacity would be figured: the annual Farmers' Home Administration (FHA) loan rate would be divided into the farm's annual net income. For instance, if a farmer's land yields $60 per acre and the FHA loan rate is 12 percent, each acre would be assessed at a value of $500. Property presently yielding $60 per acre is being assessed at about $800 to $1,000 per acre.

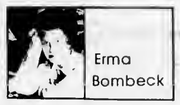
Productivity ratings would also be used to determine the value of the property. The ratings would ensure that persons who own potentially valuable farm land but have not farmed it productively would still pay taxes on the earning capacity of their land.

I envision a Michigan State University agricultural computer service providing much of the information needed for the ratings.

A similar bill passed the Senate last year.

I am convinced that this legislation would help alleviate an inequity that taxes farmers heavily on the most necessary tool of production – their land. I intend to fight for the rights of farmers to have their property taxes lowered to a fairer level.

Steam Iron Counts in Choosing a Roomie



Erma Bombeck

One of my kids was interviewing a potential roommate on the phone the other day. She hung up and said, "It's a shame that one didn't work out."

"What was wrong with her?" I asked.

"Oh, the surface she seemed to have everything. A good job, likes to cook, is considerate of people, has no bad habits, has her own car, and can pierce ears."

"So why didn't you ask her to move in?"

"I couldn't," she said. "We're looking for a size 10 with a steam iron."

"You're kidding."

"Mom, getting roommates who are 'neat people' just isn't enough. Last week I turned down a girl with her own VTR and a new battery in her car."

"What was wrong with her?"

"Would you want to live with a size three who doesn't do windows or floors?"

"I guess you can't be too careful."

"We thought we were onto a steam iron yesterday, but we were too late. Steam irons never have any trouble finding roommates. She could pick her own pad and not even have to share a bathroom. Stereos are a dime a dozen. Everyone's got their own system. We've just had a streak of bad luck. First, our Mr. Coffee flunked out of school and went back home. When we replaced her, our electric typewriter got married and split, and we got stuck with a girl who said she was getting a leather coat, but she just said that to get the room."

"I'm curious," I said. "What have YOU brought to this better living through materialism?"

"Are you serious?" she laughed. "When you have two tall unmarried brothers you're in the driver's seat. The trouble with a lot of people who share an apartment is they don't have a plan. It should be like a marriage – carefully thought out. Each partner should be seriously considered on what he can bring to the relationship. Incidentally, Dad had a job, a car, a bicycle, savings account and a collection of Glenn Miller albums. What did you bring to the marriage?"

I smiled. "A steam iron."

Pope Leaves His Mark On Nation's Capital

Nick Thimmesch

WASHINGTON — This city, belonging to everybody and nobody, was good to Pope John Paul II, but didn't turn out the superlative numbers as other cities did where ethnic and religious pride flourish.

Still, this rugged Pope made an enormous impression here, as he did elsewhere, for he is whole as a man and whole as the enunciator of the Catholic faith. Thus he gets the love and respect of virtually all people, as few humans rarely do these days.

Wise people admire him because they recognize him as an authentic leader at a time when leadership is a most difficult occupation. Pope John Paul II did not stint on expressing his strong personality or strong doctrine. His week in our democratic nation, where he exercised freedom of speech, stimulated people to think and debate the issues he addressed so straightforwardly. This is good.

He is a strong, warm person. He excites and commands attention because he has suffered Nazism, communism and materialistic secularism, and shows love instead of bitterness. His narrow eyes pierce, and his courage insists that he indict the selfishness, cruelty and destruction in the world, whether it be economic, political or the assault on the sacredness of human life.

He genuinely loves children; he is natural and loving with the handicapped. He was neither domineering nor deferential. He is at once human and majestic. Unlike many men of the cloth, he does not impose guilt, he challenges people to actions based on their highest instincts – put aside the arms race, give help and food to the poor, extend democracy, protect human life in all forms.

If capitalism, dictatorships or amoral medical or social practice stand in the way, this Pope urges people to overcome these barriers. Pope John Paul II is an ecclestiastical John Wayne riding fearlessly across the world. He wants to visit the Soviet Union in 1980.

Those who wished he wouldn't raise controversial issues should have known better. The very integrity that makes him so admired also requires him to express Catholic doctrine on birth control, clerical celibacy, divorce, abortion, homosexuality, the state of women and the family. He did not condemn those who differ with the Catholic Church's teachings on these questions. But he makes everybody think about them.

Birth control is still a debatable question, even inside the Church. Abortion is not. On other questions, he is insisting on traditional standards, knowing full well that we are all humanly capable of not always living up to them. He lifts heads, makes people realize that living according to Judeo-Christian teaching can be painful. He did not offer pap.

The Nazis and Communists who persecuted him were cruel and powerful. Secular-materialism is also cruel, in its way, and almost the most powerful force in Western civilization today. It drives humans into frenzied quests for consumer goods. Its distractions and sophistries destroy family life and alienate people from each other to the point that everybody is lonely though not admitting it.

It has made an enormously successful contemporary like Norman Lear into the prime-time Pope of television who produces electronic encyclicals diametrically opposed to what the Pope enunciates as humanism.

Secular-materialism is powerful enough to make a Sen. Edward Kennedy, whom most Catholics adulate, consistently vote pro-abortion, and cause the greater aberration of a Catholic priest, the Rev. Robert Drinan of the Society of Jesus, to do the same. It is not easy to be Catholic.

Enough. The good here is that American democracy, nurtured by its Protestant roots, made it possible for John Paul II to speak to millions of Americans. His impact was so great as to cause debate, but what good are ideas unless they can be tested and debated.

Surely, there can be ecclesiastical debate over whether the purpose of the sex act can be for man and wife to express love as well as to procreate. Surely, there is precedent in the Church for a married clergy. And Rome's wise men can be reminded that St. Paul once said, "In Christ, there is neither male nor female." Since John Paul II shows a huge heart, there must be room in Catholic thinking for compassion for people who have gone through tragic separations or divorces after their marriages failed.

In the political realm, the Vatican's non-recognition of Israel can be questioned. Cannot the reality of this small nation be kept separate in the Vatican's historical and cultural thinking from the designation of Jerusalem and environs as the Holy Land?

It was good that John Paul II toured our country as he did, entered the White House and talked straight from the shoulder. We are not a Catholic nation, but we are now grown up enough to receive a Pope, hear him out and weigh and measure our values against his statements. We are richer for having been exposed to this remarkable human being.

Meet Charlevoix

Ann Sullivan teaches ballet and modern dance at the Charlevoix School of Gymnastics. This week, Miss Sullivan, who has been dancing since she was six years old, tells the Courier about her training in the dance and what she is teaching her students.

COURIER: Where did you receive your training?

SULLIVAN: I grew up in Alma and had a very good teacher there. Later on we moved to California, where I had another good teacher. Then I went to the Interlochen Arts Academy, where I studied dance and the tuba for three years. After that I went to Sarah Lawrence College and majored in dance and also studied classical Greek.

COURIER: What types of dancing are you teaching now?

SULLIVAN: For the younger children, ages four to seven, we have a Creative Movement class. This is a rhythmic development class and involves spacial concepts -- front and back, sides, skipping, galloping, jumping, that sort of things.

COURIER: Where do the children go from this class?

SULLIVAN: Into ballet classes. "Eventually we will have modern dance classes for all ages because there is a lot of interest in them. Now the modern dance classes are made up of adults and young adults.

COURIER: Do you have a class for boys?

SULLIVAN: Yes, for boys about nine or 10 years old. It's a musical comedy type of class. They do basic steps like turns and jumps, the kind used in musicals. Emphasis is on footwork and it prepares them for sports like basketball, soccer, and football. There's also some creative work.

COURIER: What other classes do you have?

SULLIVAN: The ballet classes for girls of all ages that I mentioned, the modern dance classes for older students and adults, as well as an adult class of dance exercises. We do exercises to music but don't have stoups and pushups alone. Rather, they're combined with other things to make them more interesting. We emphasize flexibility and skills.

COURIER: We know this is your first year of classes here. Are they filling up?

SULLIVAN: Yes, we have over 60 students in our afternoon and evening classes but we have room for more. As I mentioned before, we want to start another modern dance class, and eventually, advanced ballet.

COURIER: Where else have you taught?

SULLIVAN: I finished college last May. This past summer I taught in the Bay View Theater Arts Department and choreographed "Carousel". As far as performances are concerned, I performed at the Jacksonville Festival for the Arts in Florida, I toured Roumania with the Alma College Choir, I toured the state of Michigan with the Interlochen dance group, and I appeared in performances every year at Sarah Lawrence, including one at Lincoln Center on Sarah Lawrence's 50th anniversary. Also, I performed in "Annie Get Your Gun" and "Where's Charlie?" I assisted with the choreography of "Where's Charlie?"

COURIER: What do you see as the advantages of taking dancing lessons?

SULLIVAN: Dancing lessons develop coordination in children -- this is especially important for athletes. They also promote self-confidence, and creative movements teach children to think. For adults, dancing lessons are a form of exercise, a release, an art form. Exposure to dancing lessons opens up awareness to new experiences.

COURIER: How does your dance program differ from that of others?

SULLIVAN: In addition to our dance classes every week, we have a workshop every other week. These are just for fun and give the students a chance to enjoy dance games. They also give me a chance to work individually with the students.

COURIER: Who runs the Charlevoix School of Gymnastics?

SULLIVAN: A Board of Directors made up of Mr. and Mrs. David Fershee, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Messner, Coreen OeJonghe, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kelly, Jim Mitchell, and Jane Sooy.

COURIER: Was this your first summer in northern Michigan?

SULLIVAN: No, my family has been coming up here for years. My father is director of the Music Conservatory at Bay View. He's a tenor and directs the choir. He retired from Alma College, where he was chairman of the Music Department.

COURIER: What do you do when you're not teaching or practicing?

SULLIVAN: This winter I hope to read more Greek -- I've been trying to get through the New Testament in the original Greek, but so far I've only gotten to the Book of Mark. I also want to do some cross-country skiing and get some work done on labanotation.

COURIER: What's labanotation?

SULLIVAN: It's a method of writing down dances. It's named for Rudolph Von Laban.

COURIER: How does it happen you are teaching dancing rather than performing with a dance troupe?

SULLIVAN: Eventually, I would like to form our own dance company, but for now I enjoy teaching.

Players Due Oct. 17

One of the church's most important and toughest jobs is to challenge its members...to keep them alive, thinking, growing, ill at ease with complacency...to make Christian commitment an exciting, total way of life, not just an hour a week in Sunday worship. The unfortunate truth is that most of us don't like being challenged very much...having our toes stepped on...so we find lots of ways to avoid paying attention.

Having something to say, and getting people to hear and respond to it, are two different things. Covenant Players was created with just this in mind...the need for media that can communicate the vibrant challenges of Christian commitment...in a way too engrossing to ignore, too much fun to get uptight about, too potent and personal to be rationalized away.

Covenant Players, an international repertory drama group, utilize a unique kind of drama. With a repertoire of 700 plays, it allows a flexibility to communicate a variety of themes, issues, and subject matter. Using everything from light comedy to heavy drama, science fiction, and Biblical characterizations, they present their message. One of 45 touring groups will be performing Wednesday, Oct. 17, at 7:30, at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix. All are invited to come and participate.

Vote on rezoning scheduled for Nov. 13

Residents of Charlevoix Township will be going to the polls Tuesday, Nov. 13, to approve or disapprove a recent amendment to the township's Zoning Ordinance.

The amendment, which was approved by the township board on July 9, rezoned 230 acres of Crescent Stone Company (Medusa) property from agricultural and scenic reserve to industrial.

The board's decision was split three to two, with township Supervisor Oscar Stroud, Clerk Jo-Anne Elzinga, and Treasurer Rose Bergmann voting for the amendment and Trustees H. Dale Glass and Donald Smith voting against it.

At the time the amendment was voted on, there was much sentiment against it among residents of the township, and it was suggested that a petition for a referendum on the subject be initiated. This was eventually done and enough signatures were secured to put the proposition on the ballot Nov. 13.

Those who object to the rezoning have been active in working against it, and those who approve of it have been working for it. A few weeks ago, a group called the "Charlevoix Township Vote of Confidence Citizens Committee" was formed to promote approval of the amendment.

Voting on the proposition will take place from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Nov. 13 in the Charlevoix Township Hall.

Distaff Charlevoix Cagers Post 2 Big Victories

Charlevoix got back into the thick of the Michigan-Huron Shores basketball race last week with victories over Gaylord, 67-49, and Cheboygan, 66-47.

The Rayders are now 2-1 in conference play and 5-1 on the season.

It was a big week for Melinda Klooster, the Rayders high scoring center. Klooster tallied 23 against Gaylord on Tuesday and then came back on Thursday against Cheboygan to break the school scoring record with 39 points.

In the Gaylord contest, the Rayders also received a fine performance from Lisa Pischner, who had 16 points.

"That was one of her better games," Coach Toni Felter said. "Not only did she score, but she played good defense, too."

The Rayders were never in serious trouble against Gaylord. They led by nine at half, 32-23, and then broke it open in the third quarter.

Charlevoix put four solid quarters of basketball together against Cheboygan.

"We were really fired up for that game," Coach Felter said. "We didn't like losing to Petoskey and the kids don't want it to happen again."

Klooster broke the old scoring record of 38 points set by Cheryl Pence, who happens to be the assistant coach this year. Several of Klooster's baskets came on passes from guard Mel Kerridge.

Charlevoix will try and extend its winning streak Tuesday at Grayling. The Rayders are home Thursday against Rogers City.

Thinclads to Play Host Tuesday

Charlevoix will host the Michigan-Huron Shores Cross Country meet at the Belvedere golf course on Tuesday according to Coach Pete Spieles.

On Thursday the team will travel to the invitational at Traverse City and on Saturday to the Elk Rapids Invitational.

The Petoskey Invitational scheduled for last Saturday was cancelled for the season because of the ankle-deep water on the course as the result of the rainstorm that hit the area late last week.

Chiefs Scalp Rayders 28 to 21

The Cheboygan Chiefs took over first place in the Michigan Huron Shores Conference Friday night by a score of 28-21 in an overtime game played at Cheboygan Friday night.

In other league games, Rogers City edged Petoskey 14-13; St. Ignace defeated Boyne City 31-0 and Charlevoix fell victim to Grayling by a score of 13-0.

This week the league leaders will take on Petoskey, presently in a four-way tie for third place; Boyne City will play at Gaylord; St. Ignace at Grayling and Rogers City at Charlevoix.

Friday's meeting with the Hurons will be the homecoming for the Charlevoix Rayders who will be trying to better their 1-3 standing before the hometown crowd gathered for the homecoming.

In Friday's game at Grayling, a total of 10 fumbles contributed to the Rayders' loss to the Grayling Vikings.

"They (the Vikings) just wanted the game more than we did," Coach Don Carey said.

"We made a lot of mistakes in the first half; we failed to take advantage of scoring opportunities and in the second half we just didn't do a good job."

A blocked punt early in the game gave Grayling the lead when Todd Dunckley picked up the ball and ran four yards for the touchdown. Dunckley then kicked the conversion to put the Vikings ahead 7-0.

Midway in the second period, the Rayders got a drive going and made their way to the two yard line where a fumble cost them their first scoring opportunity.

Midway in the third period Viking quarterback John Jantola threw a pass to Bill Luckstead good for 67 yards and a second touchdown.

Charlevoix had a total offense of 173 yards for the game, 167 on the ground and six by passing. Scott Kelly completed one of four passes and had one pass intercepted. Robert Russell was the chief ball carrier picking up 117 yards in 22 carries.

Jantola completed two of 13 passes for Grayling for 101 yards.

The Vikings had three fumblers and one pass intercepted.

On defense, Jerry Sladek accounted for 12 tackles; Nick Andersun, nine and Jack Cross eight.

Petoskey's freshman football squad won its first game of the year Wednesday and it came at the expense of Charlevoix. Petoskey whipped the Rayders, 42-0.

The Rayders dropped to 1-3-1 on the season.

Time to think cross country skiing

When the leaves turn red and start to drop, Nellie Hishle's thoughts, along with half the local population's, turn to cross country skiing.

So the indefatigueable co-founder (along with Tom Short of Flint) of Silent Sports North, is seen beating a steady path between her store's location at the Market Mall, local schools, groups who wish to hear her speak, and Windmill Farms ski area, spreading the word, "Cross country skiing is the way to thoroughly enjoy winter."

Silent Sports North will celebrate its "grand opening" at the Market Mall on Saturday, October 20, with refreshments, special ski package sales, and door prizes, ranging from new skis, to clothes to wax kits and passes to Windmill Farms.

Nellie, of course, will be on hand.

More than selling skis, she wants to promote a winter activity in which she believes.

"Why its even good for your mental health," she says with conviction.

A protoge of Yugoslavian Olympic cross country skier, Vojin Biac, now of Traverse City, Nellie departs from Biac's competitive approach.

"Sure, I believe in competition," she says, her blue eyes sparkling with a warming brightness, "But I really believe in cross country skiing to get out, to have fun, to be part of the beauty."

"This is a family sport. It doesn't have to be competitive. Everyone can ski at his or her own pace."

To bring that message home, Nellie will conduct a series of three sessions on cross country skiing for Adult Education classes at Charlevoix High School, beginning October 25 at 7 p.m.

"We will cover basic techniques, waxing, safety features, proper clothing, equipment and places to ski," she begins explaining.

Standing in the middle of the ski-crowded showroom at Silent Sports North, she assumed an awkward position, leaning forward on imaginary poles.

"What's wrong with the way I'm, skiing? she laughs.

She falls down into a crumpled heap, a mime of tangled arms, legs, poles and skis.

"I have fun with my classes. I let them analyze what's wrong so they learn what's right, from the ankles up," she rises, using her "dead bug technique" to untangle skis and poles, lying on her back with skis and poles straight up into the air before rolling to one side.

Reaching for a pair of mohair, now wax, skis, she continues, "I actually ski on a rug with these during my classes.

"These classes are good for beginners but they are also useful for experienced skiers. They learn something new and how to teach their friends."

Nellie, a certified cross country ski instructor in the Central Division of the Professional Ski Instructors of America, has been justifiably called the "Pied Piper" of cross country skiing in Charlevoix County.

Born in the Netherlands, she immigrated to the States at the age of sixteen with her parents, who have now joined her in Charlevoix. She has competed in downhill as well as cross country, and feels that experience gives her a good vantage from which to point out the differences of the two sports.

Safety is one of her pet projects. She urges all cross country skiers to wear a whistle, carry an extra ski tip, and a compass on long tours.

"Also, I explain what happens when you eat snow, how it drastically lowers your body temperature. You should carry something to drink, and eat, preferably not chocolate, but nuts and fruit."

Reflecting how American cross country skiing has come of age, Nellie notes that around northern Michigan places to ski are developing rapidly.

During the past summer Silent Sports North sold a startling number of cross country ski packages, even in early August, she reveals.

October is the last month to take advantage of Silent Sports North's special package of no-wax Tempo skis, with a new type step running surface. The package includes skis, boots, poles and bindings.

A special door prize at the grand opening will be a personal lesson in telemark turns, from Nellie, as soon as snow conditions permit.

MICHIGAN BELL CONSUMER TIPS

Your children could save a life, with a little help from you and your telephone.

If you have children at home, would they know who to call in case of a fire, accident or sudden illness? Be sure you have listed near your phone the numbers of your doctor, hospital, poison control, police, fire department and other emergency numbers. Show your children how to find those numbers, how to dial them (if they don't already know), how to call the operator, let them know if 911 can be dialed for fire, medical or police help in your area. Write down your home address near these numbers, too, so your children or your baby-sitter can give it to people who need to find your home in a hurry. (But, for safety's sake, you should instruct them not to give your address or other information to strangers on the phone.) Your telephone can be a lifesaving help in an emergency. Teach your children how to use it for their protection and yours.

Who will be Queen? Five vie for title

The Charlevoix High School student body will pick the 1979 fall homecoming queen this week. Students will cast their votes today (Wednesday). The results will be announced Thursday.

There are five candidates in the queen's race - Lori Niswander, Tammy Helms, Karen Snizik, Leslie Wood and Kim Mitchell. The five girls were selected to the homecoming court by their senior classmates.

All five girls are involved in school activities. Tamuny is co-captain of the Flag Corps, vice president of the senior class and is a member of student council. Karen is captain of the ski team and co-editor of the yearbook. Leslie is a member of the student council, co-captain of the Flag Corps and a yearbook staff member. Lori is on the student council and is a member of the Flag Corps. Kim is the student council president, and a member of student council and the girls' volleyball team.

Last year's queen, Gayle Hansen, will crown the queen at halftime of Friday night's football clash between Charlevoix and Grayling.

The escorts will be Mark Orenth, Mark Price, John Grooters, John Bradley, Mike Chappuies and Rich Hodgeson.

A parade will precede the game and a homecoming dance will be held following the game.

YOU'LL GET A CHARGE OUT OF THIS!

The other day one of my long time customers came into the store with a strange look on her face. She motioned me aside, confiding to me that one of my window displays was not being properly maintained. She didn't want to cause trouble for any of my sales people, she said, but the stones in the window were all dirty!

When I went to investigate, I did indeed find our gemstone display covered with dust, but there is a good explanation. The stones we had on display were tourmalines. Tourmaline possesses the property of pyroelectricity, and when it is heated to 100 degrees C, it develops a positive charge at one end and a negative at the other. This electrical charge causes the stone to attract dust and other light particles. The hot summer sun combined with the heat of the display lights gave our stones quite a charge. Of course, we do keep our windows clean, but some store construction was producing a good deal of fine sawdust, and some of it floated right into the window box.

Tourmaline is a very attractive gemstone which occurs in many colors, sometimes in crystals of two colors. It is found in relative abundance in Maine and California and is considered one of the most American of gems. At Reusch Jewelry we stock , have in stock quite a few pieces designed around tourmaline. Please stop by when you're in the neighborhood 't's neighborhood

Disaster Aid Offered

U.S. Sen. Carl Levin has announced that a number of Michigan counties - including Antrim - have been declared eligible for disaster assistance by the Small Business Administration (SBA), as a result of crop damage caused by extremely low temperatures and killing frost.

Levin stated that the disaster assistance program provides low interest loans to persons who have suffered damage as a resultof the severe weather conditions. The maximum rate of interest under this program is 7% percent.

Levin indicated that persons filing a loan application for physical damage must complete their application by April 3, 1980. Those seeking assistance for economic injury must file an application by July 3, 1980.

Application and additional information may be obtained by contacting the Small Business Administration.

"Often we see real changes in people, even in their physical health, after successful therapy," Smith said.

Smith also explained an approach known as "Family Systems Therapy," where all members of a household work together with a therapist, defining and solving problems.

Smith compared group approaches, from his work with the inmates at the county jail, to CHIP's team approach with couples' groups.

The counselor carefully explained that any examples he used were fictional. "Confidentiality is crucial to therapy," he emphasized.

The center's Corporation elected five new members: Reed Freidinger, George Lasater, Marcia Trimper, Father Dennis Stilwell, and Robert Klevorn: who join Virginia Berg, Maxine Bergmann, Robert Burns, Condt Orury, Louis Hollow, Richard Krueger, Delbert Terrill, Richard Tillen, Thomas Pointner, Ray Giffin, Robert Martin and Gordon Van Wieren.

The newly elected members of the Board of Directors are Jim Plackner and Mary Ann Chew, who join Tom Bickersteth, Jim McKinney, Fran Hooper, Fon Moore, Marian Kohn, and Joe Hayes, all of whom are also Corporation members.

Hayes said that during the next two months, members of the Corporation and other supporters of CHIP will be raising a minimum of $50,000. Hayes described this as a "bare bones budget."

A simultaneous effort to help CHIP establish long term financial independence is being organized by Bickersteth.

It was pointed out that all donations to CHIP are tax deductable.

Schroeder compared CHIP's current transition period to human development: "We talk of the natural development of children from infancy to childhood to adolescence and so on. In like manner an organization must go through transitions of growth and development."

Thus, CHIP Center which has helped so many people in the area, muve through personal tymes of transitions, is turning to the community for help during its period of transition.

Teamwork Helps JV Squad

The Charlevoix JV football team had one of its best nights of the season Thursday when they defeated Grayling 28-14 in a hard-fought game.

Coach Hal Evans said an excellent team effort was shown by the team resulting in the win.

The JV squad will be idle this week but will return to the gridiron on Thursday, Oct. 25, when the young Rayders take on St. Ignace at Kipke field.

Charlevoix combined a running with a passing offense to defeat the visitors in the game in which Charlevoix took a first quarter lead following a six yard run by Jeff Morgridge.

With time running out in the first half, the Viking, with the aid of a 35 yard pass and a 15-yard penalty against Charlevoix, scored on short yardage with 18 seconds on the clock to make the half-time score 6-6.

As the second half got underway, Morgridge added another six points on a three yard run. The lead was short-lived, however, as Grayling got off a 45 yard pass play to score and then added two points by passing for the conversion to go ahead 14-12.

Midway in the final period, the young Rayders got back in the game when Mark Morgan found Keith Bales on a 43 yard pass play. Morgan then passed to Tim Louiselle for two points and a 20-14 victory.

With five seconds remaining, Morgan hit Louiselle on a 20 yard pass and then ran the conversion in for the 28-14 victory.

Evans had only praise for the Rayders who had a "great night". Morgridge had 20 carries for 90 yards and Louiselle caught four passes with two of them goo for eight points. The defensive squad was equally as good with Jim Zoller accounting for 13 tackles and a fumble recovery. Jim Crinnion and Tim Krueger lead a team effort that was outstanding on defense. Morgan, Morgridge, Will Ranger and Jeff Greene each counted for seven tackles.

STATE OF THE SCHOOLS REPORT

Again this year school enrollment rose slightly. Accordingly, staff adjustments have been made and the budget has been balanced. Financial limitations have been placed upon the schools because of the Headlee Amendment. Although the total value of our property in the [illegible] valuation for the schools will not increase proportionately.

The operating millage was increased and approval was given for a $700,000 bond issue for an addition to the high school. The purpose of this bond issue can be attributed [illegible] the immediate overcrowding of the Junior and Building facilities. Maintenance of the schools still remains a problem and it appears that more work will be required on a [illegible] basis.

A significant change in administration [illegible] the Board to achieve an effective form of citizen participation in the management of the schools. In addition, [illegible] was established to [illegible] with advice and help from [illegible] and parents. The support of the parents and patrons has been appreciated by the Board of Education. [illegible] teachers, students and everyone involved in the school system. With your continued support and participation, we will continue to strive for a healthy educational system.

Boat swamps in high seas

Soo fisherman drowns at foot of Bells Bay Rd.

A Sault Ste. Marie fisherman, Kenneth Donald Marble, 39, was drowned in Lake Michigan off Bell's Bay road at 10:15 p.m. Sunday when his 12-ft. aluminum rowboat was swamped in rough seas and sank, throwing him into the water. Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater has reported.

His companion, Donald Alexander, 17, also of RR 3, Sault Ste. Marie, swam ashore. He was taken to the Charlevoix Area Hospital where he was kept overnight for observation. He was released Monday morning.

According to the Sheriff Lasater, the accident occurred while the pair was securing their nets to the rowboat prior to towing them to shore. Alexander told officers the boat was swamped by the choppy seas and sank approximately 50 feet off shore in 12 to 15 feet of water.

Marble was pulled from the water by area residents who had gone to the site after hearing the report of the accident on the CB radio. He failed to respond to artificial respiration. Dr. Robert G. Martin, acting medical examiner, said death was due to drowning. The body was taken to Little Traverse Hospital where an autopsy was performed.

The aluminum boat washed ashore during the night, according to the sheriff's officers.

The U.S. Coast Guard responded to the call. On Monday they recovered the boat and transported it to the Sheriff's Department.

This was the second drowning in Charlevoix County this year. Both happened within the week. Last Tuesday an East Jordan youth, Randy James Johnson, 16, was drowned in the south arm of Lake Charlevoix at East Jordan.

Queen Tammy, a 5'7" blonde with blue eyes, is the daughter of Norman Helms and the late Mrs. Verna Helms.

Queen Tammy's first duty followng her coronation was the dubbing of Co-Captains Kurt Williams and Rod Anderson who presented her with a game ball.

Special music for the event was by the Charlevoix Rayder Marching band directed by Michael Filkins. The flag and rifle corps also participated in the halftime show.

Planning Commission OKs 62-unit housing complex

By FRAN MARTIN

Preliminary plans for a 62-unit senior citizens housing project to be constructed on Garfield Ave., off State Street have been approved by the Charlevoix Planning Commission and the City Council.

Detailed construction drawings will be started at once and should be available in approximately 45 days. The Charlevoix Housing Commission, the Charlevoix Planning Commission and the will be asked to review the plans again at that time before final acceptance.

The tentative date for accepting bids on the project from general contractors has been set for early January. If the progress schedule is not delayed, construction should begin about April 1.

Anyone wishing to view the preliminary plans for the structure may find them on display in the lobby at the Charlevoix City Hall.

Meanwhile, the Charlevoix Housing Commission will be seeking approval for two variances before the Board of Appeals on Oct. 29. All property owners within 300 feet of the project have been informed of this hearing. The Housing Commission is seeking a reduction of the apartment size from 780 sq. ft. to 650 sq. ft. as well as a sideyard clearance from 50 to 40 feet on the west boundary of the property.

The proposed plan for the building will show a three-story structure with an area of approximately 50,000 sq. ft. Of the 62 units, five will be designed for the handieapped. Compared with 11 other elderly housing projects surveyed in northern Michigan, the Charlevoix single bedroom units will be larger than any seen elsewhere. The survey also indicates that only 33 percent of the occupants will have cars.

Other features of the building are a 1,500 sq. ft. community room, 500 sq. ft. lobby, 1200 sq. ft. patio, a large size passenger elevator and a complete mail room. All living quarters will have balconies. Space on the grounds will provide for additional gardening. Considerable landscaping will be done to beautify the site. A circular drive with parking for 43 vehicles will front the north entrance off Garfield Ave. The Housing Commission is hopeful of acquiring a pedestrian access to State St.

Living quarters for the resident custodian, a laundry room, offices and maintenance rooms are also incorporated into the design.

The Housing Commission office is located on the lower level of the City Hall. It is open from 2 p.m. until 5 p.m. every Tuesday.

The Housing Commission meets at its office at 4 p.m. every first and third Wednesday of the month.

Citizens, NoMad are split on civil disobedience issue

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

Civil Disobedience as a means of protesting nuclear power has become a point of disagreement between the Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix and NoMad, the Traverse City-based anti-nuclear power organization.

Speaking for the Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix, JoAnne Bier told the Courier, "The Concerned Citizens have told NoMad that we feel civil disobedience would be counter-productive."

The issue came up after last week's rally at Big Rock Nuclear Power Plant when "spokesperson for NoMad announced they were planning to conduct acts of civil disobedience, such as sitting in on plant property, to prevent Big Rock's reopening. Consumer's Power Co. says Big Rock will resume operation either the end of October or beginning of November, although informed sources within Big Rock say the middle of November is more likely.

The plant has been closed since last spring after a leak and rattle in the reactor were discovered when the plant was preparing to resume operations after having been closed since February, 1979, for refueling.

NoMad leaders said last Sunday, Oct. 14, that they would mobilize over 1,000 spectators to help them in their efforts to close down Big Rock.

Civil disobedience in the anti-nuclear movement has been most prominent at such under-construction nuclear facilities as the plant at Seabrook, N.H., where protestors attempting to occupy plant property were expelled by mace wielding police and National Guardsmen.

NoMad's plans for Big Rock included trespassing to block access routes to the plant.

The Charlevoix citizen's group, whose petition to intercede with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission on Consumer's Request to expand spent fuel storage at Big Rock has been accepted says it fears even non-violent acts of civil disobedience would have a negative effect on their efforts.

"We told NoMad," Ms. Bier explained, "that the Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix have chosen to work in the legal arena."

Ms. Bier continued saying that the local group felt "people are becoming educated about nuclear power, particularly local citizens. Civil disobedience would alienate people who are planning to ask questions, the group fears.

"That plant and storage dump are in our backyards," she continued, "and people are becoming aware."

The local group is anxious to garner public support for their contention that expansion of Big Rock's spent fuel storage pool would be dangerous.

Public hearings, conducted by the NRC, are scheduled to be held in the near future, she reports.

The Charlevoix anti-nuclear group plans to testify at the hearings, arguing that the expansion of the spent fuel pool would permit Big Rock to continue operating another 20 years beyond its originally established lifetime. Big Rock

Longer Drydock Time Cancels Spook Party

By FRAN MARTIN

The U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Sundew's stay in the shipyards at Sturgeon Bay had been extended into early November and, as a result, the ship will not be back to entertain the children at the Charlevoix area aboard the "ghostship" on Halloween as planned, Lt. CDR. Warren Miller said in a telephone call from Sturgeon Bay this week.

Speaking in behalf of the crew, CDR. Miller said: "We are sorry because we were planning on having all of you aboard our ghostship again. However, the work at the shipyard is not completed and we can't make it home until well into November. We are sorry because we were looking forward to the party, too."

The ship's stay at the shipyards had to be extended because of additional work that had to be done before the ship could be readied for the buoy season and ice breaking duties.

In 1978, the crew of the Sundew hosted a Halloween party aboard the ship which was attended by more than 700 local youngsters. The party was declared a howling success by the youngsters, the adults who accompanied them, the crew and the Coast Guard Wives Club who assisted. They had hoped to repeat the event again this season.

Sheriff cites Beaver Island resident

Thomas McDonough of St. James, Beaver Island, recently received the Sheriff's Citizen Award for his efforts in attempting to save the life of a Beaver Island man.

The citation notes that McDonough assisted Beaver Island Sheriff's Deputy James Peacock with CPR and Cardiac Massage while the man was being transported from Beaver Island to the mainland following a heart attack.

"His ability to function in a calm, controlled and stable manner during this emergency situation was greatly appreciated by the residents of Beaver Island and the members of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department," the citation reads.

The award, which was recommended by Deputy Peacock, was made by Sheriff George T. Lasater.

Building inspector resigns

Dick Mayhew, who has served as Charlevoix County Building Inspector since June, 1975, has resigned his position effective immediately.

Mayhew has accepted a position with the Bureau of Community Services as an Inspector-Monitor of the State's Weatherization Program. In this capacity, Mayhew will travel the northern quarter of the State checking insulation jobs that are being paid for by State funds, and making sure that the funds dispersed by the State are properly used.

"I'm leaving the County job for a better one," Mayhew told the Courier. "I'll be getting a better salary and better fringe benefits. I'll be bettering myself."

He will continue to live in Charlevoix. In another statement, Mayhew said he wanted to "thank all the builders and others I've done business with in the past four and a half years for their cooperation. They've made the operation of the Building Code department possible."

Halloween movie slated

Youngsters in the Charlevoix area will receive a Halloween treat next Wednesday, Oct. 31, from Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Mrs. Ray Wood, Coordinator for the program has announced.

A youngsters' movie will be shown at Cinema III through the cooperation of Big Brothers/Big Sisters and the theatre management.

There will be one showing scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. Mrs. Wood said.

The treat is open to all youngsters in the Charlevoix school district.

Selling Your House by Gene Steele

ON-THE-JOB-TRAINING

In a number of industries, new employees come in for on the job training. It is assumed that the apprentice will come up against problems, and will be able to go to his "tutor" for help.

Generally, the on-the-job trainee doesn't pull his own weight for a long time. His employer accepts this on the assumption that, once trained, the worker will give good service.

In real estate, there is the homeowner who wants to sell his own house. He is inexperienced in this work--and he has no one to train him to do it. In the course of trying to sell, it is understendable that he will come up against problems. But he has no "tutor" to help him.

When this "trainee" makes mistakes, there is no one to bail him out. And when a home is worth many thousands of dollars, the mistakes can be big ones.

Would you want your biggest investment handled by an inexperienced on-the job trainee? List with the professionals.

is scheduled for decommissioning in 2001.

"We do not think the plant is structurally sound enough to be permitted to continue operating beyond its natural lifetime," Christa Maria, another member of the Charlevoix group told the Courier.

"We are committed to every legal method of intervening in the proposed expansion of the spent fuel pool," Christa Maria said, explaining the group has engaged lawyers in Washington, D.C., to handle their case. She said individuals in the group have committed much personal time and personal finances to the case.

Ms. Bier said that although the Charlevoix group does not advocate the permanent closure of Big Rock per se, it supports the resolution passed earlier this year by the Charlevoix City Council which calls for Gov. Milliken to hold public hearings "on the health and safety factors of the Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant and insists that the plant be kept out of operation until such time that its safety is assured," according to City Council Resolution 75-53, Ms. Bier explained.

"The Concerned Citizens are saying that safety is not assured and a workable evacuation plan does not exist," she said.

"We are saying that Big Rock should remain closed until the safety of the plant can be assured.

"But the Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix cannot support or participate in acts of civil disobedience.

"However, if after pursuing all legal avenues, all rights to health and safety are ignored, then each individual will have to decide which course they must take," she concluded.

Janelle Smalley and James Warner

Pair united at Barnard Church

Janelle Smalley of Ellsworth became the bride of James J. Warner in a double ring service at the Barnard United Methodist Church Saturday afternoon.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smalley of Ellsworth and Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Warner of Charlevoix.

Baskets of fall flowers in autumn colors formed a setting for the ceremony solemnized by the Rev. Dan Minor of East Jordan, pastor of the church. Mrs. Hans DeYoung of Ellsworth, at the organ, played a program of traditional music and the wedding march and processional. Mary Smalley of Ellsworth, sister of the bride, played a flute solo, "You Light Up My Life."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, selected a gown of white polyester Silesta chiffon for her wedding. Fashioned with an empire bodice with a sheer yoke, edged with a lace ruffle, the gown had a high lace neckline, long tapered sleeves with lace cuffs and a sunburst pleated skirt edged in shirred lace that extended into a chapel length train. Her bridal bouquet was of rust and gold mums and yellow roses, she wore a hand of matching flowers in her hair.

Her sister, Mrs. Shaun Gardner of Ellsworth, served as her matron of honor. She wore a pine green polyester gown styled with a fitted bodice, V-neckline, long fitted sleeves and an A-line skirt. Her bouquet was of mums and roses in autumn shades.

Larry Warner of Alma assisted his brother as best man. Michael Pasche and Mark Pasche of Mt. Pleasant, nephew of the bridegroom, seated the guests.

The Charlevoix Rod and Gun was the site of the reception hosted by the bride's parents. Mrs. Larry Warner of Alma, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, cut the wedding cake. Her daughter, Michelle, was in charge of the guest book.

The couple will make their home at 103 W. Lincoln Ave. in Charlevoix.

A rehearsal dinner, hosted by the bridegroom's parents, was held at the Barnard Grange Hall Friday evening.

Meet Charlevoix

Dr. David Strawbridge came to Chadevoix in 1973 to open an office for the practice of dentistry. He is now an established member of the community, serving as chairman of the City Planning Commission and secretary of the Lion's Club, and actively participating in events of the Chadvoix Yacht Club. This week the Courier talks with him about the care of teeth, about city planning, and about sailing

COURIER: Where did you live before coming to Charlevoix ?

STRAWBRIDGE: In Ann Arbor, where I taught for two years at the Dental School following graduation. I intended to stay in the dental educatinn field but I became frustrated because I couldn't get as involved as I wanted in actual dentistry.

COURIER: How did you happen to choose Charlevoix as a place to practice ?

STRAWBRIDGE: My parents had a cottage in Birdland Estates on Lake Charlevoix when I was growing up, so I had spent quite a bit of time here. When I decided to set up a practice, we came up one weekend and bought a house, and that was it.

COURIER: Where did you go to college ?

STRAWBRIDGE: I did my undergraduate work at Earlham College in Richmond, Ind. and received my D.D.S. from the University of Michigan.

COURIER: What type of dentistry do you practice ?

STRAWBRIDGE: General dentistry, but I did graduate work in restorative dentistry. In dentistry today, we try to emphasize prevention of dental disease. It's an achievable goal. The definitive answer to prevention of disease is making sure that plaque is cleaned off teeth every day. There are two major forms of dental disease -- decay and penodontal disease, which is loss of supporting tissue around the teesh. Both are controllable by just making sure the teeth are clean through the use of brush and floss. The dentist's role should only be supportive. One can't go to the dentist every six months and expect that to be sufficient.

COURIER: What about fluoridation of the water as we have it in Charlevoix ?

STRAWBRIDGE: I have not done a study as such but I can see the difference in the condition of teeth of Charlevoix city children as compared to those of children who live outside the city

COURIER: What is the role of the Planning Commission ?

STRAWBRIDGE: As I see it, it is to control the growth of the city that we know is coming. We oversee the zoning ordinance and make recommendations for all variances and rezoning to the city council. Of course, the council has the appeals power.

COURIER: What are some of your present concerns ?

STRAWBRIDGE: Parking is a big one, so is the lack ol available land in the city, and trying to keep the downtown area vital. As lar as projects are concerned, we are giving consideration to the Browe Marine (Bathey) project and a proposed 40 unit condominium called "Marine Bluff" on Ferry Ave. The developers want to rezone the 4.47 acres from Planned Unit Development to Residential 4.

COURIER: How did you become involved with the Planning Commission ?

STRAWBRIDGE: I saw the growth coming to Charlevoix and knew it needed control I wanted to help.

COURIER: What do you think about Charlevoix Township and the city merging ?

STRAWBRIDGE: It will happen but no one knows when. There would be many advantages, including more room for growth and allowing both the city and township to buy power on a larger scale. What is now missing is the opportunity for the city and township to plan together. Any discussion about merger has to come from the top -- the top city and top township officials.

COURIER: Who else serves on the Planning Commisson, and when do you meet ?

STRAWBRIDGE: Barbara Fels, June Cross, Clem Olach, Tom Duke, Bill Bellows, and Joe Morris. We meet every other Monday at 5:30 in the City Hall. We had a meeting this week.

COURIER: Why do you belong to the Yacht Club ?

STRAWBRIDGE: It's an excellent group for fellowship and meeting new people and it's a competetive outlet for me. I've always been active in sports but recently a physical limitation has prevented me from competing in some things I used to. Sailboat racing has been a good outlet. People in the Yacht Club are just super. The community spirit and oneness of the organization is stnking. We can go out and compete and yell and scream at each Other then come back and have a beer and relax

COURIER: What kind of sailboat do you have ?

STRAWBRIDGE: A Santana 525 called the "SLY".

COURIER: Did you learn to sail as a child ?

STRAWBRIDGE: No, I didn't start to sail until we moved up here. I sailed with Gene Steele and it wasn't long before I knew I had to have my own boat.

COURIER: Do you participate in any other sports now ?

STRAWBRIDGE: I'm getting back into basketball and tennis and jogging. I'll be doing some cross-country skiing, too, but I won't be able to ski downhill.

COURIER: What organizations do you belong to ?

STRAWBRIDGE: I'm secretary of the Lion's Club and have served on the Board of Directors. I'm also a member of the Congregational Church. The Lion's Club has a Children's Dental Health Program and I'm active in that. They furnish tooth brushes and floss and have a screening program in the elementary school. They also have the same program in East Jordan.

COURIER: Do you have any hobbies other than sailing and sports ?

STRAWBRIDGE: I enjoy reading -- I've been reading a lot oi books on sailboat racing. In the past I've had a real interest in making replicas oi ships. I enjoy working with my hands, which is probably why I got into dentistry.

COURIER: Where did you grow up ?

STRAWBRIDGE: We lived in several places -- Texas, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, but I spent my secondary school years at Howe Military School in Indiana, where my Dad taught.

COURIER: What about your family ?

STRAWBRIDGE: My wife, Beth, is working at Charlee's right now and is also writing a novel. She has always wanted to write. We have three lovely cats.

Preparedness plan finalized

By FRAN MARTIN

Charlevoix County's upgraded Emergency Preparedness plans for responding to accidents at nuclear power plants were presented to Lt. Acting Gov. James H. Brickley in Lansing Wednesday.

In Lansing to make the presentation were Clyde Cunningham, chairman of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, and Mrs. Alice Tunison, emergency preparedness (Civil Defense) director for the county.

They joined with Lt. Gtl. Dennis Payne, deputy director of the Michigan State Police, who presented a copy of the state's emergency preparedness plan and Rolland J. Oselka and Edwin Twitchell of Berrien and VanBuren counties, which also have operating nuclear power plants. Cunsumer Power's Big Rock plant is located in Charlevoix County.

The upgraded emergency preparedness plans are the result of an order handed down by Gov. William G. Milliken following the Three Mile Island incident in Pennsylvania last spring.

"I am pleased that the State Police has met the deadline set by Gov. Milliken. The close cooperation and hard work at the local, county and state levels made it possible to complete the plan. The plans have been expanded to include evacuation procedures for a radius up to 10 miles around nuclear power plants and work is continuing on procedures for a radius up to 50 miles around the three plants.

"Through the upgrading of these plans, the lines of emergency response and authority have been detailed to assure that the safety of the people of Michigan is adequately protected, Brickley said.

In addition to assisting with the upgrading, the State Police also assisted all three counties with a drill to test their plan and to familiarize county officials with emergency procedures.

The drill demonstrated that the capability exists to evacuate people in the event of a nuclear incident. It also pointed out the need for additional communications and warning equipment, improved emergency operating centers and more testing and training Brickley added.

Public Act 390 of 1976 calls for the development of a comprehensive Michigan Emergency Preparedness Plan relating to all possible disaster contingencies. The act gives the governor the power to declare a state of disaster and to activate the plan.

The State Police is designated as the coordinating agency and maintains the plan. Each county is responsible for developing a counterpart emergency operating plan. Under the plan the state is responsible for providing technical advice, monitoring services and supplemental services. Local government is responsible for warning, evacuation, shelter and security.

Following a review by the staff, the plans will be forwarded to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Big Rock will get 2 NRC inspectors

Beginning early next summer, there will be a resident inspector at Big Rock Point Nuclear Power Station, and a few months later a second resident inspector will join him.

This announcement was made last week by Gov. William G. Milliken, who had asked the United States Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) to make the assignment following the events at Three Mile Island earlier this year

Inspectors are already assigned to the D.C. Cook, Palisades, and Midland Stations.

NRC Chairman Joseph Hendrie informed state officials that the federal resident inspection program is being expanded and that the first inspector will report to Big Rock Point early next summer, and the second will follow several months later. Milliken also was advised that the NRC intends to double the number of resident inspectors at each of the Michigan, Stations by September, 1981.

Milliken, in his letter to Hendrie requesting the inspectors, said:

"Big Rock, as one of the oldest operating reactors in the country, should have a resident inspector assigned in the very near future. I would request that the NRC schedule be adjusted and that all three operating Michigan reactors be placed on the resident inspection program this year. I believe this request is consistent with the President's earlier promises to the American people and is certainly in the interest of the safety and welfare of Michigan citizens."

Your Opinion

Medusa deserves township support at polls Nov. 13

Dear Charlevoix Township Voter:

In his autobiography, Teddy Roosevelt said, "That big business must give the people a square deal; in return, we must insist that when one engaged in big business, honestly endeavors to do right, he shall himself be given a square deal." This letter to Charlevoix Township voters is an appeal to give Cresent Stone Company (Medusa), a square deal, a vote of thanks, and a vote for continued progress in our community.

We need quality industrial growth in our community. Industrial plants which have come to our community within the past 12 years have provided us with jobs and economic stability. Industry has given us year round employment. We no longer need to rely on seasonal jobs, and as a result, wages have substantially increased over the past 12 years.

How quickly we forget our economic conditions prior to 1967! I have been a Charlevoix area resident for over 35 years. I clearly remember that most Charlevoix workers were required to rely on seasonal resort employment. These jobs paid minimum wage, and most of our children had to leave this area to find employment. Those were difficult times for most of us.

The industrial growth over the past 12 years has substantially changed the character of our community. As a result of the cooperative growth between industrial and resort interests, Charlevoix has grown to its present level of prosperity. This level of prosperity we must keep! We can not afford to tirow our industry out. Don't we need to work with industry, to have more and better jobs, and keep more of our children in this community?

People residing in Charlevoix believe this is the best place in the country to live. To continue living in this area, we must make a good living. This can only be accomplished by working together with industry. Industry has problems like we do. Industry is experiencing energy problems and inflation problems the same as we do. We have to work together with industry to help them and us grow in spite of these problems. We can not afford to unreasonably restrict industrial growth!

Some people in our community have signed a petition to prevent Medusa from having 230 acres of their property rezoned. I would just request that these people reconsider and evaluate the economic impact that a failure to rezone this property could have on our families.

Medusa has been our friend and neighbor. Are you aware that Medusa is the largest Charlevoix County taxpayer and one of the largest employers? Their yearly payroll is over $3.2 million and they spend an additional $1 million locally for goods and services. In addition, they are presently paying yearly 49.5% of the township's taxes. Medusa is spending $50 million for plant expansion and $600,000 for development of the rezoned land. They voluntarily are involved in extensive reforestation, contributed over $250,000 toward the paving of Bell's Bay Road, and pledged $75,000 for expansion of the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

For a friendship to continue and grow, the people must help each other with their problems. Medusa has a problem! They must find sufficient raw material to keep their plant in continued operation. In attempt to continue their production in the Charlevoix area, they are presently undergoing a plant conversion project. Medusa must have sufficient raw material available at a price that makes it economically feasible to produce their product.

Can you afford to have Medusa close their plant down if they can not find sufficient raw materials? Have you considered the impact that this would have upon your family? Could you afford your home if your taxes were doubled? The money spent by the Medusa employees, and by Medusa directly, in this community provides a substantial financial base for the local business. How many of these businesses would have to close? How many additional workers in other businesses would lose their jobs? Many of our families, friends and neighbors would have to leave Charlevoix.

Can your business survive solely on the tourist trade? Businessmen appreciate the additional spending that they have received through employees in local industry. Can we afford to discourage industry in our community? If we continue with a negative attitude toward industry, new industries and jobs will not be created. Don't we need to work together with industry and encourage industry toward reasonable growth in our community?

Medusa has honestly endeavored to help you, and now may need your help for their continued economic existence. To provide the necessary minerals for their plant operation, Medusa has requested that Charlevoix Township rezone 230 acres. This rezoning request was approved by the Township Zoning Board, the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, and the Charlevoix Township Board. On November 13, 1979 Medusa needs your help, through your vote, to support the township's action rezoning this land. This is not merely a vote to rezone property, but a vote for the continued prosperity of Charlevoix, your friends, neighbors, family and yourself.

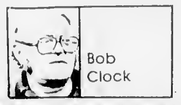
Mantle clock dates back to days of young Tom Edison



More than a century ago, the late inventur Thomas A. Edison rented a room in a boarding house in Stratford, Ont., where he worked as a telegrapher for the Canadian National Railroad.

Before leaving for work in the morning, I imagine he often checked the time on a sedate old mantle clock in the parlor to make sure he wasn't late. It is entirely possible that the clock also kept him awake at night, since it chimes the hour and half-hour — as regular as clockwork.

Furthermore, it might have stopped to wind the clock on occasion, because near the end of its eight-day cycle, the bongs tend to get a little slow. He might have even tinkered with it a little, because gears and fly-wheels were more or less his stock-in-trade.

If so, Tom Edison would be happy to know that the clock is still running. It sits on the piano in the Clocks' dining room in Charlevoix — a hand-me-down from my great-grandfather, the late William Winter, former stationmaster at Stratford and owner of the boarding house where Tom Edison lived as a young man.

All of which came back to me the other day when I read in the daily press that the Smithsonian Institution is celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Edison lightbulb — the first practical application of electrical energy for the masses.

When I was a kid, I figured Tom Edison must have been a relative of some sort because he was one of the chief topics of conservation among my great uncles who remembered sharing their home in Stratford with him when they were kids.

When Edison died in 1930, some enterprising Canadian newspaper men got all of the survivors of that household together on a conference telephone call and took notes on their recollections of the late inventor. Their stories took up almost a full page in the Windsor Star, as I recall.

A copy of the paper is still filed away in the family archives in Southfield, but I haven't looked at it in years. However, I remember some of my uncles were quoted as recalling how nervous Great-Grandmother Winter used to get when Tom conducted electrical experiments in his bedroom. Grandma was afraid her young boarder would set fire to the house.

Up until last week I always thought my progenitor was overly concerned about such calamities. Until the day of her death at 89 she was dreadfully afraid of electrical storms. She used to sit in the middle of the parlor in a rocking chair surrounded with pillows until the storm passed. Mirrors were always covered with newspapers at the first hint of foul weather, on grounds that mirrors attract lightning. All of the unfortunate dogs and cats in the household were booted out the back door on the same pretext.

However, now I have learned that grandma's caution where Tom Edison was concerned was well deserved. A story in Friday's Petoskey News-Review reports that Tom set fire to his father's barn when he was eight years old "just to see what it would do." As punishment, Mr. Edison publicly flogged Tom in the village square.

At age 14, Tom was thrown off a train for starting a fire, this time as the result of a chemistry experiment.

So after all these year, Grandma Winter's fears about young Tom Edison have finally been vindicated.

Our mantle clock was already an antique when Grandma and Tom died almost 50 years ago. But somehow that by-gone age when they were both young seems closer every time I hear it chime.

The economic news could hardly be better

Despite the melodramatic headlines of the news media and the negative vibrations of the stock and bond markets, the economic news could hardly have been better.

Though the ultimate impact will be a few weeks or months in the making, inflation – at least the strain we have come to know so well – may well have been dealt a mortal blow.

The anti inflation offensive was launched by the Federal Reserve Board, under the command of Paul A. Volcker, newly appointed chairman, whose tough anti-inflation rhetoric is surpassed only by his even tougher anti-inflation actions.

One of the more formidable moves by the Fed was an increase in the discount rate, from 11 to 12 percent. That means member banks borrowing from the Federal Reserve will have to ante up a higher price tag for the privilege. The banks in turn immediately raised their interest charges. The prime rate, for example, was raised from 13½ to 14½. Under such circumstances, an awful lot of buying gets postponed, or canceled altogether, and that can wring a lot of demand-pull type inflation pressure out of the economy.

As if that weren't enough, the Fed fired another salvo into the banks lendable funds department. By increasing, although selectively, reserve requirements fewer funds will be available for lending, even at the higher rates. That, too, is tough on Mr. Inflation.

The media, which tends to treat every economic turn of events with alarm, blew the counter-inflation steps into exaggerated headlines of fear and stories of potential unemployment and business disaster. Stock and Bond markets turned into emotional roller coasters. Stocks fell, climbed back again, fell another time and decided to hold onto the floor for dear life. Bond prices also suffered disproportionally.

Inflation has been described as the nations number one foe. Even politicians and presidents are in agreement on this point. The disasters of inflation have been visited upon so many peoples heads and with such impugnity this past year that inflation scare headlines have become commonplace.

Now, all of the sudden, something important has been done to combat this inflation. A tough move has been made that, based on past experience, has a very good prospect of slowing inflation and perhaps routing it. And what is our reaction? Panic, fright, and despair. To all of these emotional and irrational responses we say, Phooey!

Volcker and the Fed have acted with firmness and decisiveness with their credit inhibiting measures. It's good news for the dollar and good news for Americans.

Dear Son: We had no idea you had gotten married...

A couple of college students in the East recently figured they could capitalize on guilt by writing ghost letters home for classmates who were too busy to do it themselves.

They placed an ad in the local paper topped by a plaintive, "WHEN WAS THE LAST TIME YOU WROTE YOUR MOTHER?" It went on to explain how for three bucks, they would write four letters home over a two-month period. By the end of the day, orders began rolling in.

As a mother and professional guilt pusher, I resent amateurs getting into the act. Besides, if my kids didn't misspell Mom, I'd be suspicious.

My point is two can play this game. I've never had any trouble getting my kids to write to me. At no charge whatsoever, I offer you four letters guaranteed to get results immediately.

GOP can't imagine Senate without Javits, Goldwater

WASHINGTON – It was rather nice that, with one exception, all Republican colleagues of Sens. Barry Goldwater and Jacob Javits recently urged them to seek reelection next year. Both of these senior, but ideologically dissimilar, gentlemen haven't made up their minds yet about trying for a fifth term.

North Dakota's senior legislator, Milton Young, 81, in the Senate 34 years, says he can't recall his fellow Republicans ever writing a letter of this sort before.

Initiated by Republican Senatorial Committee Chairman John Heinz, the letter said: "For more than a quarter of a century you have been two of America's most respected and most influential leaders... you have helped shape many of the most crucial decisions of our time... You certainly have earned the right to step down from the Senate's demanding pace. But we need you... A Senate without Barry Goldwater or Jack Javits is almost impossible to imagine."

Now Goldwater, 70, and Javits, 75, have always seemed to be opposites. Javits was born poor on New York's lower East Side in what he once called "an urban counterpart to a log cabin." His immigrant father didn't earn enough as a pants presser so he moonlighted as a janitor. Father and son resented the heavy-handed corruption of Tammany Democrats. From boyhood on, Javits was a Republican, an interesting sort of dissident in Manhattan.

Javits worked his way through school, excelled in the law and made himself a nest egg before running for office for the first time at the relatively late age of 42. He became a record vote-getter and for years was kept at an arm's length by many Senate Republicans because of his consistent liberalism.

In 1964, Javits refused to support the GOP nominee, Barry Goldwater, a defiant act that hardly won him plaudits West of the Hudson River. His older brother, Benjamin, an ardent Goldwater fan, irked Jacob Javits by having Goldwater picked up in his limousine whenever he arrived in New York.

Goldwater was born in the Territory of Arizona. His uncle helped found the Jeffersonian flavored Democratic Party in those parts. It wasn't until after World War II that Barry turned Republican. Moreover, Goldwater, was born into a wealthy family, attended private schools, married an industrialist's daughter and, while always a hearty outdoorsman, knew nothing of the rough and tumble of growing up in an ethnic (Jewish) neighborhood.

Since Goldwater was reared in his mother's Episcopalian faith, he was sheltered from anti-Semitism. There is a story that he was once turned away from a country club because of his name and that he asked the manager if he could play nine holes, "because I'm only half-Jewish."

Later in life, after he learned that his Jewish relatives in Poznán, Poland, had been exterminated by the Nazis, he became more sensitive to his background. Goldwater became very angry in 1964 when Daniel Schorr, then a CBS correspondent, did a report suggesting that Goldwater was linking himself with neo-Fascist elements in West Germany, a falsehood which Schorr came to regret.

Javits, living in the ethnic turmoil of New York City, was always keenly aware of who he was. In one of his books, Javits wrote that had his father come to the United States earlier, he might have gone West as a Jewish "Yankee peddlar" on the frontier and, "with his wagonful of pots and pans," come to rest in a small Western town. Thus Javits' father might have eventually opened a dry-goods store which would become a department store."

"It amuses me to think that he might have come to rest in Phoenix, where he could have met a man like himself named Goldwater," Javits wrote. "Perhaps the pair might have even become fang-and-claw competiters." Javits then mused that they might have even become partners, and then "the great department store of Goldwater and Javits."

That entrepreneurial partnership was never formed, and even today there is only a limited political partnership of Goldwater & Javits. The two men are friends and speak very well of each other.

Javits remains the hard-headed liberal, respected by his Republican colleagues. No one is more impressive in Senate debate for skill or command of facts than Javits. He is also the ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and an expert on SALT II. Republicans gave him the chief role in forming their alternative economic package, and he is saluted for his longtime campaign for pushing for greater productivity in our economy through capital formation.

Goldwater is more low-key but is an important and respected figure in deliberations on the armed services, SALT II, intelligence and the pending communications act. No Republican gets more affection from his colleagues than Goldwater, and he is holding up well in polls in Arizona. His wife's health and his own are major considerations as he makes his decision whether to run again.

North Carolina's Sen. Jesse Helms is the only Senate Republican who didn't sign the letter. His spokesman explained that Helms: Wasn't properly consulted; feels that he shouldn't tell Republicans in Arizona and New York whom to nominate; is a friend of New York's Rep. Jack Kemp whom he might favor in a primary over "Jake" Javits.

Castle Farms paving worries area taxpayer

Dear Sir,

I am writing with concern for a driveway project going on in my Township. This particular driveway is being funded by the State Highway Department since it is on M-66 in Marion Township. The name of the establishment is Castle Farms Music Theater.

Under P.A. 200 of 1969 which requires all drives onto state trunklines to meet minimum standards, the drives must be surfaced and shoulders put in. I understand the party involved has been in violation of this Act for two years. Therefor the state has stepped in to do the job and bill the owner.

My husband and I have recently built a home on this highway just ½ mile from the Castle. We had to put our own driveway in and purchase a culvert that met new state requirements. We would certainly like a paved driveway and shoulder. Would the state be willing to do ours??

I would certainly hope that this matter would be looked into as this project will cost – we – the taxpayers approximately $15,000 if this bill is not paid by Castle Farms.

I would appreciate your letting me know when this bill is paid if at all possible.

Sincerely,
Mrs. James D. LaFave
Concerned Voting Taxpayer

cc: Representative Ralph Ostling, Senator Mitch Irwin, Governor Milliken, Michigan Department of Highways Attn: Mr. Conradson, Marion Township Clerk Tracy Curtis, Charlevoix Courier, Petoskey News-Review.

(EDITORS NOTE: Carl Petrie of the State Highway Department in Traverse City, who is project engineer for this paving job, reports that the law requires all commercial drives which handle large amounts of traffic to be paved, and that since Castle Farms did not have the job done, the state was forced to take over and do the job. He also said that Castle Farms would be billed for the full amount of expenses incurred in the work.)

Mom questions theater policies

Dear Editor,

I took my children and a bunch of other children down to the show Saturday night and they had to pool their money that was for treats to pay the admission for the pre-schoolers that were with them. They've never done this in the past and I was wondering if this is something new just since the summer people have left or what.

Also, why do they allow teenagers under 16 into R-rated movies? The only requirement is they poy the adult price. I don't think this is right and I wonder if other parents are oware of it.

Hurons spoil Rayders homecoming tourney

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Rayder football team, playing before a Homecoming crowd at Kipke Field Friday night, were shut out by the visiting Rogers City Hurons by a score of 23-0.

This week the Rayders will travel to St. Ignace to take on the Saints.

Three of the four Michigan-Huron Shores games played Friday night were shut-outs. Cheboygan defeated Petoskey 48-0; Gaylord dumped Boyne City 34-0 and Grayling edged St. Ignace 15-14.

The visiting Hurons scored in all four periods as they held Charlevoix to 118 yards, all of it on the ground.

The game was at the 4:13 mark when Jac Getsinger broke through for a 46-yard run and the Hurons' first touchdown. He then booted the conversion to give Rogers City a 7-0 lead.

Getsinger added another three points on a 30-yard field goal with 2:31 remaining in the first half to make the half time score 10-0.

Tim Ryerson, who had 111 yards in 20 carries, scored midway in the third period on a 15-yard run. The kick for the conversion, however, was blocked by Charlevoix.

The Hurons final scoring play came early in the last period on a 14-yard run by Getsinger who kicked the conversion.

Rogers City had a total of 291 yards including 202 rushing and 89 passing.

Robert Russell, in, 18 carries, accounted for 65 of Charlevoix's gains.

Nick Anderson led the defense with 15 tackles; Jack Cross had 14 and Rod Anderson 12.

One-one-four for season

Frosh end season with loss to Rogers City

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Freshman football team closed out its season Wednesday night with a 28-12 loss to Rogers City at Kipke field.

The team's record for the season was one win-one tie and four losses. Coach Chuch Bentley said the season was a pretty fair one and wasn't as bad as it sounds because two of the losses were by 12 points.

In Wednesday's action, the team had a total of 345 pounds total offense. "We out-ran them, we out-passed them but we also out-fumbled them. That's where we got into trouble, Bentley said of the game.

Rogers City scored first on a four-yard run but with two minutes remaining in the period, the young Rayders tied the score with a fnur yard run by Craig Klooster.

Midway in the second period, the young Huron took the lead for the second time as the result of a 42 yard pass play and a pass for the conversion and this time never relinquishing the lead.

A fumble recovery on the two-yard line gave the Hurons another quick tally with a pass adding two points to make the score 22-6.

With one minute remaining in the third period Jeff Trimper got off a 43 yard pass to Fred Mielke who took the ball to the three to set up the touchdown play by Klooster on the next play.

A 60-yard pass play by Rogers City and a pass for the conversion gave the visitors the lop-sided win.

Coaeh Bentley singled out Trimper, Klooster and Mielke for their work on offense and Chris Putman and Bob Wise on defense.

"They've been a good bunch of kids an they should develop into some good players," Bentley said.

Central Lake's Smith wins semi-pro slot

A former Central Lake athlete, Ron Smith, just by being at the right place at the right time, has made his way into the semi-pro ranks in football according to a recent story in the Pensacola (Fla.) Journal.

It all happened when Smith, now stationed at the U.S. Naval Air Station at Pensacola, where he teaches Survival Training, responded to a call for football players following a players walk-out involving the Pensacola Wings, a semi-pro team in the Dixie League. When the walk-out was over, Smith was among the few players who remained with the team.

Following the recent 47-7 rout of the Kenner City (La.,) Chiefs, a paragraph about the game tells of Smith's exploits: "The big story of the night was Wings' neweomer, Ron Smith, who returned an interception for a score in addition to handling the kicking and linebacker duties and walked away with the game's MVP award. Navyman Smith was one of the few walk-ons who stuck with the team from the hastily recruited masses who showed up during the recent player walk-out." The story goes on to say that when the team's kicker and linebacker were sidelined with injuries "Smith stepped in like he'd been there all along."

If he will continue to play in the semi-pro ranks his father, Richard Smith of Torch Lake Village who is employed at Freedman Artcraft, hesitated to say "I just know he loves to play football."

Smith and his brothers, Don and Doug, were all outstanding athletes at Central Lake where they played on all teams. Baseball, however, was where they gained the greatest honors. Ron had a better than .500 batting average. Another of the boys won All-State honors.

Smith entered the U.S. Navy on a four-year enlistement following graduation in 1974 and added two years to his initial enlistment to gain additional training. He was a parachute rigger at Moffett Base in California and now teaches Survival Training to all flight personnel at Pensacola Air Station.

His parents live at Torch Lake Village.

RC, Grayling defeated

Girl cagers chalk up 2 more wins in week

The Charlevoix girls basketball team chalked up two victories during the past week, defeating Rogers City 51-46 on Friday night and Grayling 54-47 earlier in the week.

This week will find the girls at St. Ignace Tuesday night and at Boyne City Thursday. "Both games are going to be tough. We are going to have to give it all we've got, especially if Melinda (Klooster) is sidelined by her injured knee" Coach Toni Felter said of the upcoming game.

Klooster suffered an injured knee midway in the second period of the game with Rogers City Thursday night. She was taken via ambulance to the Charlevoix Area Hospital and later to Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey. She is to return to the hospital to see a specialist.

The Charlevoix team took a 13 to 8 first period lead and held on 30-22 at halftime despite the loss of Klooster to the team.

With Lisa Pischner and Mel Kerridge trying to compensate for the loss of Klooster they continued to lead 39-32 going into the final period. Pischner had 17 points for the game while Kerridge contributed 12.

Furtiar had 16 and Smart 14 for the visiting Hurons.

In the earlier game at Grayling on Tuesday night, it was a battle all the way as the score changed often. Charlevoix found itself trailing 11-10 at the quarter; the score knotted 24-all at the half and Grayling with a five-point 33-28 lead at the three-quarter mark before Charlevoix outscored their hosts 26-14 for the victory.

Klooster came through with 25 much-needed points and Kerridge added 13. Karen Hansen had 17 and Regina Mathner 13 for Grayling.

5th grade presents gift to library

Following tradition, a committee of fifth graders recently donated a ceramic vase - complete with dried flowers - to the elementary school library.

The committee members - Stephanie Martin, Jill Taylor, James Spencley, Jennifer Sell and Mike Chew - had carefully selected the vase from Mrs. Moffit's Studio. The vase was purchased with the profits earned from the elementary school newspaper "It's Divine - Chew's News of '79," which was published last school year.

Putting together a school newspaper was a new experience for the young students. There were articles to write, ads to sell, people to interview. In general, there was a lot to learn.

Last year Mrs. Chew's language arts class spent spring term learning the "ins" and "outs" of publishing a newspaper. A big project was collecting want ads from the students in the elementary school. The ads were for student services available, articles for sale and items for swap.

It was decided by the newspaper staff to stick with the tradition of past classes and use the profits to purchase an art object for the school library.

The committee selected Mrs. Moffit, a local potter, from whom they would choose a gift. Mrs. Moffit presented her work and then answered questions. Incidentally, Mrs. Moffit was an art teacher before starting a pottery studio in Charlevoix.

Past language arts classes have given paintings, wall hanglngs and ceramic sculptures to the library. All are on display.

Fourth and fifth grade students atterded the ceremony.

Area wins applause

This section of northern Michigan received an unanticipated bit of publicity recently in a picture story in Modern Maturity magazine, a national magazine for Senior Citizens.

The four-page picture story entitled "Michigan's Unique North Country" with the pictures done in color showed the shoreline of Lake Michigan, looking toward North Point; Gerald Lakies of Charlevoix displaying Petoskey stones; the Beaver Islander at the dock being loaded with cars; a typical North Country family, three children at Central lake; the lighthouse at Harbor Point plus a beautiful Harbor Point home known for its stone arches and round tower; Stafford's Bay View Inn; the Boyne Valley Railroad and the ancient cannon at Fort Mackinac on Mackinac Island.

The story itself told how to get to the area with routes marked on a map as well as points of interest once you arrive in the area.

Modern Maturity is a magazine circulated via mail subscription to Senior Citizens throughout the U.S.

As violence moves north

Law officers briefed on motorcycle gangs

By TOM DAMMANN

Be "street-wise", as they say in the cities.

That is the advice offered to Charlevoix County residents who may be concerned by the presence of large packs of motorcyclists roaring along county highways and into some local towns.

This is particularly true in the East Jordan area where a Detroit motorcycle club recently purchased 20 acres on M-32 near Lake Patricia, which members apparently intend using for rest, relaxation and partying.

This advice came in an interview a week ago with Sgt. George Blanchard, of the Detroit Police Department after he addressed some 40 law enforcement officers at a seminar arranged by Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater.

The seminar, held at the sheriff's office last Wednesday was designed to acquaint officers with methods of handling members of motorcycle clubs who may get out of line.

Also participating were presenters from the office of Drug Enforcement's Detroit office.

Lasater carefully distinguished between recreational motorcycle clubs, who visit the area peacefully, and the rowdy gang-like clubs whu have already earned a reputation for violence.

Blanchard urged area residents to leave members of motorcycle groups alone unless their own rights have been violated – in which case call for police help.

He warned against accepting invitations to visit club premises because "then you're on the turf of the guy who invited you" and that means things may be different, particularly when a party is in progress.

He said that in the past few years seven clubs belonging to the Detroit and the Mackinac Bridge. He thinks this is because they prefer to hold their holiday parties on their own property rather than in public parks. They may be other purposes, but, if there are, they aren't yet evident.

Three of these are in Cheboygan, Grand Traverse, and Charlevoix counties.

The most recently acquired is the 20-acre tract of land just outside East Jordan. It is wooded and has a stream running through it.

It is believed to belong to the Justice Raiders of Detroit, according to East Jordan Police Chief Joseph Hammond, who tuld a telephone interviewer that club members had been visiting the city in large groups at various times during the past four years.

He said he thought the purchase had been made early this year.

"They haven't caused us any trouble to date, and I don't see why they should," Hammond said.

However, Sheriff Lasater said that his office is investigating five counts of criminal sexual conduct, first degree alleged tohave occurred on the club grounds later this summer, five counts of alleged criminal assault and some lesser charges.

Sgt. Blanchard says that one of the difficulties involved in rape cases is identification of the perpetrator or perpetrators, because their beards and dark glasses make them all look alike.

He stressed that young women should avoid going to any motorcycle club grounds.

Detective Sgt. Sidney Russell of the Grand Traverse County Sheriff's Department said, in a telephone interview, that The Drifters of Detrot have used some 40 acres of land in the Wilhamsburg area, which deputies believe is owned by a former resident of the area who is now a member of the club.

He said there have been several cases of alleged rape there, but that for the most part of the club members have been law abiding.

Cheboygan County Under Sheriff John Grabowski tohl a telephone interviewer that o Detroit Club had purchased 40 acres "way back in the woods and near Indian River things have been so quiet we're not sure they own it anymore."

Blanchard said the clubs "have lawyers who advise them carefully as to their rights as landowners.

"They also have officers who keep pretty good discipline and keep the individual members in line.

"I don't think these people" (the Justice Raiders) "are going to cause any major police problems. For one thing, when they're not on club grounds they know they're not on their own turf."

Garden Club elects officers for new year

BY FRAN MARTIN

New officers for the 1979-80 Club year assumed their duties recently when the Charlevoix Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. David Fowler. Mrs. Joseph Morris, Jr., was co-hostess.

The new officers are: co-presidents: Mrs. Ronald Stebbins and Mrs. Ray Wood; co-vice-presidents, Mrs. Homer Brady and Mrs. Dennis Joy; second vice-presidents, Mrs. Ray Giffin and Mrs. Roy Raymer; recording secretaries: Mrs. Dutcher and Mrs. Morris; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J.O. Crawfurd and treasurer, Mrs. Orval Hicks.

A tentative calendar for events in which club members will participate was discussed. Among these events will be the Arbor Day Tree planting, planning and planting of the Michigan Ave. garden at Petoskey and Michigan, mini park overlooking Lake Michigan; the memorial garden on Mercer Boulevard at the end of Dixon Avenue, The planter at the post office and tray flowers for the hospital on Christmas Day. There will also be several different types of workshops.

During the year, members will attend the Flower Show at Ann Arbor and this year will attend the annual meeting of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan which will be held at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island May 19, 20 and 21.

In addition, the club meets once monthly. The program includes an interesting lesson on some subject relating to gardening.

The next meeting will be held at the Community Room of the First State Bank at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 13. Mrs. Stebbins and Mrs. Paul Santek will host the Christmas workshop meeting. The nine-member workshop committee will provide the plans and materials for the meeting.

CHARLEVOIX CITY COUNCIL MINUTES

OCTOBER 15, 1979
8:00 P.M.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Supernaw presiding. Present: Councilman Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Whitley. Absent: None.

The Minutes of the October 1, 1979 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Council adjourned to the Board of Appeals.

Following the Board of Appeals meeting, roll call of the Council was again taken with all Council members being present.

Council discussed a change from the approved Site Plan in the construction of the Belvedere Residence by the addition of air conditioning units on the roof and a solar heating device. Jack Begrow, architect for the project, stated that the solar device was added to heat the pool area and a portion of the building and that, in his opinion, the air conditioning units would not extend the building beyond the allowable height requirement. Councilman Timms pointed out that the original plan indicated an open space between the buildings to allow a view of the harbor, which would be blocked out by the solar panels. Walt Hufford, a property owner in the area, stated that variances were given for the project based on the original Site Plan which was acceptable to the surrounding property owners and that those people should be considered if any alterations are allowed. John Friedly, also an area property owner, stated that the air conditioning units would extend the structure beyond the allowable height requirement. Mr. Friedly suggested that the City hire an inspector to insure that all new buildings are constructed to conform to the approved Site Plan.

Moved by Councilman Roloff and supported by Councilman Timms that the Clark Matthews project known as Belvedere Residence be required to lower their air conditioning units to conform to the 35 foot height requirement as required by the City Code and that the solar heating device be removed or lowered to a height acceptable to the City Council.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Roloff to accept and file the City Planning Commission Minutes dated October 8, 1979.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilmen Porter and supported by Councilman Roloff to approve the Preliminary Site Plan for a senior citizen's housing development as presented by the Charlevoix Housing Commission.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote: Yeas: Councilmen Porter, Roloff, Wood, and Muma. Nays: Councilmen Timms and Whitley. Absent: None.

Council discussed a letter from the Michigan Department of Health requesting continuous chlorination of the City water system. It was generally agreed not to institute chlorination at this time.

At the recommendation of the City Manager, no action was taken on a bid of $3,500.00 submitted by Dan Barnhart for two small City-owned diesel generators, as it was felt the bid was too low.

Moved by Councilmen Muma and supported by Councilman Wood that the Mayor be authorized to sign an Application for Airport License for renewal of the license for the Municipal Airport.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Muma and supported by Councilman Wood to authorize the Mayor to sign two Applications for Airport Manager's License designating Joseph A. McPhillips as Manager and James M. Brinkar as Assistant Manager of the Municipal Airport.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Roloff that the City Manager be authorized to enter into a lease/purchase plan with IFG Leasing Company for a Canon Copy machine at a total cost of $215.21 per month.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Timms.

BOARD OF APPEALS
OCTOBER 15, 1979

The Board of Appeals convened with Councilmen Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Whitley present. Absent: None.

The Board discussed the request by Douglas Bathey to continue his condominium project on Round Lake as proposed in 1977. Bill McTaggart, Mr. Bathey's attorney, stated that, although a zoning change in 1978 excluded the property from R-4 use, the expenditures on the project to date warrant continuance of the pre-existing non-conforming use of the property. Mr. McTaggart requested the Board of Appeals to issue a Zoning Permit authorizing completion of the units. Mayor Supernaw stated that it was doubtful that the Council would issue blanket approval of the project prior to seeing a complete Site Plan of the property. The Mayor also stated that Council must consider the fact that the preliminary plan presented in 1977 showed 13 units on the property and that the present plan shows 16 units. The architect for the project presented plans of the project showing that the additional three units would be placed in the existing building in an area previously planned for boat storage. He also stated that the project is within the height and parking requirements and would allow approximately 80 feet between the two buildings, thereby maintaining a view of the waterfront from Belvedere Avenue and Hurlbut Street.

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Timms to approve the continuation of the Bathey condominium project for 13 units with the Site Plan to be submitted to the City Planning Commission for their review and recommendation.

Motion was denied by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Porter, Timms, and Muma. Nays: Councilmen Roloff, Wood, and Whitley. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Whitley and supported by Councilman Roloff to approve the continuation of the Bathey condominium project for 16 units with the Site Plan to be submitted to the City Planning Commission for their review and recommendation.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Councilmen Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Whitley. Nays: Councilman Porter. Absent: None.

The Board of Appeals adjourned.

BY FRAN MARTIN

The U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Sundew's stay in the shipyards at Sturgeon Bay had been extended into early November and, as a result, the ship will not be back to entertain the children of the Charlevoix area aboard the "ghostship" on Halloween as planned, LT. CDR. Warren Miller said, in a telephone call from Sturgeon Bay this week.

Speaking in behalf of the crew, CDR. Miller said: "We are sorry because we were planning on having all of you aboard our ghostship again. However, the work at the shipyard is not completed and we can't make it home until well into November. We are sorry because we were looking forward to the party, too."

The ship's stay at the shipyards had to be extended because of additional work that had to be done before the ship could be readied for the buoy season and icebreaking duties.

In 1978, the crew of the Sundew hosted a Halloween party aboard the ship which was attended by more than 700 local youngsters. The party was declared a howling success by the youngsters, the adults who accompanied them, the crew and the Coast Guard Wives Club who assisted. They had hoped to repeat the event again this season.

Tests slated at Middle School

The Differential Aptitude Test along with the Career Planning Questionnaire will be given after this year to all eighth graders during the last week of October Condit Drury, Charlevoix Middle School counselor has announced.

He explained Differential Aptitude Tests include eight different areas...Verbal Reasoning, Numerical Ability, Abstract Reasoning, Clerical Speed and Accuracy, Mechanical Reasoning, Clerical Speed and Accuracy, spelling, Language and special Relationships.

The Career Planning Questionnaire permits students to express their educational and vocational plans as well as other preferences.

The results of the Differential Aptitude Test and the student's expressed interests in the Career Planning Questionnaire are analyzed through a special computer program. The report either confirms the appropriateness of the student's occupational choices in light of his or her abilities or interests or suggests alternative occupational areas to explore if the choices seem inappropriate.

The results of the tests should be available by late November. At the time Drury will interpret the pruffle to the students and ask each student to take it home to share with his or her parents.

'A Separate Peace' is most intriguing

"Spreading Fires" by John Knowles.

John Knjowles achieved literary acclaim with the publication of his first novel, "A Separate Peace", in 1960. It received the Faulkner Foundation Prize and the Rosenthal Award of the National Institute of Arts and Letters at that time. The story of two adolescent boys attending prep school before they were of age to go off to war with their older classmates, the plot involves the personal motivation of one of the boys in the apparent accidental death of the other.

Having found "A Separate Peace" to be most intriguing, I was delighted to find a copy of a John Knowles 1975 bestseller, "Spreading Fires" still on the bookshelf. This one is a novellette (123 pages in all) of more external suspense. The characterization of Neville, the domestic cook who had come as a package deal with an expensive villa on a hillside overlooking Cannes, who has suppressed his hatred of atristocracy and-or the noveau-riche for too long, is superb. Neville, only too anxious to be treated as servant, will give you the creeps with every meal he serves. His temporary master of the house, Brendan Lucas, is fortunate only by virtue of the fact that Neville secretly admires him in a covert, if inordinate way. Brendan's mother is not quite so lucky. She has neither masculinity nor tact on her side and it becomes quite evident that Neville would like to take to her innards with his meat cleaver at the first opportunity. All the other characters are expendible in the sense that they add only psychological diversion to an otherwise directed tale of insanity, murder, and suspense.

The only disappointment for me in an otherwise well-executed narrative, was the lack of development in the way the author dealt with the relationship of Brendan and his sister, Miriam. I kept expecting his haunting misgivings about Miriam's up-coming marriage, and various allusions to a disturbing attraction to her as a woman, to lead somewhere – like to the discovery that in truth they weren't blood siblings. But such a revelation never manifests itself and the suspicions seem to fade into oblivion with Neville's plight and the conclusion.

The reader has to be satisfied with a thematic resolution of sorts, that fear, like spreading fires, can rage out of control in the hearts of men and cause people to force fate "to make their worst fears come true."

United Way reaches $7,000

The 1979-80 United Way of Charlevoix fund drive got off to a rousing start last week when campaign officials reported that nearly $7,000 in contributions and pledges had been received.

The campaign goal is $18,000. Officials are hoping to reach the goal by Thanksgiving.

Thursday night approximately 80 volunteers collected $1,900 in a door-to-door effort in the Charlevoix area.

Officials seemed pleased with the results.

"I thought it was terrific," said co-chairman Dick Kenney. "We got some pretty nice donations."

"It's my opinion that the people in Charlevoix have an obligation to support the agencies," Kenney said. "The agencies rely heavily on our support. I think it's important that people realize that almost all the money stays in the community. Eighty-seven cents on the $1 stays in our backyard. The remaining 13 cents goes to the Michigan United Way which supports 23 state and federal agencies, and they benefit us, too."

The local agencies that receive funding from the United Way of Charlevoix are the Bergmann Center, Charlevoix City Recreation, Crooked Tree Girl Scouts, Scenic Trail Boy Scouts, D.A.C. Counseling, Salvation Army, American Red Cross, Camp Daggett, Big Brothers-Big Sisters, Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood and the Area Mental Health Clinic.

Kenney said that campaign workers are still "working hard" collecting funds at several industries and businesses.

Kenney added that contributions from summer residents are starting to arrive in the mail. Because the local board was late in re-organizing letters were not sent to the summer residents until October (at their winter addresses).

Election '79: Mayor, councilmen to be elected; township to act on rezoning

Voters in the City of Charlevoix will elect a mayor and three councilmen Tuesday. And, in addition, decide if the clerk should be elected or appointed.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. Residents who would like to vote absentee have until 2 p.m. Saturday to obtain a ballot. The city will be using its new punch card ballot system in this election. A demonstration will be offered in the county clerk's office at 7:30 p.m. on Friday for those who would like to familiarize themselves with the system prior to voting.

Voters throughout the city will elect a mayor. Incumbent Sam Supernaw is seeking re-election. He is unopposed. Also unopposed are 1st Ward Councilman Jeffrey Porter and 3rd Ward Councilman Earl Muma. No candidates filed for the council seat in the 2nd Ward, currently occupied by Robert Timms.

A city clerk is also to be elected Tuesday, but there are no candidates for the position. An amendment to the City Charter will be on the ballot that would make the clerk an appointed - rather than elected - official. The clerk's duties - keeping minutes at council meetings, signing all ordinances, etc - will also appear on the ballot.

Punch card voting will also be used in a special election in Charlevoix Township on Tuesday, Nov. 13. In that election, voters will be asked if they approve of an amendment to the Charlevoix Township Zoning Ordinance which rezoned 230 acres of Crescent Stone Company (Medusa) property from agricultural and scenic reserve to industrial.

The township board - by a 3-2 vote - approved the rezoning on July 9. Shortly afterwards, however, a petition seeking a referendum was initiated and enough signatures were obtained to put the issue on the ballot.

The 230 acres is south of Bells Bay Road and is contiguous to Medusa owned property in Norwood Township. Medusa plans to use the property for quarrying. Officials say that "future shale reserves are estimated to be adequate in this 230 acre parcel." If Medusa gets the green light to procede, officials say that "more definitive core drillings" will be made at the site to determine the "quality" of the shale reserves.

"Medusa began acquisition of this land several years ago," said Clem Wagner, company office manager. "The land was bought for mining and everyone in the township knew it. It has no other commercial value."

Company officials also say it will be more "economically advantageous" to quarry the shale adajacent to the plant rather than truck it 17 miles from Ellsworth, where Medusa has a quarry.

Residents who oppose the rezoning claim it (quarrying) will add to the noise and dust problems and also adversely affect property value.

"I knew when I purchased my property and built my residence that Medusa was located where it is," said Jerry Puhl at a meeting earlier in the year. "But I never figured on Medusa pulling some political strings and doing a land swap with the DNR which would allow them tu industrialize in my backyard.

"The potential exists here for what I have personally seen happen in other communities where a corporation or utility is allowed to expand opposed only by a few residents and are allowed to keep developing until they completely surround these residences. The people are eventually forced to sell at the price the corporation feels is just value."

Puhl also said he was experiencing problems with his well. Medusa officials contend that "not a single well including Charlevoix Township's own southern water station has suffered water loss because of the quarry."

"If loss is ever proved or even convincingly demonstrated, Medusa will fully compensate this water loss with an alternate source of acceptable supply," officials say.

Of the 230 acres, 20 is zoned scenic reserve. Medusa and the DNR swapped land a few years back with the DNR obtaining 30 acres for Fisherman's Island State Park.

Prior to the township board's approval of the rezoning, the Charlevoix Township Zoning Board and the Charlevoix County Planning Commission had also OK'd the rezoning.

Polls at the township hall will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. The township hall is located at Carpenter and Norwood Roads.

Happy Halloween!

Halloween will be celebrated Wednesday (tonight) in the Charlevoix area. Motorists are asked to keep alert at all times with children out trick-or-treating.

Meanwhile, youngsters in the Charlevoix School District are invited to attend a movie at the Cinema III at 7 p.m. The movie is entitled "The Monster Destroyers."

Rezoning denied

The Charlevoix Planning Commission will recommend to council that a parcel of property on Eaton Street not be rezoned from PUD (planned unit development) to R-4 (multiple).

Developers want to have the 4.47 acres rezoned so a 40 unit condominium can be constructed.

Several area residents attended the commission's meeting and voiced their disapproval on the rezoning.

The Courier has learned the developers are now considering an 18 unit development for the site. Under the present zoning, 18 units would be allowable.

Society to celebrate centennial

The Charlevoix Historical Society will hold its regular monthly meeting on Nov. 6 at 8 p.m. in the Community Room of the First State Bank.

The evening will be a special one, devoted to the celebration of the centennial of the founding of the original society on Nov. 24, 1879.

Members and friends are urged by President W.W. Price to wear old hats or other items of clothing suggesting the past. Refreshments will be served.

Two minute books of the society covering the periods of 1879-1884 and 1903-1911 were found a few years ago in the basement storage area of the Charlevoix Public Library. They provide fascinating glimpses of people and cultural activities in the early life of Charlevoix, and will be reviewed by Mrs. Carl Kohler and Mrs. Edward Shanahan, whose parents were involved in the Charlevoix scene before the turn of the century.

Rosa Nettleton's compilation of news items from the old Charlevoix Sentinel files shows that meetings of the Charlevoix Historical Society were well reported during its early years.

As stated by its founders, the object of the society was "mutual benefit in the study of history, and funds uf the society to be principally devoted to purchase of historical works." Early support was given to establishment of a public library in Charlevoix.

Few records have been found of Charlevoix Historical Society activities after 1911. A document entitled "Articles of Association" was filed in 1918, and the society was featured in the program when the Charlevoix County Homecoming was celebrated in 1935.

It is known that many years of inactivity preceded the incorporation of the Charlevoix Historical Society as presently structured. Anyone who has memorabilia concerning the early years of the society is urged to bring the material to the meeting so that it may be documented for the historical record.

The present objectives of the society are to collect, preserve, store and display articles which reflect the history of the Charlevoix area, something that the founding members of 100 years ago were not concerned with because, in a sense, they were the history.

Free diabetes testing clinic at hospital Nov. 7

A free diabetes testing clinic will be conducted at Charlevoix Area Hospital, Wednesday, Nov. 7, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Diabetes testing is an important way of identifying undiagnosed diabetes and is strongly recommended for anyone over 18. People who are already diagnosed diabetics should not take this test.

Charlevoix Area Hospital is conducting these tests as part of National Diabetes Detection Week in cooperation with the American Diabetes Association. Some 150 hospitals around Michigan will conduct these free tests during the Diabetes Detection Week.

No appointments are necessary to be tested.

Hospital Chief Laboratory Technologist Ralph Corwin explained that people who wish to be tested should be sure to eat a good meal, rich in carbohydrates, starches and sugar two hours before coming to the hospital for the test.

"The meal should be eaten within a 15 minute period," Corwin added.

"Two hours after eating, a person's blood sugar should be at a certain point," the laboratory technologist explained. "If the blood sugar is higher than normal, then there is a suspicion of diabetes.

"Screening results will be sent to the American Diabetic Association and patients who have suspiciously high blood sugar will be notified and told to see their doctor," Corwin said.

He added, "A suspicion does not mean the person positively has diabetes, which is why suspected cases will be referred to their own doctors."

The American Diabetes Association lists the most common symptoms of diabetes as: excessive thirst, frequent urination, blurring visiun, constant hunger, or the slow healing of cuts and scratches."

The national organization also warns, "The disease, however, may be present without any symptoms. People who are over 35, overweight, and blood relatives of a diabetic are particularly urged to take the tests since they are in the 'high risk' group of those most likely to develop diabetes."

Charlevoix Area Hospital encourages people to take advantage of this free testing service.

Uncontrolled diabetes can be dangerous, but the diabetic person who knows about his condition and controls it, can usually lead an active and productive life.

County budget down

The 1980 proposed budget for Charlevoix County amounts to $2,152,131, down $18,594 from the budget adopted for 1979.

A public hearing on the budget is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 31 at 2 p.m. in the Commissioner's Room of the County Building Annex.

Of special note is the cut in anticipated public programs (CETA) re-imbursements from $314,740 to $13,125 (1980). Anticipated income from property taxes is up $153,899 and revenue sharing and other tax sources are also higher than last year.

The proposed budget appears on Page 10.

PIC to help CETA workers

The Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), which has been helping unemployed individuals find jobs in public agencies and providing training programs so they can be prepared for the job market, is embarking on a new program.

The program will be administered by a council called "PIC", for Private Industry Council, and is an attempt to carry CETA to private industry, where eligible unemployed people may be put into jobs and receive career training.

Lee Moerland, who heads the CETA committee on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, told the Courier that the program is designed to provide on-the-job training for unskilled unemployed individuals, and to get the CETA money out where it can do more good.

Moerland is also a member of the 10-county CETA consortium, which administers the CETA program in 10 northwest Michigan counties. "This is something the consortium has been working toward for some time," he added regarding the program.

An East Jordan resident, Walter Thorsen, has been named to PIC, representing Charlevoix County. He spent many years operating a small manufacturing plant and has been involved in vocational training programs with the Intermediate School District, so he will be able to "talk the language" of the program.

Funding for PIC will come from a new title of the CETA program and will continue through 1982, when it will be re-evaluated. In effect, PIC funds will be used by employers to pay employees working under the PIC program.

"When we talk about this being a program for private industry, we're not talking just about manufacturing plants," Moerland explained. "Even a private business like a grocery store could be eligible."

It is expected that the PIC program will get under way in the next few weeks.

Selling Your House by Gene Steele
THE INVISIBLE HOMEOWNER
Most homeowners are really tied up in their homes. They're proud of the improvements they've made. They're so involved that they become somewhat defensive if anyone criticizes the house.
Prospective buyers are looking for a home, period. They are not interested in the fact that anyone lived there before. Nothing personal. The house matters, and that's all.
In fact, the owner often gets in the way of communication – between the prospect couple, or between the prospects and the real estate agent who brought them. They won't criticize for fear of hurting the owner's feelings; they won't show enthusiasm for fear of hurting their bargaining position.
It's most effective if prospects can be shown through a house when the owner is not there at all. They are free to comment, ask questions, speak their minds.
You can help insure a good sale by letting us show your house in the most favorable circumstances to qualified prospects.

Charlevoix Yesterday

This is how the Horace Harsha house at 103 State Street appeared in the 1890's. The Harshas were members of the early Charlevoix Historical Society and meetings of the society were often held in their spacious home, as well as in others in the city. Recently willed to the Charlevoix Historical Society by their granddaughter, Anne M. Harsha, the house is the future home of the Charlevoix Historical Museum. 'So Long Joey!' featured film Sunday

"So Long, Joey!" is the title of the film which is to be shown at the Community Church of God on Sunday, Nov. 4 at 7 p.m., according to Rev. Walter G. Hastings, pastor. The public is cordially invited to see the film.

"So Long, Joey!" documents the true life story of Dave Boyer who adopted the stage name Joey Stevens in order to pursue a career in the entertainment world. Gifted with unusual musical talent, Dave, the son of Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Boyer, sang at gospel meeting until the age 15 and then turned "pro" and began working as a singing saxophonist in nearby night clubs. It was at age 17 that he changed his name to Joey Stevens and signed on as Master of Ceremonies at Atlantic City's "500" Club. Soon, on a first name basis with most of the top flight stars of nightclub circuit, Dave's career boomed while his personal life became a nightmare of alcoholism and drug addiction.

In a drunken stupor, he wandered the streets of Marietta, Pennsylvania, contemplating suicide, when the blurred view of a little old church caused him to cry for Salvation to the Savior.

Dave's current ministry is broad in scope. A gifted vocalist, he is also a superb saxophonist and weaves his talents into a program that penetrates the hearts of his audiences.

Billy Zeoli, Gospel Films' President, and the Executive Producer of "So Long, Joey!", in releasing information concerning the new film said:

"There are multitudes of young Christians in North America who need to understand what happened to Dave Boyer for they too are rebelling, thinking that the world offers more than Jesus Christ. In this film, we point up the fact that it is far better to be kept from the type of life Dave lived than to be rescued from it. We believe that countless numbers of young lives will be won for Christ through this powerful message of salvation which Dave Boyer's life illustrates."

The film was shot on location in Eastern Pennsylvania and in Atlantic City. The music sung in the film by Dave Boyer was arranged by Ronn Huff who conducted the London Philharmonic Orchestra in recording sessions for the film. "So Long, Joey!" is a release by Gospel Films, Inc. of Muskegon, Michigan.

Ottawas to receive cash settlement

By Sara Gay Dammann

The first cash settlement of Indian Claims in Michigan, since 1911 – checks for approximately $500 each – will be sent to the descendants of the Grand River Band of Ottawas, before Christmas.

This first distribution of Indian Claims money will be followed by more settlements, over the next several years. A total of $58 million will eventually be distributed among Michigan's Indians. The Indian population of Michigan is approximately 20,000.

According to Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) officials in Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, there are about 2900 living descedants of the Grand River Band, which originally lived below the Grand River but was forced northwards after signing the Treaty of 1821.

The final distribution of the Grand River Claim, which now amounts to about $1.7 million, marks the end of 30 years of litigation.

In 1948 Congress passed the Indian Claims Act and established an Indian Claims Commission to handle cases for Indians who had sold land to the federal government at prices below the going ate of the priod – the 19th Century.

In the Grand River case the Indians showed that under the Treaty of 1821 they were paid about 90 cents an acre, but neighboring land was sold for between $2.50 and $3.00 an acre.

One of the first Michigan Indians to encourage pursuing this ease was Levy McClellan of Bay Shore. When the Claims Act passed he convinced his son-in-law Robert Dominic of Petoskey to take the job of speaking for northern Michigan Indians. Robert Dominic and his wife Waunetta, who continued after her husband's death, did most of the leg work involved in proving the Indians' case.

The Dominics founded the Northern Michigan Ottawa Association, to pursue two claims – the Grand River Claim and one involving the Treaty of 1836. The second case amounts to about $12 million today and involves many more people.

Mrs. Dominic said in a recent interview that after the Grand River Band sold their land and moved north, the federal government bought up more Indians land north of the Grand River, in 1836, thus forcing the Grand River people, along with many others, to move once again.

Today descendants of the Grand River Band, and other Michigan bands, are scattered throughout the state and even Kansas and Oklahoma where many were forced to move during the period of Indian Relocation.

Descendants of people who signed the second treaty – The Treaty of 1836 – include members of the Bay Mills and Sault Ste. Marie Tribes, and some 5,000 non-reservation Indians, including the Grand River Band.

Distribution of the $12 million settlegent for the Treaty of 1836 is delayed until some agreement or compromise can be reached between the non-reservation people who want distribution bmited to individuals at least ¼ Indian and reservation people who argue that people up to ¼ Indian should be eligible.

To establish their claim's legitimacy Mrs. Dominic recalls "we wore out four old jalopies driving all over Michigan in the 1960's, identifying descendants of different bands.

"We studied land valuations for a 10 year period before and after the treaties," she said.

When the ease went to the Indian Claims Commission, the commissioners agreed with the Indians and their lawyers that 90 cents an acre was "unconscionable consideration."

Settlement was made at $1.25 an acre, according to Mrs. Dominic.

Robert Van Alystine, a spokesman for the BIA, explained that the BIA is working closely with the Northern Michigan Ottawa Association to identify legitimate descendants of the Grand River Band, using an Indian roll of 1910 – the Durant Roll.

The BIA established a cut-off date of October 18, 1976, for acceptance as a legitimate descendant of the Grand River Band.

Thus people who applied and were approved on October 18, 1976, will receive their checks. Money for those under 18 will be held in trust, accumulating interest until their 18th birthday. Heirs of any accepted descendants who died after October 18, 1976, will inherit those claims.

The BIA says that the money people receive in settlement of claims is not considered income. It is not taxable and is not to be considered income by agencies providing financial assistance, from social services, social security to educational grants.

Other descendants of Michigan Indian bands, including Hurons, Potawatomies, and Chippewas, will share in the $58 million settlements, which will be distributed over the next several years, according to the BIA.

Sara Bricker and Band Director Dave Catron.

Bricker marches to beat of MSU band

Sara Bricker of East Jordan started marching with the Michigan State University Marching Band this fall.

The 275 member band, along with two drum majors, two feature twirlers and a 33 member flag corps, has been on campus since early September preparing for the 1979 football season.

Band membership is open to any MSU student who can meet the demanding musicial and marching standards. Although many of the band members major in music, nearly every department of the university is represented by the marchers.

The Spartan Marching Band has already performed at four football games (including a trip to Notre Dame. The band will perform at MSU's final home game in addition to a Detroit Lions game at the Pontiac Silverdome.

The marching bandsmen are under the leadership of Director David Catron and Stanley DeRusha, director of MSU's band program.

Bricker, a member of the flag corps, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bricker. She is a June graduate of Boyne City High School. She is a freshman studying instrumental music.

Sloop winner

The 20 foot Sassy Sloop sail boat – donated to the Park Stage Committee by First State Bank – will be given away at the Charlevoix-Boyne City football game Friday night.

Committee Chairman Clarence Odmark reports that nearly 200 tickets have been sold. Odmark said a "concerted" effort is being made this week to increase ticket sales to 400. Funds raised from the sale of tickets will be used for the expansion of the stage in East Park.

Appoint clerk

If you are a voter in the City of Charlevoix, there is little reason to get exeited about Tuesday's election. Mayor Sam Supernaw, 1st Ward Counellman Jeffrey Porter and 3rd Ward Councilman Earl Muma are running unopposed. And in the 2nd Ward, well, whoever gets the most write-in votes will win.

But there is an interesting amendment to the City Charter on the ballot that would make the clerk an appointed offical rather than an elected one. We think this should be approved.

Really, when you think about it, why should the clerk be elected? The clerk's main duties are to keep minutes at council meetings, sign all ordinances passed by council, sign checks, organize an election and work with the comptroller on monthly reports.

In recent elections, nobody has sought the office and council has ended up appointing a clerk. And, really, that should be council's decision. We elect a mayor and council to represent us. Why not give them the authority to appoint a clerk? They appoint the city manager. And, politically speaking, the city manager is far more influential than a city clerk.

Solving the energy problem

Editor:

The oil industry promises that they will solve the energy problem if they get enough money. Just trust them. Whether they will solve the problem of the oil industry, or the consumer, isn't clear.

The federal government admits that the oil industry will be getting windfall profits, but that is supposed to be all right if the government gets a windfall profits tax. The government needs it to solve the energy problem, just trust them, the President says with a straight face. Well, not a straight face, a smile. If automobiles got as much mileage out of oil as the President has gotten political mileage out of that smile our automobiles would be close to perpetual motion.

Can't get work

Editor:

Back in 1967 Medusa was officially opened. Many families had to move from one state to another in order to start the new plant in Charlevoix. Most of these families had to leave all their friends and relatives behind to begin a new life for themselves in a new town and small community.

Since 1972 there has not been a son or daughter hired at Medusa from the families who moved here originally from Wisconsin. What about us? We, who would like to follow in our father's footsteps, have been refused numerous times.

Are they forgetting us? Don't they know that if it wasn't for our move that the plant would not have opened in time! Are they forgetting all the hardships we had to go through the first few years we were here?.

I, myself, am one of these sons or daughters who has been refused work on a full time basis. It's about time that the Medusa plant in Charlevoix realizes what we went through the past few years.

We, who have fathers working there, cannot ever get a job, yet they hire people who have been in this community first. We are from the community now, why do they refuse us?

Jobs versus environment

Editor:

It is only logical to assume that an individual or company wishing to purchase property for some type of development does so on an option basis. Once it is determined by the different boards (Public Health Department, Zoning, etc.) that the plans for the use of this property are permissible, then the prospective owner proceeds with the purchase. This isn't how the Crescent Stone Company (Medusa) operates, however.

Only nine years ago (not 50 or 75) the Crescent Stone Company purchased 230 acres in Charlevoix Township and additional acreage in Norwood Township. This land was and is zoned Scenic and Agricultural. The purchaser had mining planned and now they are manipulating the Charlevoix Township Board and Zoning Board into rezoning the property to Industrial. They didn't make a deposit with an option to buy - pending investigation as to possible land useage. They bought the property outright! Now, nine years later, they are trying to tell us they are going to have mining rights and a quarry.

Medusa has made it known that if the referendum vote is negative, they will see us in court. That makes it pretty obvious that the people's desires are of no importance here. Medusa plans to get what they want or there will be court action. I say let them get stuck with their white elephant.

It is deplorable when a situation such as this arises. This company is tearing up a beautiful community - pitting brother against brother and husband against wife - not to mention the countryside. It is interesting, too, to note the intimidation tatics that are being used. The businessmen whose names appeared on the petitions in opposition of another quarry, are finding that their businesses are being boycotted. In the midst of all this, there are still those who insist Medusa is a good neighbor. Money seems to be the main issue here, and this certainly isn't the Lord's way. If we allow this to happen, the whole town can sing Tennessee Ernie Ford's words, "I owe my soul to the Company's Store."

Another item that the corporation fails to mention is their Industrial Facilities Exemption. This gives them an annual 50 percent tax break for 12 years and, in turn, increases the tax burden on the residents in the township. This tax savings will show up in the profit and loss statement as increased dividends to the stockholders. This means that local wealth is leaving the community.

The corporation's supporters are trying to make this an emotional issue. As a result, it is dividing our community into a division that we cannot afford. Charlevoix is too attractive a town to allow it to become divided in an issue pitting jobs against environment.

Nearly $2,000 was collected Thursday night by volunteers of United Way in a door-to-door campaign in the city. Here, Co-chairmen Dick Kenney (second from right) and Annie Ifufford (right) receive an envelope from two volunteers. "I would like to thank all the volunteers and donors," said Kenney. "They made this (door-to-door campaign) a success." All told, United Way has collected $7,000 thus far.

Another war

A few years ago, certainly not niore than 10, I had an opportunity to visit Detroit while the Motor City was in the throes of one of its notorious "gas wars."

The price regular gasoline in Northern Michigan at the time was in the neighborhood of 25 cents a gallon. Yet I was surprised as I neared Detroit to find the price drupping steadily, judging from the big, free-standing signs in front on service stations on Telegraph Road. Twenty-four cents a gallon. Twenty-three. Twenty-two. Twenty-one.

I filled up at 20-cents a gallon and then was chagrined when I reached the city proper to find gasnline selling for as little as 17 cents a gallun.

Of course, it was all in good fun — a fine example of America's cut-throat, laissez-faire economics. One big oil company wanted to drive a competitor off a certain corner, so it dropped its prices and pieked up the slack elsewhere in the country. The competitor, not to be outdone, found hidden resources somewhere and dropped the price even lower.

I suppose some stations eventually were forced out of business and the price of gasoline bounced back to where it should have been all along. But as I say, it was all in good fun. The fellow who eut his prices the most for the longest period of time emerged the winner and the rest of us benefitted from lower gasobine prices while the battle was raging. It's the American way.

Today, however, the United States and the rest of the industrnlized world are caught up in another kind of gasoline war, this time to see how high the price ean be driven before our various economie systems collapse.

Big oil companies suddenly have discovered that there is more profit in working with each other than against each other.

As a result, the price of gasoline in the United States has gone up just about a penny a week since the first of the year. And last week we were treated to a skein of third-quarter profit reports from the big oil companies that was enough to turn the stomach.

Sixty-two percent for Phillips Petroleum; 81.1 percent for Getty Oil Co.; 100 percent-plus increases for most of the major oil companies; and a whopping 211 percent increase for Texaco Inc., the nation's third largest refiner.

The news, of course, raised the hackles of consumers across the country. We has been led to believed that the increased cost of fuel was due chiefly to higher prices of foreign oil. But now it is evident that a good share of the increase is going directly into corporate coffers in the United States.

It is no longer very smart to blame the Arabs for our problems, when a good share of the blame lies right here at home.

In attempting to ease the impact of their outrageous profit statements, most of the oil companies have been careful to point out that most of the increase has come from foreign — not domestic — operations. I guess it's supposed to give you a warm feeling knowing that the big shots in the oil industry are applying the screws more tightly to little foreigners than they are to their fellow Americans.

President Carter and the Congress howled all last week about tightening the windfall profits tax — which is no solution at all. The last thing we need is another big infusion of tax dollars into the federal bureaucracy.

What we do need is a voluntary and substantial rollback of petroleum prices by the oil industry so that individual Americans will have more money of their own to invest in the economy.

The only alternative is nationalization of the oil industry until its rampant greed is brought under control.

A lesson to be learned

Steve Andrews

Wayne, the third largest county in the nation, is in a financial mess that has resulted in payless paydays for thousands of county employees, massive layuffs, and huge debts to employee medical insurance and pension funds. The county's deficit this year is at least $18.2 million and could reach a staggering $50 million, according to state auditors.

How did the county get into this mess? By paying employees more than their private industry counterparts — cooks in the county jail earn $15,540 to $18,029 compared to well under $10,000 to $16,120 in the private scetor, for instance; by refusing to trim $50 million in optional programs not required by state law; by rejecting their Board of Auditors' recommendation to inerease taxes 3 mills to raise $42 million; and by laying off only 31 people when the Board of Auditors recommended laying off 500 to balance the budget.

These actions were compounded by the refusal of Governor Milliken and the State Municipal Finaaee Commission to release millions of dollars in new state aid, and by withholding borrowing authority which could have prevented the county's cash shortage.

In addition, the Governor veloed $5.7 million for the state take-over of probation services in Wayne County and operations of the Circuit and Probate Courts. The Finance Commission refused to permit the county to borrow $22 million against next year's property tax collections.

In short, the message to the county from the Governor and the state has been: no county reform, no aid.

Against this backdrop, a legislative wuk force has been meeting to shape a proposal to aid the crippled county government to help itself.

The Governor has insisted that he will not approve any money for the county until voters in Wayne have the opportunity to choose a new form of government. The task force has recommended the establishment of a county executive form uf government, similar to that in Oakland and Bay Counties, although critics claim that such an office is too weak since it lacks veto and budget proposing powers.

Last week, the Speaker of the House stated that neither party in the Legislature strongly supports reorganization of the county. Republican Leader William R. Bryant, a former member of the Wayne County Commission, took strong issue with that claim and said that failure to pass task force recommendations on Wayne County could in no way be blamed on Republican reluctance.

One of the complaints lodged often against the current Wayne County government is that it is too large, has too many employees, is inept and, some have suggested, corrupt. I support the Governor's position in refusing to help until changes are made, as there is no point in continuing to support the status quo when there is no responsibility or accountability, and just isn't working.

Too many dollars have been wasted in the past, and I would very much like to see an end to the perennial requests from Wayne County to the state to get "bailed out". These subsidies must end and Wayne County must take care of itself, and only in this way will the other areas of the state be able to receive an equitable share of state revenues, once the lion's share stops going to Detroit.

Outstate Michigan is tired of supporting Wayne County, and I favor a proposal that will give the voters a choice between a strong elected county executive or a strong appointed county manager. Hopefully, this form of government would result in improved functioning and accountability for the County, with a focus for responsibility.

Wayne County has come to the state for help in straightening out its serious financial blunders. Other counties throughout the state have wondered if they, too, will one day come under the dictates of a legislative task force. The answer is clearly no – as long as they are fiscally responsible. Wayne County has demonstrated its failure in this area, and I believe that now that their ship is sinking, it is the Legislature's duty to force them to build a better boat.

Not the time to decontrol gasoline

Bob Davis

This week the U.S. House of Representatives reversed an earlier decision to immediately deregulate gasoline. I supported the move to retain controls on gasoline for several reasons.

It is generally accepted that the price of gasoline is going to go up, with or without government regulation. Under current controls the price of gas, at the service station pump, can only be increased to reflect inflation and higher prices of crude oil. My concern is that, without regulation, the price would go up higher and faster with the shortages of gasoline we are now facing.

Another concern I have, especially considering a more rural area such as ours, is that higher prices would not necessarily force people to use less gasoline. People in Northern Michigan HAVE to drive from home to work, or from home to the grocery store, and often have to drive further than people in less rural areas do. We have little or no public transportation to fall back on. Many peuple already own inefficient automobiles, and with the current state of the economy, cannot afford to buy new compact cars.

Without some safeguards, non-branded independent service station owners and owners of small rural gas stations might face the risk of not getting gas supplies from the big producers. If gasoline were decontrolled, these small businessmen would not have any guarantee of supplies.

Although I generally support the idea of deregulating industry, I do not believe this is the time to lift all controls from all levels of the gasoline distribution industry.

PRESERVING OUR RECREATION PROJECTS

The Land and Water Conservation Fund is very important to Northern Michigan because it provides money to communicate for recreation projects.

It is especially important to communities which must work within comparatively small budgets. It provides an opportunity for residents of these communities to have access to nearby facilities – an important point considering the cost and availability of gasoline. The program also encourages increased employment opportunities for local residents through the operation and maintenance of these recreational facilities.

Earlier this year, in a muve I vehemently opposed, the House cut $159 million from the L&WCF budget for the 1980 fiscal year. When the Senate passed its version of the budget last week, they restored the funding to the original level.

A conference committee is slated to take up this budget bill before the end of the month, and I have written to the Chairman of the committee urging him to accept the Senate funding level. I am hopeful that Congress will decide to retain all of the services provided by this important program.

Bob Davis represents the 11th District in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Meet Charlevoix

Pat Ranger grew up in Charlevoix, went away to study at three colleges, married a Charlevoix man, bore four children, and finally, in 1972, returned to Charlevoix with her family. This week she tells the Courier about her present-day interests and what she is doing to take her place in an ever-changing world.

COURIER: What was your maiden name?
RANGER: Pat Ratigan. My parents are Bill and Eleanore Ratigan.
COURIER: Where did you go to school?
RANGER: After I graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1954, I went to Sarah Lawrence College in Bronxville, N. Y. and majored in social science. I spent my junior year at the University of Paris and graduated from Sarah Lawrence in 1958. Then I went to the University of Michigan for graduate work in political science and received an M.A. in 1964. Alvin Ranger was doing graduate work there, too, and eventually we were married. I was a teaching fellow and research associate in the School of Public Administration and also worked in the Survey Research Center.
COURIER: Now you have children in college, don't you?
RANGER: Yes, we have three in college. Arthur is a junior at Ferris, majoring in surveying; Connie is a sophomore at the University of Michigan, majoring in math and computer science; and Robert is a freshman in the School of Engineering at Michigan. The youngest, William, is a sophomore at Charlevoix High School.
COURIER: How do you spend your time, now that most of your family is away at college?
RANGER: I'm teaching at North Central College in Petoskey and am active in the Women's Resource Center.
COURIER: What do you teach?
RANGER: A political science course that is really an introduction to American government, an introductory course in sociology, a course in anthropology, a course in marriage and the family, and sometimes a course in women's studies.
COURIER: How does a two-year college like North Central compare to the four-year colleges you went to?
RANGER: I'm excited about the community college. It offers endless opportunities by making education available to everyone. The evening program and off-campus program in East Jordan, Gaylord, Cheboygan, and Inland Lakes bring together non-traditional students from so many different backgrounds -- people like housewives and others who have daytime jobs. Even in our daytime program, some of them will come for a semester, drop out, then come back. They are all doing well. The availability of the campus makes this possible. Also, women are coming back for training -- it's an economic factor. They are all very serious and have goals in mind.
COURIER: Where do most of North Central's students come from?
RANGER: From the surrounding five-county area. We have a lot from Charlevoix. It's economically advantageous to go to college near home because all the credits can be transferred. We even have a "3 plus 1" program with Lake Superior State College, where a student can attend North Central for three years, then go to Lake Superior for one year and receive a degree.
COURIER: You're vice-president of the Women's Resource Center. What's that all about?
RANGER: I'm full of admiration for the Center and proud to be vice-president. They are doing so much to help women in the area.
COURIER: Like what?
RANGER: To mention a few things - personal counseling, discussion groups, classes on anything from money management to divorce, whatever women in the area want. We have a new program in which we are reaching out into the counties for women of low income who have only one car in the family and who are left at home with babies all day long.
COURIER: Where are these Women's Resource activities held?
RANGER: We use the college facilities, classrooms, and su-forth, but the classes are separate from those offered by the college. We also have offered courses in other places, in Charlevoix, for instance. We get a lot of support from Charlevoix.
COURIER: Since you are obviously interested in problems of women, what do you think are some of the greatest problems facing women today?
RANGER: Equality -- economic equality, legal equality, social equality. We need to have more women representing us at all levels of society, in management, politics, medicine -- all the professions. Women are receiving a lot of recognition, but the struggle is intense because women have to compete with other minorities. They are under-represented.
COURIER: Alvin is in business in Charlevoix, isn't he?
RANGER: Yes, he has the Ranger Engineering Company. He also does some teaching at North Central.
COURIER: When do you see each other?
RANGER: Sometimes it's like ships passing in the night.
COURIER: Do you have any hobbies?
RANGER: I like gardening and the opera. I've had a community garden out by the airport for several years. This year was a good one for cauliflower and cabbage.

"This is a clever book. It will be great for introducing a child to the hospital," Mrs. Esther Carey, R.N., of the nursing staff said of the coloring books donated to the Charlevoix Area Hospital for distribution to children who are admitted to the hospital. The coloring books, complete with crayons, were contributed by Clarence A. Oilmark, president of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club. The books were made available to the local club by the Kiwanis of Michigan Foundation.

Coloring book helps child adjust to hospital

By Fran Martin

The story of Buford Bear and his experiences as he enters the hospital as a patient is told in a clever coloring book donated to the Charlevuix Area Hospital by the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club.

The books, complete with a small box uf crayons, are to be given to young patients as they enter the pediatrics department. By reading the story of Buford or having it read to the child, he or she learns of all the things he or she will experience from the time he visits the admission desk until he leaves the hospital. Illustrated are clever drawings, complete with faces, are instruments and "things" that describe themselves to the little patient. The list includes everything from the thermometer and hypodermic syringe and needle and other instruments used by the doctor to care for the children to pictures of all the people he will meet... the doctors, nurses and uther personnel including the cook. It also introduces children to the various departments.

In presenting the books, Clarence Odmark, president of the Charlevoix Club, explained that the books were made available by the Kiwanis of Michigan Foundation. Since 1922 the Foundation has been contributing funds to recreation and rehabilitation programs designed to help children adjust to the hospital and thus respond faster to medical and surgical procedures.

The preparation of the coloring book for distribution in all hospitals in Michigan is the expansion of the Special Community Projects sponsored by the Kiwanis. The projects include the Herman H. Meyer Project at Northern Michigan Hospitals in Petoskey. The others are located at the C.S. Mott Hospital for Children in Ann Arbor and the Mary Free Bed Hospital and Rehabilitation in Grand Rapids.

CHARLEVOIX TOWNSHIP – TUESDAY NOVEMBER 13

A VERY SPECIAL ELECTION

The question on the ballot is whether to re-zone 230 acres to permit the Medusa Cement Company to make use of shale deposits. But the real issue goes much beyond that.

A vote YES is a vote for jobs . . . for increased economic activity and Tax Contributions by Charlevoix County's largest taxpayer.

A vote NO would be a slap at industry—a gesture of support for the faction which seeks to destroy the community's industrial base and leave it solely dependent upon the resort trade.

Before you make your decision, please keep in mind that Medusa accounts for $89,000,000 worth of economic activity for the Charlevoix Community—including $18,000,000 in local wages, salaries and proprietor income.

Since 1967 Medusa has contributed $5,341,442 in tax payments to Charlevoix area governmental units. Medusa accounts for 49.5% of the township tax rolls. Charlevoix Township taxes in 1978 were shared as follows: Comb. School, 74.1%; Int. School District, 3.20%; Township Service, 8%, County Service, 11.98%; Grandvue Medical Care Facility, 2.65%.

Some people have asked: Does Medusa really need the rezoned 230 acres?

The answer is a definite YES. Here's why.

Portland cement is the most widely used construction material in the world because of cement concrete's low cost. This low cost is due to plant and energy efficiency and abundant nearby reserves of raw materials.

Before Medusa commuted $50 million to the current conversion program TWO IMPORTANT CONSIDERATIONS concerned the rezoning of this 230 acre parcel located in Charlevoix Township contiguous to other Medusa-owned reserves in Norwood Township.

CONSIDERATION #1: SHALE RESERVES

Shale along with limestone and sand is a key raw material in the manufacture of Medusa-Charlevoix Cement. Currently they haul shale from their Ellsworth Quarry which is 17 miles away requiring a round trip of 34 miles.

Their normal shale needs during 1978 for example required over 4,000 round trips between Ellsworth and Charlevoix. These double-tandem trucks are driven by courteous and competent drivers. Despite an excellent safety record, those trucks are wide and long, most casual motorists would just as soon not pass them, drive behind them or in front of them.

Even more important than this SAFETY FACTOR are the energy and maintenance costs required by these huge trucks to make over 4,000 round trips. Since 1975, Medusa has experienced constant rate increases because of rising fuel and maintenance cost. Mining shale adjacent to their plant has major economic advantages.

CONSIDERATION #2: ESTABLISHING THE QUALITY OF RESERVES WITHIN A REASONABLE SCHEDULE

As part of the comprehensive study which preceded Medusa's $50 million commitment to the Charlevoix plant conversion, future shale reserves were estimated to be adequate in this 230 acre parcel. In order to formulate a more detailed operational plan, it is now necessary to determine more precisely the QUALITY of these reserves within a reasonable time frame. This time frame has already been upset by the November 13 referendum. Such unfortunate delays have to be considered in establishing a reasonable schedule. Medusa knows from long experience that this schedule cannot be rushed because of these required time-consuming actions:

STEP #1—Rezone 230 acres
STEP #2—More Definitive Core Drills for the formulation of a Detailed Operational Plan
STEP #3—Secure Permit from Charlevoix Township
STEP #4—Secure Mining Permit from State of Michigan
STEP #5—Prepare land to be mined
STEP #6—Start Mining Development
STEP #7—Start Mining

In summary, Medusa needs this rezoning now to fulfill two urgent commitments to energy conservation and utilization of shale reserves.

Rayders drop two conference games, Petoskey is next

Charlevoix's chances to repeat as champs of the Michigan-Huron Shores in girls basketball took a turn for the worse last week.

The Rayders lost to St. Ignace on Tuesday, 86-39, and to Boyne City on Thursday, 69-54. Coach Toni Felter's squad now has three loses in conference play.

Playing without leading scorer Melinda Klooster, Charlevoix was no match for the Saints, who shared the title with the Rayders last year. St. Ignace grabbed a 17-8 first quarter lead and then expanded it to 34-19 at half and 64-30 after three quarters.

Lisa Pischner had 12 points for the Rayders and Mel Kerridge added 10. For the Saints, who appear to be the team to beat this season, Sandy Halberg, Glenda Pemble and Savard had 14 points each.

Even without Klooster in the lineup it appeared the Rayders would get by Boyne City. Playing inspired ball in the first half, Charlevoix bolted to a 16-8 first quarter lead. It was 30-24 at half.

But then the roof caved in. The Ramblers - using a full court press to bother the Rayders - outscored Charlevoix 24-8 in the third quarter to take a 48-38 lead. Boyne City kept the pressure on in the final eight minutes and Charlevoix could not get any closer.

Teresa Noirot had one of her best offensive games of the year with 17 points. Pischner added 12 points and Kerridge 11. For Boyne City, Penny Grunow tallied 28 points, Becky Aimesbury had 14 and Nancy Lentz 11.

The Rayders get back in action Tuesday when they host Petoskey. Charlevoix will be out to atone for an earlier loss to the Northmen.

Charlevoix's junior varsity will also be trying to get back on the winning track. The Rayders lost to St. Ignace, 46-16, and to Boyne City, 54-24. In the Boyne City loss, Laura Kemp had 15 points for Charlevoix.

Charlevoix hosts Ramblers in finale

Cheboygan will be out to claim its second straight Michigan-Huron Shores Conference football crown Friday when the Chiefs host St. Ignace.

Cheboygan is undefeated in six conference games. Overall, the Chiefs are 8-0 and a win over St. Ignace would give Cheboygan its second perfect season in a row. The Chiefs have already clinched a share of the title by virtue of a 35-0 whitewash of Boyne City Friday night. Cheboygan has won 18 straight. St. Ignace was the last team to beat the Chiefs.

Meanwhile, Charlevoix will be trying to stay out of the cellar when the Rayders host Boyne City on Friday. The Rayders will be out to snap a five game losing streak. Charlevoix is 1-5 in the conference and 3-5 overall. Boyne City is winless is eight games.

Last week Charlevoix lost to St. Ignace, 20-6. The Saints scored in the second quarter after the Rayders fumbled at their own four yard line. From there, Steve Campbell took the pigskin into the endzone to give St. Ignace a 6-0 advantage.

That's they way it stood until the third quarter when the Saints broke the game open with two touchdowns. Larry Peters scored on a one yard run and Wayne Therrian tallied from 11 yards out. After Therrian scored, Peters passed to Wade Huskey for a two point conversion.

Charlevoix got on the scoreboard in the fourth quarter when Nick Anderson ran 10 yards for a score.

Anderson finished with 53 yards on the ground. On defense, Jerry Sladek had 17 tackles and Anderson had 11.

Concert attracts 500

The Northwest Shrine Club band concert - held in Charlevoix earlier this month - was attended by approximately 500 spectators.

In the absence of Potentate Bowerman, Nathan Tuckham, Past Potentate, accepted a $3,000 check to assist the Burned and Crippled Children's Fund. To help assist and meet rising costs, the Northwest Shrine Club donated $500 to the Saladin Million Dollar Band.

The hard working Shriners exceeded their goal of $13,000 by $200 this year. Public participation at the concert was "greatly appreciated," organizers said.

Bob Alger (left) and Greg Krueger are two former Charlevoix High athletes on Ferris State College's 1979 football team. However, both are backing the Bulldogs from the sidelines after suffering early season injuries. Alger, a senior free safety and co-captain, injured his right knee in the first game of the season against St. Joseph's (Ind.), and has been ruled out for the season, even though corrective surgery was done and rehabilitation procedures have started. Krueger, sophomore tight end, sustained an arm injury during a practice session and has been ruled out indefinitely.

Greene wins Larry McBride Sportsmanship Trophy

John Greene has been named the recipient of the Larry McBride Sportsmanship trophy for 1979 James Willis, Charlevoix Softball Commissioner, has announced.

The trophy has been given annually to the softball player in the Charlevoix Softball League for his contribution to the sport and his personification of good sportsmanship.

The trophy is given in memory of Larry McBride, a 1964 graduate of the Charlevoix High School where he was an outstanding pole-vaulter and all-around sports figure. Under the tutelage of the late S.E. 'Irish' Coleman, he set pole vault records in the state that stood for many years. In addition he was also active in the city recreation program where he received recognition for his ability and his sportsmanship. He died 1967 as the result of injuries received in a highway accident in which his parents were killed.

Softball officials annually select the recipient of the trophy.

Greene, is a 1976 graduate of the Charlevoix High School where he lettered in all major sports. He is presently a senior in the Pre-Med program at Michigan State University. During the summer he played with Erber Auto in the Charlevoix Softball League. He is the son of Mrs. Camille Greene.

JV's victorious, 14-6

Two fourth quarter touchdowns propelled the Charlevoix Rayder's to a 14-6 victory over St. Ignace Thursday in junior varsity football.

The Saints had grabbed a 6-0 lead in the second quarter by virtue of a 60 yard pass play. But the Rayder offense awakened in the final eight minutes of play.

Charlevoix scored after just 40 seconds had elapsed in the fourth quarter when Tim Krueger carried the pigskin across the goal line from two yards out. A 20 yard pass from Mark Morgan to Keith Bales set-up the score. Jeff Trimper passed to Bales for the two point conversion to give the Rayders an 8-6 advantage.

Minutes later, the Rayders put together a long sustained drive of 70 yards. Morgan scored the touchdown on a one yard run. The conversion failed.

Glen's Save-Share reaches $500,000

Keith Catt, senior vice president of Glen's Market, has announced that Glen's - through its Save-Share program - has now shared over $500,000 with community organizations and groups.

Glen's Save-Share program, started in 1972, was established to enable community organizations and groups to earn money for projects that would help improve the communities in which they live. Glen's has a store in the Captain's Corner shopping center in Charlevoix.

Any group can register for the program at Glen's. To participate simply save the green register tapes, add them up and then turn them in and share one percent of the qualified total.

Just a few groups and organizations that have collected money through the program include the Charlevoix Co-Op Nursery, Charlevoix Symphony Band, Northern Michigan Shriners and the Charlevoix Humane Society.

Looking for X-Mas gift?

The public is invited to the pre-Christmas showing at the Showcase Gift Shop in the lobby at the Charlevoix Area Hospital on Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 7 and 8.

The invitation has been issued by the Women's Guild of the Hospital which operates the gift shop for the convenience of the patients and their visitors and as a fund-raising project.

"Keeping in mind that the family pocketbook is being strained as a result of the economy, we have been very conservative in stocking the gift shop for the Christmas season this year" Mrs. William Fochtman and Mrs. Gordon Freedman, co-chairpersons of the project said in announcing the showing.

"We have planned gift items of every description for every member of the family. We have also included little gifts for the home. In fact, we think you'll find gift items not seen elsewhere" Mrs. Fochtman said.

"We've cornered the market on stocking stuffers" Mrs. Freedman added. "If you'll visit the shop anytime between 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. Wednesday or Thursday you'll see what we mean."

"We can also boast that we have the largest supply of teddy bears of every description outside Teddy-Bear-ville. You might say we have a complete zoo collection of cuddly animals, most of them in the size youngsters like best...the kind they can carry around and take to bed with them," she continued.

The Women's Guild of the Charlevoix Area Hospital is a service organization dedicated to serving the hospital and its patients. It is presently raising funds to underwrite its pledge of $15,000 to be paid over a five-year period toward the hospital's expansion and renovation project. In addition, the Guild supplies puppets and other soft toys for patients in the pediatrics department, layettes for patients who need them and does volunteer work at the hospital such as delivering mail and serving trays at mealtime. It operates a television service to patients' rooms and through the years has raised thousands of dollars toward the purchase of equipment.

Each year it offers scholarships to high school graduates entering the field of nursing or a related health field.

"Your support of the pre-Christmas showing at the Showease at the hospital next Wednesday and Thursday will also be considered your support of the hospital, one of the county's most vital facilities" Mrs. William Squire of Boyne City, Guild president, said in conclusion.

GEMWISE

A WEEKLY FASHION-FACTS-FICTION COLUMN

John Reusch

CLEARING THE CONFUSION

In ancient times the name topaz was given to any yellow gemstone because differences of color and appearance were all the people could recognize. As the sciences of geology and mineralogy developed, topaz was separated from other yellow stones as a distinct mineral species ... and eventually scientists discovered that it also occurred in other colors.

The confusion surrounding topaz has persisted through the ages, although it has taken different directions. A 1680 carat gemstone once enjoyed its place in the Portugese Crown Jewels as the Braganza Diamond. It was later discovered to be a colorless topaz. On the other hand, a famous large stone considered for many years to be topaz turned out to be yellow diamond.

The clear pale blue topaz is sometimes mistaken for aquamarine. As a matter of fact, because of aquamarine's recent rise in price, a good deal of poor color topaz has been heat treated to an aquamarine blue.

Citrine quartz mimics one of the familiar shades of topaz, but it lacks the brilliant intensity and velvety richness of the more valuable stone. Years ago citrine picked up the nickname topaz quartz, but most jewelers avoid this as a misleading term. The American Gem Society prohibits its members from using misnomers. The purpose of AGS is to enlighten and guide the public. That's why AGS members do their best to keep their customers informed and to do so in clear, unambiguous terms. If you have questions on any gem subject, please ask the Certified Gemologists at Reusch Jewelry.

State Highway M-131 in Emmet County has been redesignated as M-119.

The highway, one of the most scenic in Michigan, is 28 miles long. It extends from US- 31 east of Petoskey northerly along the Lake Michigan shoreline to Cross Village.

Purpose of the numbering change is to eliminate motorist confusion over the two highways in the area currently designated M-131 and US-131. The change became effective this week with the installation of new M-119 route marker signs along the highway.

THIS IS THE QUESTION
before Charlevoix Township voters
Tuesday, November 13

Do you approve of the amendment to Charlevoix Township Zoning Ordinance, of July 9, 1979, which rezoned 230 acres of Crescent Stone Company (Medusa) property from Agricultural and Scenic Reserve to Industrial 1? ☐ YES ☐ NO

What will your YES X VOTE accomplish for you and Charlevoix Township

Your YES X VOTE will support the judgment of these 14 public officials who approved the Medusa rezoning amendment.

Charlevoix Township Zoning Board Unanimous YES:
CLARENCE GOLOSTICK
DOROTHY LEWANO
HAL FORBRIG
SHELBY GOSS

Charlevoix Planning Commission Unanimous YES:
DON SMITH (Township Trustee)
TOM WIELAND
DENNIS JASON
JUNIOR HUNT
DON COLE
LARRY LEVENGOOD
RAY TOWNE
ROSE BERGMANN
OSCAR STROUD
JOANNE ELZINGA

Charlevoix Township Trustees:

Your YES X VOTE will enable Medusa-Charlevoix to get the required shale for future manufacturing operations.

Your YES X VOTE is a vote for jobs. It is a vote for greater financial stability. It is a vote for greater and greater tax support by Medusa for our Charlevoix community.

Here's how a long-time Charlevoix resident feels about Medusa's importance to our community.

"People residing in Charlevoix believe this is the best place in the country to live. To continue living in this area, we must make a good living. This can only be accomplished by working together with industry. Industry has problems like we do. Industry is experiencing energy problems and inflation problems the same as we do. We have to work together with industry to help them and us grow in spite of these problems. We can not afford to unreasonably restrict industrial growth!

Medusa has been our friend and neighbor. Are you aware that Medusa is the largest Charlevoix County taxpayer and one of the largest employers? Their yearly payroll is over 3.2 million dollars and they spend an additional one million dollars locally for goods and services. In addition, they are presently paying yearly 49.5% of the Township's taxes. Medusa is spending 50 million dollars for plant expansion and 600,000 dollars for development of the rezoned land. They voluntarily are involved in an extensive reforestation, contributed over 250,000 dollars toward the paving of Bell's Bay Road, and pledged 75,000 dollars for expansion of the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

For a friendship to continue and grow, the people must help each other with their problems. Medusa has a problem! They must find sufficient raw material to keep their plant in continued operation. In attempt to continue their production in the Charlevoix area they are presently undergoing a plant conversion project. Medusa must have sufficient raw material available at a price that makes it economically feasible to produce their product.

Can you afford to have Medusa close their plant down if they cannot find sufficient raw materials? Have you considered the impact that this would have upon your family? Could you afford your home if your taxes were doubled? The money spent by the Medusa employees, and by Medusa directly, in this community provides a substantial financial base for the local business. How many of these businesses would have to close? How many additional workers in other businesses would lose their jobs? Many of our families, friends and neighbors would have to leave Charlevoix.

Can your business survive solely on the tourist trade? Businessmen appreciate the additional spending that they have received through employees in local industry. Can we afford to discourage industry in our community? If we continue with a negative attitude toward industry, new industries and jobs will not be created. Jobs for our children will be limited. Is that what you want for your family? Don't we need to work together with industry and encourage industry toward reasonable growth in our community?

We must help them to help ourselves.

Has Medusa's use of their present land adversely affected you, or has it benefited you? I believe with all my heart, that when you consider and evaluate Medusa's history that your answer has to be that Medusa has provided you with economic stability and increased your opportunities to live in this area. You may be a school teacher, or you may be a plumber, or store owner. Medusa, and other industries, by creating jobs for area residents, has provided people with money to buy your services, to buy your goods, and increased the need for professional people in our community. Medusa means jobs for our community. Jobs for their employees, all the individuals and businesses that their employees support and the people who supply materials, goods, and services directly to Medusa."

HOW HIGH IS YOUR E.Q.?
(Economics Quotient)

CAN YOU ANSWER THESE BASIC ECONOMIC QUESTIONS?

True False

☐ ☐ (1.) One out of five American workers belongs to a labor union.

☐ ☐ (2.) Producers of goods outnumber producers of services in our economy.

☐ ☐ (3.) In 1977 the investment in equipment and facilities averaged over $40,000 for each production worker in American industry.

If you found these questions tough, your Economics Quotient, your E.Q., could probably stand some improvement.

A special booklet has been prepared to help you learn more about what makes our American Economic System tick. It's fact-filled, easy reading and free. It's also an easy way to raise your E.Q.

Grain drying demonstration to be held near Bellaire

Farmers will have an opportunity to compare grain drying systems at a special demonstration near Bellaire in Antrim County, Nov. 1.

The session will be held at the Kalchik farm two miles west of Bellaire on County Road 620. Open to the public at no charge, the demonstration will begin at 10 a.m. and continue throughout the day. Grain drying equipment representatives and Fred Bakker, a Michigan State University agricultural engineer, will give technical presentations at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

"The MSU grain drying project is designed to evaluate the energy efficiency and grain quality of various types of systems," Bakker says.

"We have found the dryeretion method of grain drying to be the cheapest and most energy-efficient," Bakker explains. "Corn is put into a standard automatic batch dryer at about 25 percent moisture. Rather than cooling it in the dryer, the corn is placed in a dryeretion bin for eight hours. When it is put into the bin, its moisture content is about 17 percent, but when it is removed, after cooling, the moisture is 15 percent. This method increases drying capacity, and saves energy."

Bakker says research has also shown that anhydrous ammonia can reduce mold growth in low temperature, in-bin grain dryers. When the ammonia is fed into the bin with air, it acts as a preservative.

For more infurnation about the grain drying demonstration, contact the Antrim County Cooperative Extension Service office at (616) 533-8607, ext. 31.

Forensic's class takes 1st with 'Fiddler on the Roof'

By Fran Martin

The Charlevoix High School entry in the One Act play or drama division of the Forensic Program placed first in the District Competition held recently at Lapeer East high school according to the coach, Mrs. Connie Ford.

This Saturday the group will present its entry, "Fiddler on the Roof" based on Sholom Aleichem's stories in regional competition at Essexville-Garbor High School. Placing second in district competition was Flint Central with Lapeer East being named as an alternate. Mrs. Ford said that with most area schools withdrawing from the program, Charlevoix had been placed in competition with Class A and B schools. Other schools entered were Flint Powers, North Branch and Bad Axe.

Charlevoix received several Superior and two excellence awards on the district level. Jack Carlson as Tevye, the father, Sheri Cook as Chava, one of the daughters, and Richard Hodgson as Motel, one of the suitors, received Superior acting awards and James Boggs, who is the pianist for the presentation, received a Superior music award. John Grooters as Perchik, one of the suitors and as guitarist, received an excellence acting as well as an excellence music award.

The Charlevoix players also received a Superior Award for their costumes and an Excellence award for their set.

Others who are among those to hold key roles in the production are Carla Sizemore as Golde, the mother; Shari Barnes, Debbie Thomure, Beth Ford and Kathleen Pidek, as the other daughters with Sheri Cook; Keith Lehman as the third suitor and Kristy Mathews as Yente, the matchmaker.

Others in the cast are Gary Carson, Pat Camilleri, Bob Best; Tom Mielke, Wendi Wright, Mary Egler, Ron Archey, Eric Hodgson, Paul Stangis, Natalie Hahn and David Milligan.

Playing the part of villagers are Kristin Allard, Laura Baldwin, Janine Browe, Patti Cook, Sue Cooper; John Crinnion, Cindy Engler, Jim Gleason, Mike Martin, Kelly Mathews, Valerie Miller, David Olach, Chris Peterson, Mariko Regier, Martha Staley and Colleen Wilhelm.

Musicians for the production are Boggs, piano, Natalie Hahn, violinist and Grooters, guitarist.

Carolyn Loper, Tami Noirot and Dori Olach take care of the lighting. Stage manager and coordinator are Martha Staley and Laura Baldwin.

When the Charlevoix group appears at Essexville-Garbor on Saturday, Nov. 3, they will open the competition Mrs. Ford said.

"Fiddler on the Roof" is the most ambitious production the local group has ever done. Local residents will have an opportunity to see the production early in December Mrs. Ford said.

Mrs. Ford said special recognition is given to Mrs. Richard Hodgson who did the choreography for the production, Mrs. Robert Tollas who assisted with the vocal music, Mrs. Vincent Olach for assisting with make-up and supervision and to the Young Americans and the Bay View Association who loaned all the props for the production.

DENNIS THORPE

Dennis Thorpe is an auto mechanic at Erber Auto in Charlevoix. He has been with Erber's since last spring. Before coming to Erbei's, Dennis worked for several different auto dealerships downstate. He received his mechanical training through extensive experience as a mechanic at Ford dealerships and at Garden City Schools where he was chief mechanic. There, Dennis worked on school buses, tractors and staff cars. Dennis also attended an intensive automotive school called MoTech through the Chrysler Corp.

Dennis and his wife, Diane, have a little boy, Dennis, 2, and are expecting another child in November.

Dennis is definitely an outdoorsman. He hopes to homestead someday in northern Michigan by becoming almost totally self-sufficient. He likes to work in his garden and can foods. Recently, he put a wood burning stove in his home in Boyne City. He also tries to find time for hunting.

At Erber Auto, Dennis is a qualified mechanic that can do just about anything. You'll find all the mechanics at Erber's are efficient and diligent, too.

If you haven't been to Erber Auto, you should. The excellent workmanship on your car will convince you. You'll be glad you came to Erber Auto!

CHARLEVOIX CHURCH DIRECTORY

Remember in your early days,
When you were in your childhood phase,
She turned you from your erring ways;
And managed to be there,
To bandage up your cuts and sprains
And shelter you from all life's pains;
Now just the memory remains
Of all she had to bear.
Your chosen Church will demonstrate
This lesson, if it's not too late,
And help you to appreciate
Your mother's love and care.

NRC asks Consumers to study Big Rock's design

By Tom and Sara Gay Dammann

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) has requested Consumers Power Co. to study the design of the entire plants shielding design, at Big Rock Point Nuclear Power facility to determine whether workers would be sufficiently protected against radiation in the event of the Three Mile Island type accident.

This was just one more of many problems being faced by the Big Rock plant staff as they were preparing to put the plant back on line - Monday - following an eight month shutdown.

The NRC request went to every nuclear power plant in the nation, but for Big Rock and about three other plants it presents mammouth problems because of their special designs, according to Donald De Moor, Big Rock technical engineer.

The goal of the NRC's request is to make certain that workers can operate in the vital area of the plant and get in and out without the risk of being exposed to more than safe levels of radiation in case of "the worst accident possible," De Moor said in a telephone interview, Monday.

Unless it proves practicable to shield off certain areas separately or in groups, the possible solution may be the construction of a massive silo around the sphere with concrete walls, two to three feet thick, DeMoor indicated.

The results of the studies must be given the NRC by Jan. 1, next year, and the necessary construction must be completed by Jan. 1, 1981.

"But this is negotiable," DeMoor added.

"Big Rock is one of about four plants in the country that will have to undertake significant redesign and construction, because our containment shield is made of three-quarter inch steel which can be pierced by gamma rays."

DeMoor added that the containment shield study "is but one of about 24 tasks the NRC has asked us to perform, as a result of Three Mile Island."

Other sources, within the plant, report the American Nuclear Insurers have raised questions, too, about the ability of the present containment sphere, to contain gamma rays, in case of a loss of cooling water accident.

Such an accident, which is similar to the Three Mile Island accident, would result in a partial meltdown of the nuclear fuel, releasing radiactivity into the containment sphere, the large green dome of Big Rock.

The insurers worry, it is said, that the gamma radiation which could penetrate the containment sphere could bring radiation levels at the end of Big Rock's access road to 1.7 R per hour. (These sources say that 5 R per year is the maximum dose a nuclear worker is permitted to receive).

The containment shield problem is but one of several issues raised by the Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix, who sent telegrams to President Jimmy Carter, Guvernor William Milliken, and NRC Chairman Joseph Hendrie, as well as members of Michigan's congressional delegation, hoping to halt the plant's re-opening.

The Charlevoix organization appealed, over the weekend, to President Carter to conduct a "Presidential investigation" of Big Rock before the plant reopens.

In the telegram to President Carter, Christa Maria, spokesperson for the Concerned Citizens, quoted from Consumers Power Company reports, on file in the Charlevoix Public Library, and said, "numerous very serious accidents (like loose nuts and bolt pieces missing since 1967...)... make us fear for our and our children's lives, should the plant be allowed to operate without a thurough Presidential investigation."

Christa Maria was referring to reports that control rods within the reactor vessel (where fission takes place), which are vital to controlling the rate of fission, have jammed upon withdrawal on several occasions. She quotes from plant reports which show that pieces of nuts and bolts, fallen from the falty difuser plates into the bottom of the egg-shaped reactor vessel, caused the jammings.

DeMoor confirmed that bolts and nuts from the loose difuser plates, which had contributed to the plant's lengthy shutdown, had caused control rods to jam. DeMoor emphasized that the jamming only occurred when the rods were being withdrawn, not when they were being inserted. He pointed out that the rod's function of slowing down the rate of fission depends on the speed of insertion between the bundles of nuclear fuel.

The rods are withdrawn to speed up fission and create more power, DeMoor explained.

"In cases where foreign objects blocked withdrawal of the rods, we've demonstrated that the drive rods are capable of being inserted," DeMoor said. He said such jammings may have occurred five times with the past ten years.

The Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix are contended in their messages to the President and Governor that a computor system they say is named "RF.09" has the same flaws as the RF.09 computor system used at Three Mile Island. The protest group argues that those flaws were part of the Three Mile Island accident.

Kenneth Ridgeway, NRC Reactor Inspector, who just completed a tour of Big Rock, told the Courier, he feels that the Problems of loose nuts and bolts having fallen to the bottom of the reactor vessel have been solved. Ridgeway said that during the plant's current shutdown the reactor vessel was vacuumed in a manner similar to vacuuming a swimming pool.

Ridgeway also told the Courier that changes had been made in Big Rock's computor system.

The Charlevoix protest group's final contention in their telegrams and letters is that along with the questions of the ability of the containment sphere to stop gamma radiation in case of a loss of cooling water accident, certain air vent valves have repeatedly had to be replaced when they failed emergency tests.

Ridgeway confirmed that these valves had been replaced but that he also felt the basic problem which caused the repeated failures had been solved with the replacement of the valves and gaskets.

These valves must shut whenever there is a "scram" automatic shutdown in case of emergency, at the plant, to seal off the containment vessel.

Meanwhile, there has been no direct response from the White House to the groups' telegrams.

It is known that Governor Milliken is concerned about their allegations about safety at the plant and the Governor's office reports he is studying the problem.

Nuclear film to be shown

The Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix are showing the movie "Lovejoys Nuclear War" at the First State Bank of Charlevoix, Thursday evening at 8 p.m.

John O'Neill, a spokesperson for the group described the movie as depicting a rural town, not unlike Charlevoix, where a nuclear power plant was under construction. Lovejoy, a citizen of the community successfully protests the plant's construction, bringing out various issues of nuclear safety." The movie will be followed by discussion. The movie is free.

Paper will be late

The Charlevoix Courier will come out a day late next week in order that we may bring you the election result from Charlevoix Township.

However, the editorial and advertising deadlines will not change.

City employees, friends and relatives honored four retirees from City Hall Saturday. The retirees include (L-R) Ban Gill, fire department, Anna Kloostar, billing department, Arletta Bargmann, deputy clerk and Annabelle Cunningham, treasurer. Mayor Sam Suparnaw presented a plaque of appreciation to the retirees.

Township referendum set for Tuesday

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Charlevoix Township Hall as voters will express their sentiments on the rezoning of 230 acres of land belonging to the Crescent Stone Company (Medusa).

The property was rezoned by the township board on July 9 from agricultural and scenic reserve to industrial. The vote was 3-2.

Soon afterwards a petition drive was started to bring the issue to a referendum. Enough signatures were obtained and a special election was called for Nov. 13.

In the meantime, a lot has been said - pro and con - about the rezoning. Township officials contacted Monday offered no predictions about the outcome, but they did make some observations.

"I think the citizens of the township will recognize the need to vote yes on the rezoning question," said Treasurer Rose Bergmann. "The township board has provided for growth in the area and in the same time has made certain that controls were established to keep all types of pollution at a minimum.

"When Medusa applies for a special use permit to quarry we will assure at that time that these standards are maintained or made even more favorable to the environment," she added.

"We need the economic advantages Medusa brings to the area and the raw materials are here to make cement. With the support of the voters the township board will make every endeavor to merge both of these factors into an assest for the community."

Clerk Joanne Elzinga also noted that the township has the power - with the issuance of a special use permit - to impose restrictions on mining activity. She said the township zoning board is presently working on an ordinance to govern the activity. Medusa is required to secure a permit from the township and the state.

Trustee Don Smith would like to handle the matter differently.

"I'm going to vote no because I think there is a better way to go about it," Smith explained. "If the property is going to be used for mining I think we should have local control over it. I don't want the DNR running the show.

Smith is proposing the township establish a mineral resource district with stringent restrictions on (blasting, dust, noise, etc.) mining. He said a special use permit for mining would not give the township as much control because "it's too easy to change." By establishing a special district for this use, he said, control would be at the local level instead of with the DNR.

"I think the local government can do a better job of policing it. I guess I mistrust the DNR. I think we have a beautiful area here and I think we should protect what we have. I think we can work together and be good neighbors."

Smith said he did not vote in favor of the rezoning when the issue was brought before the Charlevoix Planning Commission on March 1. He said a voice vote was taken and he abstained because "at that time I hadn't made up my mind." However, the minutes reflected that he favored the rezoning. "It was my fault for not correcting the error," he said. A summary of how the commission voted is contained in a publicity release issued by the Charlevoix Township Vote of Confidence Citizens Committee.

There is another statement in that release which has drawn some rebuttal. A quote from Sir Edmund Burke is used indicating that "your representative owes you, not his industry only, but his judament; and he betrays instead of serving you if he sacrifices it to your opinion."

"The news release implies that the people do not have a right to question the decisions of the elected and appointed officials," Trustee Dale Glass said. "However, I feel that it is rather presumptuous of any elected or appointed official to believe that his or her judgment is infallible. I also believe that in a democratic society the people have the right to question the actions and judgments of the elected and appointed officials of their government."

The release states that the county and township officials who approved the rezoning dealt with the issue in detail and have earned a vote of confidence.

Amendment to City Charter off ballot

An amendment to the City Charter to make the clerk an appointed official - instead of an elected official - was scratched from the ballot Monday, just hours before the city election.

The legality of the amendment had been challenged in a lawsuit by Charlevoix resident Oscar Ward. Ward claimed the amendment violated state law because:

Of the failure to have the charter change officially published in the local newspaper(s).

The reason(s) for, the charter change was not on the ballot and was not officially published in the local newspaper(s).

The proposed amendment wasn't approved by the state attorney general's office and governor's office prior to the election.

The case was scheduled for Circuit Court Monday afternoon, however, the two parties agreed to drop the proposed amendment from the ballot earlier in the day.

City Attorney Frank Hoffman said "it was not worth taking the chance."

"It's better to be safe than sorry," he said.

City officials indicated at Mondoy night's council meeting that the amendment could possibly be put on a ballot next year.

Council proposed the change in the clerk's position because in the past two elections no one has run for the office, forcing council to appoint someone to fill the post.

Ward opposes the change because it would take away the public's right to elect the clerk. If the public wanted to replace a clerk, he said, they would have to "throw out most of the city government" officials to do it.

Electric Rates

Council did adopt new electric rates last night.

The residential rate for city residents will be 4 cents per kilowatt hour plus a $2 monthly service charge. For those people living outside the city limits the rate will be 5 cents per kilowatt hour plus a $2.75 monthly service charge.

The commercial rate for city residents will be 4.5 cents per kilowatt hour plus a $4 monthly service charge. Outside the city limits the charge will be 5.5 cents per kilowatt hour plus a $5.50 monthly service charge.

The new rates were approved in hopes enough money can be generated to make the electric department "pay for itself." Last year, the electric fund was $90,000 in the red. Officials blamed the loss on low rates and failure to pass on fuel adjustment costs to the customers. Under the new arrangement, fuel adjustment costs will be passed on.

In other action, council:

Approved a side yard setback variance for the Charlevoix senior citizen housing project. Also, the required square footage of the units was reduced from 780 square feet to 650 square feet.

Council wants assurances

The Charlevoix City Council voted Monday night to send letters to President Carter and Governor Milliken asking that they "do everything possible" to assure the safety of Charlevoix residents before the Big Rock Point nuclear power plant goes back on line.

Council approved the resnlution 4-2. Voting in favor of the resolutinn were Shirley Roloff, Ivan Whitley, Earl Mumm and Ray Wood. Robert Timms and Dr. Jeff Porter voted against it.

Joanne Bier of the Concerned Citizens for Charlevoix Area applied council on the group's recent activities and concerns (indicated in related stories) about Big Rock.

Selling Your House by Gene Steele

THE MOST WELCOME VISITOR

When you're getting ready for company, the house has a somewhat festive air. The toys are put away, old newspapers picked up. Everything's neat. The house is at its best -- and so are you.

Just as you prepare for friends who visit, you want to fix up for the visitors who may buy your house. No question that a neat, clean house is most attractive. More than that, it looks bigger. The storage space seems greater. (If YOU'VE found room for everything, perhaps the PROSPECT could, too.)

Sure, it's more fun to prepare for a party than to straighten up because a prospect is coming. It's more relaxing to visit with friends than to wonder if a prospect likes the house. Will there be an offer? Will it be a good one?

Still, the prospective buyer is a very welcome visitor when you want to sell. It's worth taking the trouble to get ready.

Our staff is well qualified to assist you in all the details necessary for successfully selling your home.

RELO

Location is important in selecting a home

Perhaps the most important factor in selecting a home is location, according to Gene Steele, broker, Charlevoix Properties, Inc., Charlevoix.

"Finding the right home is important, but people shouldn't overlook other key factors such as proximity to transportation, cultural facilities and schools to name the more obvious," said Steele.

"People can fall in love with a home, causing them to overlook key factors associated with location that may lead to problems once they are settled in."

"We have found that people who are relocating across country are far more aware of critical location facotrs than those who are staying in the same general area," said Steele, whose firm is a member of RELO Inter-City Relocation Service.

"Local buyers should take the same careful approach. This is particularly important for the first-time buyer who is accustomed to changing residence more frequently as a renter."

Steele offered several key factors in making a home selection:

1. Consider personal factors such as street traffic. Do you want a neighborhood with a lot of children? What about pets? What kind of neighbors will you have?
2. Is it important that you are close to public transportation, major highways and/or work?
3. Check out various community facilities such as proximity to schools, recreations, church, shopping facilities, library, theaters, and health care facilities.
4. Does the community fit your needs and preferences? Is it old or new? Are the houses well spaced or close together? Does it offer the various opportunities you want and need?
5. Are you concerned about public service? Who picks up the trash, what is the cost and how frequent is collection? Check out police, fire and emergency services. Ask about public utilities and determine cost.
6. Inspect the entire neighborhood. Will nearby traffic prove to be an annoyance? What is planned for vacant lots in the area? Is on-street parking permitted? How is surrounding property zoned?
7. Find out about possible future improvements that may result in increased taxes or special assessments such as sidewalk construction, street improvements or new sewers.

"No two buyers have the same needs or desires. Thus, people need to carefully evaluate all of the factors related to the location of a home before they agree to purchase it. It can mean the difference between a happy future or frustration," said Steele.

Charlevoix Properties, Inc. is one of 1,200 real estate firms across the nation, in Canada and overseas that belong to RELO.

Pictures needed

Attention seniors of the Class of 1980!

This year Charlevoix High School is requiring all seniors to turn two wallet size pictures in at the high school office by no later than Dec. 1.

One of these pictures will be used in the senior issue supplement to the Charlevoix Courier and one will be used in the 1980 Rayder Yearbook. Thus far only seven pictures have been turned in.

If the pictures are not received by Dec. 1 those students' pictures will not appear in the yearbook.

Most county officials granted pay raise by commission

By Peg Ohle

Most elected and appointed officials in Charlevoix County will receive pay raises next year but some others will be working at the same pay level.

The salary schedule worked out by the Ways and Means Committee of the Board of Commissioners was approved last week. Some of the salaries are noted below with last year's salaries shown in parentheses:

CHIP director speaks on problems of aging

'People don't die of old age'

"People don't die of old age. They die of boredom, neglect, disillusionment."

Oren Schroeder, director of Charlevoix's CHIP Counseling Center, made this comment during an interview describing his recent participation in a Conference on Aging, sponsored by the Lutheran Council of the United States of America.

The conference was part of a series of 10 workshops to be conducted nationally to "help sensitize people to their own aging process and provide specific knowledge about the problems of aging," Schroeder, who is a workshop leader, explained.

The CHIP director said he received special training for these workshops, last spring, at the University of Michigan's Institute of Gerontology.

"Today there are 23 million Americans over the age of 65," he reported. "In 20 years, 20 percent of our population will be over 65.

"Older Americans are going to prove to be a powerful political force," Schroeder observed.

"Aging will be a major issue of the 1980s, as the civil rights and peace movements were in the 60s and 70s.

"I keep getting more and more incensed," he said, as he reflected about the problems of older Americans.

"We have not met with the problems of aging as a country. We are very youth oriented. We turn our backs on older people. We make assumptions about aging.

"We assume that once a person begins to approach 65 or retirement they are no longer useful, that they are on the threshold of senility," Schroeder continued.

Addressing some commonly held myths, Schroeder said, "We assume older people are not capable of learning.

"Mandatory retirement is a major problem. It precipitates the myth that older people are no longer useful, can no longer grow."

He pointed out that people who are forced to retire tend to accept the myths themselves. They give up.

"Statistics show many people die within one to three years of mandatory retirement."

He also argued against retirement ghettos, "leisure worlds" where older people are segregrated from the rest of society.

"In societies where older people remain part of the family, under the same roof, they do not have the same problems.

"Older people, in those societies, are respected and valued," he observed.

Speaking of modern American society, Schroeder said that as a group older people have the highest rate of suicide.

"Older people are victims in our society. They are forced to live on fixed incomes. They are victims of violence, even here in Charlevoix. And they are victims of others' attitudes."

"What older people need is a Bill of Rights," Schroeder stated.

"Attitudes must be changed," he continued.

"Older people should be seen as valuable.

"Their minds do not slow down."

He said, time after retirement should be seen as an opportunity for people to pursue the creative dreams they had to put aside while they earned a living.

"If we can begin to change attitudes, people can see that learning is a life-long process, that being creative is a way of avoiding senility."

Schroeder observed that just as physical exercise is important to maintaining health, exercising one's mind is vital.

"We don't stop learning at the age of 25 or 30."

Speaking for society, Schroeder said, "We need to value those people who have lived life for many years rather than discard them as being out of step with the times.

"The elderly who are relegated to retirement ghettos lose by not having the opportunity to mingle and share life with younger people. The young lose by not having interacted with the elderly."

Schroeder suggested that adult education programs need to be developed to reach out to the elderly in our society.

"We need to set up kinds of systems which will allow integration between young and older people.

"Older people have a perspective, a lot of knowledge and wisdom."

Speaking as a counselor, Schroeder said, he has learned that the problems of older people are just as real and serious as those of younger people. He said, at CHIP, he has seen older people with marital problems, for example.

"They have the same feelings – happiness, depression – as we all do.

"But society tends to lump everything together, saying simply, 'They are getting old.'"

That lumping together, Schroeder feels is the first attitude we should eliminate.

"We must eliminate discrimination and ways of talking down.

"It is not a question of 'doing for' older people, but recognizing people's rights," he concluded.

"As long as we maintain the ghetto concept, segregating older people, neglecting their individuality, we are going to experience the consequences." He again referred to the fact that within 20 years 20 percent of our population will be over 65 and a powerful political force.

"Older people should be seen as valuable, as tremendous assets to our community," Schroeder concluded.

1st Community Choir rehearsal Tuesday

The first rehearsal for the Community Choir will be at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 6 at the Assembly of God Church on M-66.

Rehearsals will be held at the church each Tuesday up until Dec. 4 as the choir prepares for the annual Christmas cantata on Dec. 9. The cantata is sponsored by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

"His Love Reaching" is the name of this year's cantata. Steve Stargardt, who heads the vocal music program at the Charlevoix Public Schools, will direct the production.

"Anyone who likes to sing and be a part of Christmas is invited to join the choir," said Rev. Walter Hastings of the Community Church of God.

Last year the choir numbered 80 members.

THANK HEAVEN

The famous French actor Maurice Chevalier has often reminded us to "thank heaven for little girls." But we mustn't forget little boys and big boys and big girls in all their possible relationships to us.

We may have a particularly understanding spouse, a caring parent or doting grandparent who merits special remembrance from time to time. We may feel indebted to a teacher or fellow employee who has helped us in achieving our goals – or maybe even in just seeing them clearly. We may have a special little friend in the neighborhood who likes to help when we're digging in the garden, never expecting anything more than lemonade and cookies in return.

The point is, as the time of Thanksgiving nears, we should think of the many people who deserve our thanks. One way of doing this is by surprising them with a special gift when they least expect it. You might argue that Christmas is fast approaching, and thanking all who deserve it would be a financial drain. But perhaps you could make this an ongoing project -- each year selecting one person worthy of the "thank you of the year."

We at Reusch Jewelry are experts in selecting tasteful and appropriate gifts for all types of people and for any occasion. We've had 94 years of experience at it and would be happy to be of servce.

Thoughts on the referendum

Editor:

Let's look at Medusa rezoning in reality or a rip-off of resources and natural beauty in the name of tax and job help. That's what those "pressure-pusher ads" bear out!

"Anxious" pro-Medusa folks who live in "North Country" might certainly change their ideals and opinions if they were to move out to "Medusa Country" (It's big, so big, when viewed from the air that Charlevoix looks smaller than the holes) Even "gift-road persuaders" wouldn't cut any ice with them when their water and property values were absolutely threatened. How would they take the still-present dust and continuous blasting noise/shock to be encountered in the future?

Why didn't they, years ago, step up to their obligations of putting out P.R. feelers for non-lake shore industry instead of grabbing any industry that fell in the door? They could have commanded the best of industry and today probably have more, not less, employment with even higher tax base and a still beautiful, available lake shore.

Look up and down Lake Michigan shoreline from Norwood to Petoskey and what's left after the inheritance of complacent, small thinking, non-creative rages and for runners OK to gonging? Two cement belching facilities, a forever guarded nuclear waste dump, plus plastics, oil, quarries, and junk storage all the way into Petoskey! Give 'em credit for 3 or 4 small parks! Every little bit left sure counts now!

Medusa will be forever planning rehabilitation. Notice any dates on their beautiful PR brochures? None of us living today nor our children will ever see or use "Lake Medusa, Etc."

No, folks, Medusa won't close if re-zoning is disallowed! It will stomp and threaten everyone, but continue, it will. Re-zoning will not create more jobs, considering processes and automation. As one letter in the paper said, "it will pit brother against brother" simply because of jobs. It's sad, greedy, narrow thinking we contend with here much of the time. God must take a dim view of what's happened so far! Let's not gorge and prostitute our beautiful area in the name of "progress in the wrong direction".

Guns don't kill

Editor:

Guns don't kill people, people do. Careless people, ignorant people, children people, drunk people, vicious people, jealous people, weak people, frightened people, disturbed people, vengeful people, intimidating people, suicidal people and homicidal people.

Guns don't kill people, people do. Guns just make killing so easy.

About that tax bill

Editor:

On August 1, 1979 there appeared in the "hotline" portion of your Courier a howling lament by someone unwilling to sign their name regarding the recently received city tax bill on their real estate.

This party yet unknown to me, failed to mention just what classification would cover the property (whether Residential or Commercial) but did admonish Mrs. B. and Mr. P. to offer some explanation as to just why their tax bill increased 28% over a year ago in view of the restraints voted last November (Headlee Amendment) whereby government spending could not legally exceed the cost of living inflation factor.

Bear in mind that space would not be adequate if the entire weekly was to be utilized to cover all of the angles legally and otherwise employed to transfer wealth from the productive to the non-productive in the annual ritual called TAXES.

Inasmuch as response to the complaint by Mrs. B. and Mr. P. has become rather noticeable by it's absence and my feeling that the city residents were entitled to a reasonable explanation, I will attempt to encapsulate some of the salient features of the issue the way I view it.

First of all the Headlee Amendment failed to spell out precisely just whose figures were to be used as officially representing the Consumer Price Index; CPI. This left an opening for the State Legislature via the State Tax Commission to contrive a figure 7.7% but far less than the actual inflation rate compiled by the U.S. Department of Labor.

Some questions come to mind regarding how serious the concerns of the Complaintant.

Did the Complaintant attend the annual city or school budget hearings to question the increase this year in either budget?

Did he or she vote in the last special election on school bonding or operating millage?

Did they take the time to ask the Mayor or City Manager why the City Budget was overspent this year necessitating the borrowing of $160,000.00 this year plus the increases levying of (1) one extra mill over last year or the necessity of raising all real property valuations by a factor of 15% rather than complying with the law by notifying property owners by mail that their assessment had been increased by 15% enabling one to seek redress at the local Board of Review?

The borrowing of funds for operating is a move unheard of in our city for over 25 years unless my memory needs a jolt.

The (1) one mill represents a 10% increase. The 15% factor added to valuations and added to the 10% produces a sum of 25%, not the 26% in question but rather close.

The State Legislature in all of it's wisdom decided that the real base for municipalities was the top limit for levying millage (15 mills in the case of the Charlevoix City Charter) rather than the 10 mills actually levied last year.

This decision results in no relief in our City as the intent of the Headlee Amendment is wholely and completely circumvented. All legal like.

Next week an overview of the "Big" picture.

A fine night for devilish mischief

Low clouds scudded in the path of an orange moon. A lonesome wind moaned in the uppermost branches of leafless trees. Grotesque shapes scurried through deepening shadows, hell-bent on devilish mischief.

It was Halloween – 1979 in Charlevoix and the city has never had a finer night to celebrate that mysterious holiday that dates back to the dawn of the human spirit.

Unlike other holidays that are celebrated by governmental decree or in accordance with religious doctrine, Halloween springs from a number of different sources.

The Druids of prehistoric Great Britain believed that Saman, the lord of the dead, called forth hosts of evil spirits on Halloween. They lit great bonfires in hopes that the unwholesome visitors would keep their distance.

The old Celts considered Oct. 31 the last day of the year and they looked upon it as a propitious time to examine the portents of the future. They also entertained the notion that spirits of the dead returned to their earthly homes on Halloween.

When the Romans invaded England, they found Halloween a well established holiday which coincided nicely with their own harvest festival honoring Pomona, the goddess of the fruits of trees. It is not surprising that they added such activities as dunking for apples and pumpkin carving to the observance of Halloween.

Christians, of course, celebrate All Saints Day on Nov. 1, and Halloween has had some stature for centuries as the eve of a feast day.

The celebration of Halloween is so deeply ingrained in the Western psyche that it requires no edict from the governor, no proclamation from the president, no directive from the pope to make it official.

Kids seem to know instinctively when it's Halloween. Discussion of what kind of costume to wear occupies a fortnight prior to the holiday itself. Candy must be bought in large enough quantities to serve door-to-door beggars, not to mention a little for pre-Halloween snacks. Pumpkins must be purchased and carved. Seeds must be roasted. Corn stalks must be cut to decorate the front porch. The details are endless.

Then suddenly it is Halloween. Dinner is always rush-rush, something quick that can be eaten on the run. Then costumes are brought out, faces are painted, and the pantry miraculously yields bags that are suitable for collecting goodies.

The first beggars usually arrive at the front door before our kids are ready to leave. The dogs go wild at the sight of red devils and space cadets with blinking belly-buttons on the front porch. The poor beasts will spend the rest of the evening worrying themselves sick in the spare bedroom.

And then the Clock kids join the procession, with daddy tagging along – ostensibly to supervise street crossings and to raise hell when I fail to hear proper "thank you's."

But the real reason, of course, is that I'm hooked on Halloween and always have been.

For one night of the year I'm a kid myself, because nothing about Halloween has changed since the days when I was young. Aromatic leaf piles still smoke along curbstones; greyheads – silhouetted in doorways – still nodtheir approval of fetching gypsies and ghostly goblins; grinning pumpkins with gothic eyes still grin from every porch railing; low clouds still scud in the path of an orange moon; and a lonesome wind still moans in the uppermost branches of leafless trees.

Right to strike legislation reaches House

Steve Andrews

Last week the House began to consider a package of bills aimed at resolving one of the state's most nagging problems – the right of public employees to strike. The bills were hammered out during the summer and last few months by a special subcommittee of the House Labor Committee, and were finally reported out of the full committee unanimously in a true spirit of compromise.

House consideration of the legislation comes on the heels of numerous and lengthy school strikes across the state. At one time during the fall weeks, Michigan had more teachers on strike than any other state in the nation. And these bills attempt to address that situation.

Over the past 11 years, there have been some 450 public employees strikes in Michigan. This year, thousands of students will be attending school well into June because negotiations between school board members and teachers reached an impasse.

There are seven bills in the right to strike package – although two of the bills are nearly identical to two others – which legitimize strikes for certain public employees.

The major bill legalizes strikes only for local governmental employees, teachers and other school employees. It does not permit striking by members of the state civil service, or by police and firefighters, who are covered under the compulsory binding arbitration act.

Under the provisions of this bill, supervisors would not be permitted to strike and employers would be allowed to replace striking employees. The bill does not provide for mandatory binding arbitration, nor does it prevent supervisors from belonging to the same union as those they supervise.

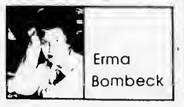
The bill states that a judge may enjoin a strike and require employees to return to work only if the health and safety – not the "welfare" – of a community is threatened. Elements of this bill are very controversial, and even though it had unanimous committee support, attempts will be made to amend the binding arbitration and supervisor-employee bargaining unit language.

A second bill in the package exempts teachers from tenure act coverage while they are on strike, to ensure that any pay they lose because of the strike will not be reimbursed under the tenure act. Another bill gives the Michigan Employment Relations Commission authority to order intensive negotiations during the 10-day notice period before a strike begins, and to order up to 16 hours of negotiations each day once a strike begins.

A key element in the package is two bills introduced by my Republican colleague Jack Kirksey of Livonia. The Kirksey legislation amends the school aid act and the school code to impose strict economic sanctions on both teachers and the school board from the first day of a strike. The bills were amended to permit the school board to extend the school calendar to the fourth Friday in June. But in a highly unusual move, the Labor committee reported two nearly identical bills under Democrat sponsorship. The difference between the two is the closing school date; under the Democrat bills the end of the school year would be set on the third Friday in June.

This package of bills took months to develop, and because of the controversial nature of several of them, action on the floor may change them dramatically. There were fireworks during committee deliberations, and the same strong emotions may carry over to the House debate.

National social problem with scientific name



Erma Bombeck

We hear a lot of talk these days about Teacher Burnout.

In layman's terms, it's stress brought about by hassles with kids, abusive language, physical assault, pure exhaustion and lack of appreciation for what you're trying to do.

What a coincidence! In 1969, every mother in our suburb suffered from Teacher Burnout. Only we didn't know it was a national social problem with a scientific name. We simply called it a nervous breakdown.

The symptoms were the same: difficulty in sleeping, irritability, upset stomach, headaches, and an unnatural craving for weekends.

I was telling this to Sylvia Saffron, who teaches third grade and lives down the street from me.

"I know just what you're going through, Sylvia," I said. "I used to get so tired I'd fall asleep having my teeth cleaned."

"What did you do about it?"

"Some women took shots for it. Others didn't even bother putting it in a glass after awhile, but I knew if I just toughed it out, it would all work out somehow."

"What happened?" asked Sylvia.

"Well, I used to go crazy every morning telling the kids what to wear. By the time they got out of the house, I was a nervous wreck. Then we got the school to set up a dress code and THEY had the hassle.

"I used to get exhausted keeping up with nutrition to make sure my children got a well-balanced diet, but then we got the schools to do this for us.

"Sex education was tough for parents to handle, but then we got the school involved and now they have the responsibility.

"Same thing for physical fitness. I used to nag my kids to exercise and get involved in sports, but now it's the school's problem. And I can't tell you what a relief it was when we dumped driver's education on the school. That can throw you into early menopause.

"But the biggest factor in getting us well was when the school had to take the responsibility for the values and morals of our children... not to mention discipline and how they are going to fit into society."

"That's fine for you," said Sylvia, "but how do I get relief?"

"You spell it, P-A-R-E-N-T-S."

More market carnage, but more opportunities, too

Harold Smith

Stock and bond markets have been taking such a pummeling the past couple of weeks that affairs of the marketplace have been headline stuff to the news media.

As if some of these current developments weren't depressing enough, journalists and commentators kept dredging up the 1929 saga, implying that the 50 year old event was about to be re-cycled. What most failed to mention, however, was the good news.

For example, fixed income investments this past week provided some of the highest rates of return in recent market history, higher even than in 1974 – the last time we had double digit inflation. Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Co. offered a 40 year triple A rated bond with a coupon of 11¼ percent. I can't remember when Ma Bell was so generous, if ever. At the same time Atlanta Gas Light Co. was offering a 20 year debenture (A rated) with a 12-¾ percent annual return. Buyers of such bonds can sit back and enjoy these unusual high rates of return for many years to come and leave the short-term worrying to someone else.

And speaking of short term, fixed income rates in this department were even better. Government agency bonds known as Federal Farm Credits were sold this past week to provide annual yields of 14.35 and 14.40 percent, depending on whether you bought the 9 month or 6 month variety. U.S. Treasury Bills with maturities after January 1980 were all yielding in excess of 13 percent and even as high as 13¼ percent.

Money funds which traffic in short term commercial paper, CD's, U.S. Treasury Bills and Notes were providing annual rates of return in excess of 12 percent with monthly compounding and check-writing privileges thrown in for good measure. If higher rates of return were sought, and quality were not a consideration – which it always should be – 14, 15, and even 16 percent rates were available.

Obviously, there is no guarantee that rates are going to get better. After all, the Federal Reserve Board is now openly waging war on our persistently virulent variety of inflation. It suggests, among other things, a lot more violence and mayhem in the money and security markets. But sooner or later the smoke will clear and the waters will calm. The troubles will then be behind us, but the investment opportunities they provide will be likewise.

Meet Charlevoix

John Hess has been Director of Planning for Charlevoix County since 1977. This week he talks with the Courier about some aspects of planning and zoning and why they are necessary.

COURIER: How did you get into planning?

HESS: I did my undergraduate work and graduate work at Northern Michigan University in geography. Before there was the discipline of planning, all basic theories came from geographers. Land use planning is really an offshoot of geography. Almost any advertised job in planning asks for training in the field of planning or a related field. Geography is one of the related fields.

COURIER: How do you explain planning and zoning?

HESS: In planning we take a look at economic conditions to determine how certain uses of land affect everyone. In zoning we are charged with protecting the health and welfare of the entire geographical area. When we are asked to rezone a parcel of land, we have to weigh all aspects, one against the other. Zoning ordinances provide for protection of a person's land against unwanted uses. Instead of "taking", it "protects". When I buy a house, the house is in a zoned area. We know what is permitted in the area - no factories, no fumes, that sort of thing, so we are protected.

COURIER: Why is zoning good for business areas?

HESS: It prevents industry from coming in which would be detrimental to business establishments. If I owned a restaurant, it would be protected from an industry moving in next door with obnoxious odors.

COURIER: Then why should industrial property be zoned?

HESS: Zoning gives industry a place to operate without hurting other people. The courts say we can't zone land "useless", but neither do we necessarily have to zone it for the owner to receive the highest returns possible, only reasonable returns.

COURIER: When was the first zoning in Charlevoix County?

HESS: Apparently the City of Charlevoix had zoning back in the 1940's, and Charlevoix Township in the early 1960's. Now all the cities and townships in the County have zoning ordinances.

COURIER: There is no county zoning ordinance, but you do have what you call a comprehensive plan. What is it?

HESS: It's a document stating where we've been, where we are now, and includes a series of goals and objectives as to where we want to be five years down the road in economic growth, population growth, recreation facilities, transportation facilities, industry, public facilities, community activities, that sort of thing.

COURIER: How is a comprehensive plan used?

HESS: The end product of a comprehensive plan is a capital improvement plan, a guide for legislative bodies to use in making decisions.

COURIER: What specific duties does your job call for?

HESS: Updating the comprehensive plan, analyzing proposed land use changes, making recommendations on rezoning, explaining zoning and land use to the general public, making studies on development and such things as water and sewer systems, working with other county departments on things of mutual concern, advising the Board of Commissioners of trends to forecast utilization, maintenance, and capacity of public facilities, directly working with townships and cities on zoning matters – to name a few.

COURIER: What are some of the problems facing the County at this time?

HESS: What to do with out solid waste. We have a landfill that takes care of most of the county population now but when it is filled up, we will have problems. We're going to have to make some hard and last decisions in the near future. The influx of people is causing problems in certain areas. Many people feel that too much farmland is being converted to residential areas. Another thing is protecting the image of Charlevoix County – what it is. Tousm is our main industry and any development should be well thought out in the light of that fact.

COURIER: Where did you grow up?

HESS: In Harbor Springs, but when I was in high school my family moved to Saginaw. I graduated from Arthur Hill High School there. I received my bachelor's and master's degrees from Northern Michigan University and spent six years in the Navy.

COURIER: What was your Navy duty?

HESS: I spent four years on submarines and two years on destroyers. The submarine duty was out of Holy Loch on the River Clyde in Scotland, and the destroyer duty was out of Newport, Rhode Island.

COURIER: How long would you be submerged in the submarines?

HESS: Two to two and a half months. We didn't see any sunshine, just fluorescent lights, and you don't get any suntan from them.

COURIER: Where did you work before you came to Charlevoix?

HESS: I was assistant Director of Planning in Marquette County

COURIER: What local organizations do you belong to?

HESS: I'm secretary of the Kiwanis Club, on the Board of Trustees of the Congregational Church, a member of the City Recreation Committee, and a member of the Yacht Club.

COURIER: What do you do when you're not working?

HESS: Sail, garden, ski cross country, shovel snow.

COURIER: How many children do you have?

HESS: Phyllis and I have two boys. John is four and Erik is two and a half.

Somewhere between the two is a middle way

Anne Kelly

Somewhere between Billy Joel and John Paul II, there has got to be a middle way.

In his "Only The Good Die Young" Billy laments to Virginia:

THEY SHOWED YOU A STATUE AND TOLD YOU TO PRAY
THEY BUILT YOU A TEMPLE AND LOCKED YOU AWAY
BUT THEY NEVER TOLD YOU THE PRICE YOU PAY FOR THINGS YOU MIGHT HAVE DONE...

On his recent whirlwind visit to the United States, Pope John Paul II reiterated to his Catholic flock adherence to strict traditional morality.

No artificial birth control. No remarriage after divorce. No marriage for priests. No women priests. No abortion. No euthenasia.

"No, no, no," sings John Paul. "Tsk, tsk, tsk," sings Billy Joel.

YOU GOT A BRAND NEW DRESS AND A PARTY ON OUR CONFIRMATION AND A CROSS OF GOLD
BUT VIRGINIA THEY DIDN'T GIVE YOU QUITE ENOUGH INFORMATION
YOU DIDN'T COUNT ON ME
WHEN YOU WERE COUNTING ON YOUR ROSARY...

Yes, somewhere between Billy Joel's off-handed morality and John Paul's archaic conception of it, there has to be a middle way. Even the saintly scholar St. Thomas Aquinas who based his logical apologetics on none other than Aristotle, was one to hold for "La Media Via." So, where is Thomas Aequinas today when a nation vascillating between being morality-conscious and morality-starved, needs him?

Throngs of Catholics and non-Catholics alike, flocked in droves to catch a glimpse of or pay homage to this Polish Pontiff. If they were looking for a modern day Messiah, they went away disappointed. John Paul was as old school as he was old world.

I couldn't help worrying about the contradictions we have to deal with on the circumstantial level in America today:

- the forty year old mother of eight who has varicose veins and ten more years of fertility.
- the young marriages that end in divorce due to poor choice or ignorance and the mature relationships that are possible later.
- the children who need both fathers and mothers if they are to develop naturally.
- the frustrated clergy who need love and affection as much as the rest of us.
- the women who desire to become an even greater factor in the ministry of the Word to the World.
- the rape victims; the children who unwanted, die from hunger and neglect in the streets of over-populated cities.
- the old people deprived of a natural death by being kept alive by drugs and respirators.

Somewhere between morality and immorality, between discipline and license, between the absolute and the relative, between Billy Joel's

THEY SAY THERE'S A HEAVEN FOR THOSE WHO WAIT
SOME SAY IT'S BETTER BUT I SAY IT AIN'T
I'D RATHER LAUGH WITH THE SINNERS THAN CRY WITH THE SAINTS SINNERS ARE MUCH MORE FUN, AND ONLY THE GOOD DIE YOUNG...

and John Paul in his cloistered Vatican, with its incense and Gregorian chant and College of Cardinals – there has to be a middle way.

CHARLEVOIX TOWNSHIP – TUESDAY NOVEMBER 13

A VERY SPECIAL ELECTION

The question on the ballot is whether to re-zone 230 acres to permit the Medusa Cement Company to make use of shale deposits. But the real issue goes much beyond that. "

A vote YES is a vote for jobs . . . for increased economic activity and Tax Contributions by Charlevoix County's largest taxpayer

A vote NO would be a slap at industry—a gesture of support for the faction which seeks to destroy the community's industrial base and leave it solely dependent upon the resort trade.

Before you make your decision, please keep in mind that Medusa accounts for $89,000,000 worth of economic activity for the Charlevoix Community—including $18,000,000 in local wages, salaries and proprietor income.

Since 1967 Medusa has contributed $5,341,442 in tax payments to Charlevoix area governmental units. Medusa accounts for 49.5% of the township tax rolls. Charlevoix Township taxes in 1978 were shared as follows: Comb. School, 74.1%; Int. School District, 3.20%; Township Service, 8%, County Service, 11.98%; Grandvue Medical Care Facility, 2.65%.

Some people have asked. Does Medusa really need the rezoned 230 acres?

The answer is a definite YES. Here's why.

Portland cement is the most widely used construction material in the world because of cement concrete's low cost. This low cost is due to plant and energy efficiency and abundant nearby reserves of raw materials.

Before Medusa committed $50 million to the current conversion program TWO IMPORTANT CONSIDERATIONS concerned the rezoning of this 230 acre parcel located in Charlevoix Township contiguous to other Medusa-owned reserves in Norwood Township.

CONSIDERATION #1: SHALE RESERVES

Shale along with limestone and sand is a key raw material in the manufacture of Medusa-Charlevoix Cement. Currently they haul shale from their Ellsworth Quarry which is 17 miles away requiring a round trip of 34 miles.

Their normal shale needs during 1978 for example required over 4,000 round trips between Ellsworth and Charlevoix. These double-tandem trucks are driven by courteous and competent drivers. Despite an excellent safety record, these trucks are wide and long: most casual motorists would just as soon not pass them, drive behind them or in front of them.

Even more important than this SAFETY FACTOR are the energy and maintenance costs required by these huge trucks to make over 4,000 round trips. Since 1975, Medusa has experienced constant rate increases because of rising fuel and maintenance cost. Mining shale adjacent to their plant has major economic advantages.

CONSIDERATION #2: ESTABLISHING THE QUALITY OF RESERVES WITHIN A REASONABLE SCHEDULE

As part of the comprehensive study which preceded Medusa's $50 million commitment to the Charlevoix plant conversion, future shale reserves were estimated to be adequate in this 230 acre parcel. In order to formulate a more detailed operational plan, it is now necessary to determine more precisely the QUALITY of these reserves within a reasonable time frame. This time frame has already been upset by the November 13 referendum. Such unfortunate delays have to be considered in establishing a reasonable schedule. Medusa knows from long experience that this schedule cannot be rushed because of these required time-consuming actions:

STEP #1—Rezone 230 acres
STEP #2—More Definitive Core Drills for the formulation of a Detailed Operational Plan
STEP #3—Secure Permit from Charlevoix Township
STEP #4—Secure Mining Permit from State of Michigan
STEP #5—Prepare land to be mined
STEP #6—Start Mining Development
STEP #7—Start Mining

In summary, Medusa needs this rezoning now to fulfill two urgent commitments to energy conservation and utilization of shale reserves.

Rayders end drought, edge Boyne City

It had been six weeks since Charlevoix last tasted victory. The long dry spell ended Friday when the Rayders upended backyard rival Boyne City, 21-12, to close out the 1979 football campaign.

The Rayders concluded the season with a 4-5 record - 2-5 in the Michigan-Huron Shores. Boyne City ended up winless in nine starts.

The conference title was captured by Cheboygan for the second consecutive year. The Chiefs edged St. Ignace, 21-18, to wrap up an undefeated season. Gaylord was second with a 6-1 record.

By beating Boyne City, Charlevoix kept itself out of the cellar. The Rayders tied with Petoskey for sixth place.

The Ramblers gave Charlevoix a scare Friday, especially when Todd Newville plowed in from the one yard line in the first quarter to give Boyne City a 6-0 lead. The Rayders bounced back to-back touchdowns, however.

Sophomore Jim Buchanan got the first one on a 12 yard run in the first quarter and Gerard Doan scored the second on a seven yard pass from Scott Kelly in the second quarter. Jerry Sladek kicked the extra point after both scores to give the Rayders a 14-6 halftime advanatge.

Newville narrowed the gap in the third quarter as he carried the pigskin into the endzone from three yards out. But the Ramblers try for a two point conversion to tie the score failed.

Charlevoix then put together a drive late in the game to ice the victory. Nick Anderson got the touchdown on a seven yard run. A key play in the drive was a 15 yard pass from Kelly to Doug Buday on fourth down. Sladek kicked the extra point.

For Charlevoix, Buchanan picked up 58 yards in 12 carries. Sladek led the defensive charge with 14 tackles and Jack Cross added nine.

Harriers place 12th

Charlevoix finished 12th in the Class C track state finals at Clare Saturday.

St. Louis won the title with 86 points. Freeland was a close second with 88 points and host Clare was third with 151 points. Charlevoix had 324 points.

For the Rayders, Jay Swartwout placed 34th with a time of 16:13, Jim Duke was 51st at 16:39, Jeff Landon was 69th at 16:50, Jim Landon was 75th at 16:51, Todd Russell was 75th at 16:53, Mark Dreith was 133rd at 17:30 and Scott Davis was 138th at 17:36. Overall, 168 runners from 24 schools competed. The winning time was 14:54.

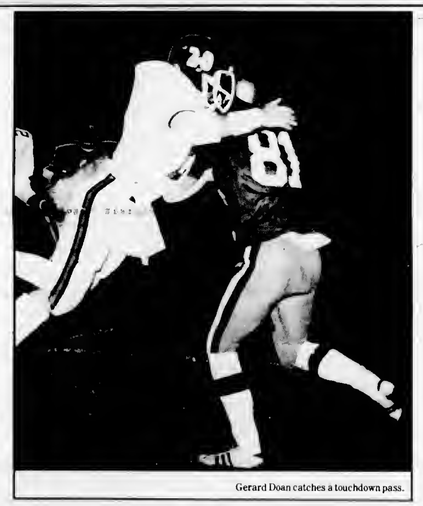
Jv's lose

It was all Boyne City Thursday as the Charlevoix Rayder junior varsity football squad closed out the year on the short end of a 24-0 score against the Ramblers.

Boyne City scored in the first quarter on a five yard run by Todd Rickard. Quarterback John Thompkins followed with a two point conversion. In the third quarter, Thompkins ran 22 yards for a touchdown and Bob Christy scored the two point conversion. In the final stanza, Kevin Crandell tallied on a 10 yard run and Shawn Almesbury ran for two points.

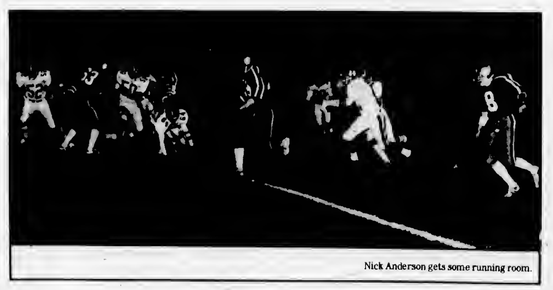
Coach Hal Evans praised the work of five Rayders - Pat Avery, who had 11 tackles, Chuck Morris, Bill Ranger, Mark Morgan and Jeff Morgridge.

Charlevoix finished with a 3-5 record.



Gerard Doan catches a touchdown pass.

Rayder defense tries to stop Ramblers from scoring.



Nick Anderson gets some running room.

Injuries plague Rayder hoopsters

There will be no Michigan-Huron Shores championship this year for Coach Toni Felter's Charlevoix Rayder basketball squad.

The injury riddled Rayders dropped two league contests last week, 60-34 to Petoskey and 70-56 to Gaylord. Charlevoix now stands 4-5 in league play and 7-5 overall.

The Rayders have lost four straight - all without leading scorer Melinda Klooster, who is out with a knee injury - Charlevoix was no match for Petoskey on Tuesday night. The Northmen vaulted to a 18-6 first quarter lead. It was 27-12 at half and 44-16 after three quarters.

Petoskey had four players in double figures. Sarah Russell led the attack with 16 points, Becky Gengle added 12 points and Wendy Brown and Eileen O'Brien chipped in with 10 apiece. For the Rayders, sophomore Holly Taber canned 10 points.

Charlevoix had a much closer game at Gaylord on Thursday. After trailing 16-12 at the end of the first quarter, the Rayders outscored the Blue Devils 10-4 in the second quarter to take a 22-20 halftime lead. However, Gaylord erupted for 50 points in the second half to win going away.

Debbie Maxon had a fine game for Gaylord with 32 points while Lisa Pischner had 18 points and Taber and Amy Kroll added 13 each for Charlevoix. In addition to Klooster's absence, the Rayders played without Mel Kerridge (injured) and Teresa Noirot (ill).

The Rayder's junior varsity squad also dropped two games last week, 40-22 to Petoskey and 48-36 to Gaylord. Laura Kemp scored 20 points in the loss at Gaylord.

Charlevoix will host Cheboygan Tuesday.

"Where tomorrow starts today"

County to operate public bus system

By Peg Ohle

The letter to Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners Chairman Clyde Cunningham started out:

"Congratulations to Charlevoix County for being the first to be approved for funding under the 'County Incentive' program.

The letter was signed by Grovenor (Kip) Grimes, manager of the Bus Development Section of the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT).

And it all means that some time next year, probably in the fall, Charlevoix County will start operating a public transportation system of buses.

The new system will replace the two-bus system now operated by the County Commission on Aging for the benefit of elderly and handicapped people. The present system will continue until the new one is activated.

The "Transportation Design" as prepared by the MDOT gets down to the smallest detail of operation:

The service area will be the entire county of Charlevoix. The system will provide transporetation to all citizens of Charlevoix County. It will incorporate the services now provided by human services agencies, as well as provide countywide general transportation services. Vehicles will be radio dispatched through a single dispatch center. The county will be divided into three servlee zones centered around Boyne City, East Jordan, and the City of Charlevoix. Service types will be demand-response, reservation, work trips, and possibly a route linking the three communities. Connections between county buses and intercity buses will be developed to provide access to Petoskey and Traverse City.

There will be seven buses in the system – the two now being used and five new vehicles, three of them with lifts. Each of the tiiree cities will have two vehicles and one will be used for inter-city connections.

The buses will be in service from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays, and by advance reservation only on Sundays. A dispatcher will be on duty from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays.

Fare rates for a one-way trip within the limits of the three communities will be 60 cents for those aged 12 through 59, and 30 cents for all others, including handicapped people of any age.

Outcounty area rates will be $1 for those aged 12 through 59, and 50 cents for all others, including handicapped people of any age.

A "resonable goal" of five passengers per vehicle hour is projected as reachable near the end of the first year of operation. If this goal is met, 70,130 passengers will ride the first year and pay fares amounting to $31,560.

Where will all the rest of the money come from to set up and operate this bus system? Apparently almost all of it will come from the MDOT.

A sample budget prepared by the MDOT indicates it will cost them $205,500 in capital expenditures and operations to set up the system.

Operations for the first year are estimated to cost $239,100, which will be covered by a grant of $197,540 from MDOT, $10,000 from "other funding sources",and the $31,560 in fares and donations.

Similar budgets for the second and third years of operation have also been set up, indicating larger grants from MDOT and higher receipts from passenger fares and donations. However, during the third year, the maximum state share is only 75 percent of the total cost, necessitating raising a higher amount from "other funding sources".

Presumably these other sources could be local, state, or federal. However, there are no funds for a transportation system in the recently-adopted county budget for 1980.

The basic state funds noted above for capital outlays and operating expenses come mostly from taxes on gasoline and license plate fees, both of which were increased some time ago.

THIS IS THE QUESTION
before Charlevoix Township voters
Tuesday, November 13

Do you approve of the amendment to Charlevoix Township Zoning Ordinance, of July 9, 1979, which rezoned 230 acres of Crescent Stone Company (Medusa) property from Agricultural and Scenic Reserve to Industrial 1? YES NO

What will your YES X VOTE accomplish for you and Charlevoix Township

Your YES X VOTE will support the judgment of these 14 public officials who approved the Medusa rezoning amendment.

Charlevoix Township Zoning Board Unanimous YES: CLARENCE GOLDSTICK, DOROTHY LEWANO, HAL FORBRIG, SHELBY GOSS

Charlevoix Planning Commission Unanimous YES: OON SMITH (Township Trustee), TOM WIELAND, DENNIS JASON, JUNIOR HUNT, DON COLE, LARRY LEVENGOOO, RAY TOWNE, ROSE BERGMANN, OSCAR STROUD, JOANNE ELZINGA

Charlevoix Township Trustees:

Your YES X VOTE will enable Medusa-Charlevoix to get the required shale for future manufacturing operations.

Your YES X VOTE is a vote for jobs. It is a vote for greater financial stability. It is a vote for greater and greater tax support by Medusa for our Charlevoix community.

Here's how a long-time Charlevoix resident feels about Medusa's importance to our community.

"People residing in Charlevoix believe this is the best place in the country to live. To continue living in this area, we must make a good living. This can only be accomplished by working together with industry. Industry has problems like we do. Industry is experiencing energy problems and inflation problems the same as we do. We have to work together with industry to help them and us grow in spite of these problems. We can not afford to unreasonably restrict industrial growth!

Medusa has been our friend and neighbor. Are you aware that Medusa is the largest Charlevoix County taxpayer and one of the largest employers? Their yearly payroll is over 3.2 million dollars and they spend an additional one million dollars locally for goods and services. In addition, they are presently paying yearly 49.5% of the Township's taxes. Medusa is spending 50 million dollars for plant expansion and 600,000 dollars for development of the rezoned land. They voluntarily are involved in an extensive reforestation; contributed over 250,000 dollars toward the paving of Bell's Bay Road, and pledged 75,000 dollars for expansion of the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

For a friendship to continue and grow, the people must help each other with their problems. Medusa has a problem! They must find sufficient raw material to keep their plant in continued operation. In attempt to continue their production in the Charlevoix area they are presently undergoing a plant conversion project. Medusa must have sufficient raw material available at a price that makes it economically feasible to produce their product.

Can you afford to have Medusa close their plant down if they cannot find sufficient raw materials? Have you considered the impact that this would have upon your family? Could you afford your home if your taxes were doubled? The money spent by the Medusa employees, and by Medusa directly, in this community provides a substantial financial base for the local business. How many of these businesses would have to close? How many additional workers in other businesses would lose their jobs? Many of our families, friends and neighbors would have to leave Charlevoix.

Can your business survive solely on the tourist trade? Businessmen appreciate the additional spending that they have received through employees in local industry. Can we afford to discourage industry in our community? If we continue with a negative attitude toward industry, new industries and jobs will not be created. Jobs for our children will be limited. Is that what you want for your family? Don t we need to work together with industry and encourage industry toward reasonable growth in our community?

We must help them to help ourselves.

Has Medusa s use of their present land adversely affected you, or has it benefited you? I believe with all my heart, that when you consider and evaluate Medusa s history that your answer has to be that Medusa has provided you with economic stability and increased your opportunities to live in this area. You may be a school teacher, or you may be a plumber, or store owner. Medusa and other industries, by creating jobs for area residents, has provided people with money to buy your services, to buy your goods, and increased the need for professional people in our community. Medusa means jobs for our community. Jobs for their employees, all the individuals and businesses that their employees support and the people who supply materials, goods, and services directly to Medusa."

School officials invited to court seminar

School administrators and board members often find themselves involved in courtroom battles for which they are not prepared.

"A Day In Court," a seminar sponsored by Central Michigan University, is designed to prepare such personnel for local hearings, grievances, arbitration, and state and federal court proceedings.

The seminar takes place Nov. 8 and 9 at the Hilton Shanty Creek in Bellaire. Two identical seminars will be held Jan. 24 and 25 at Central Michigan University and March 7 and 8 at the Lansing Hilton.

Cost of the seminar is $75, excluding lodging and meals.

CHS speech team reaches state finals

The Charlevoix High School speech team, coached by Mrs. Connie Ford, has advanced to state competition in the drama or one act division to be held at Southfield-Lathrup High School Nov. 16 and 17.

The team's choice of presentation is selections from the everpopular "Fiddler on the Roof".

Schools qualify for state competition by either placing among the top three entries in each class or by school class size, Mrs. Ford explained. The second means of qualification is covered by the M.I.F.A. rules which requires that each school classification must be represented at the state level. Since the Charlevoix team was the only one to advance to the regional level in the C-D class, the team will now qualify to represent this class in state competition.

Charlevoix competed Saturday at Essexville Gabor High School in hopes of a double qualification, Mrs. Ford said. The competition, however, was stiff and all entries were evenly matched in performance and polish of production. In the final analysis, it was the judges' preference of material rather than quality of production that was the deciding factor.

Jack Carlson received an excellent award for his portrayal of the role of Papa Tveye. The group also received two technical awards...one for excellence for costuming and two superiors for state manager and co-ordinator, Martha Staley and Laura Baldwin.

Flint Central placed first, Essexville Gabor, second and Standish-Sterling, third in regional competition.

Mrs. Ford said of her team "The students did a fine job Saturday. They worked hard on this show and I am pleased that they will be representing the C-O schools in our region. It is hard to get 46 students to put out the amount of work necessary for this type of production and have them truly dedicated to a team effort. On the whole we have had that spirit this year and I am proud of them for that effort. This dedication and drive to do well will make them one of the finest C-O representatives at the state level I have seen in reeent years".

Film to help finance trip downstate

A special matinee of the film, "Forever Young, Forever Free" will be presented at Cinema III Sunday afternoon under the sponsorship of the Orama Oivision of the Forensics class at the Charlevoix High School.

The film is a family-type movie, Mrs. Connie Ford, coach of the Forensics team which is sponsoring the film to raise funds to finance the team's trip to the state finals at Southfield-Lathrup High School Nov. 16-17.

There will be two showings at the matinee, the first at 2 p.m. and the second at 4 p.m. Tickets for the matinees are available from all speech class members at a cost of $2.

The management of the theatre is offering the use of the theatre at only a minimum charge for the showing, Mrs. Ford said.

CMU to air programs on local issues

Issues of central and northern lower Michigan are being dealt with monthly by Central Michigan University public television in a half-hour, locally-produced program, "Community College."

On the November program, Public Affairs Producer Elizabeth Guagno takes a look at nature awareness, attitudes toward death, and the problems of the mentally retarded. The program will air on WCMU-TV 14, Mt. Pleasant, and WCML-TV 6, Alpena, on Wednesday, Nov. 14, at 7:30 p.m.

The first segment examines a program called Alternative Intermediate Services. Sponsored by the Mt. Pleasant Regional Center for Developmental Disabilities, AIS advocates the development of group homes instead of institutionalization for the mentally retarded.

The Chippewa Nature Center in Midland will also be featured. The Center's activities promote greater appreciation of the delicate ecological balances in nature.

The third segment is a profile of a member of the Central Michigan University Religion faculty, Roger Hatch. His concern about death and dying has led him to join a citizens' task force which has drafted legislation on the rights of a dying person.

Weddings

McKinney - Klooster

Joan Marie McKinney of Richardson, Texas became the bride of Carl Albert Klooster of Charlevoix on Friday evening, Oct. 26, in the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. McKinney of Richardson, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Klooster of Charlevoix.

The reverend Larry Grooters performed the double-ring ceremony before approximately 200 guests.

For her wedding, the bride chose a gown of polyester silesta chiffon fashioned with an empire bodice, yoke of chiney lace edged in self ruffles, high neckline, A-line skirt extending into a chapel train with lace and wide self ruffle edge. Her lace Juliet cap held a finger-tip imported illusion veil which was edged with lace. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, chrysanthemums, and baby's breath.

Mrs. Diane Bennett, sister of the bridegroom, served as matron of honor. She wore a peach-colored floral gown and carried a long-stemmed pink silk rose.

Dennis Crain of Garland, Texas served as best man, and Patrick Klooster of Charlevoix and Paul Klooster of Garland were ushers. Both ushers are brothers of the bridegroom.

Music for the ceremony was performed by John Grooters, who played three guitar solos, and Frances Boss, who provided traditional organ music.

Following the ceremony, cake and ice cream were served in the church parlors, with Debbie Klooster and Loretta McKinney assisting. A small party at the home of the bridegroom's parents was held later.

The bridegroom's parents also hosted the rehearsal dinner at Leutheuser's Restaurant the evening preceding the wedding.

For her son's wedding, Mrs. Klooster wore a gown of mint green decorated with a double yellow carnation.

The newlyweds plan a trip to Maine at a later date. They are now at home on US-31 South in Charlevoix.

Guests from Pennsylvania, Texas, and Indiana attended the ceremony, as well as friends and relatives from the Charlevoix area.

Parsons was recognized at the Michigan Electric Cooperative Association's annual meeting in Lansing recently.

MARY LOU TANTON of Petoskey has been named to Northern Michigan Congressman Bob Davis' military academy selection committee. Mrs. Tanton is the wife of Dr. John Tanton.

The nine member committee will review applications Davis receives from high school seniors in the 11th Congressional District wishing to be appointed to West Point, Annapolis, the Air Force and Merchant Marine Academies.

Davis said the board will select the nominees based on a competitive system of evaluating the students' high school records, results of the SAT or ACT examinations, character and leadership abilities.

Navy Engineman 2nd Class THOMAS AVERY, son of Valois and Elaine Avery, Charlevoix, recently participated in the major NATO exercise "Display Determination."

He is a crewmember aboard the tank landing ship USS Sumter, homeported at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base, Norfolk, Va.

More than 11,000 US sailors and Marines joined air and naval forces from Portugual, Italy, Turkey and the United Kingdom for the three week exercise in the Mediterranean area. The exercise included operations in northeastern Italy, an amphibious assault in Saros Bay, Turkey and naval exercises in the Mediterrancan Sea.

Operation "Display Determination" was designed to evaluate NATO's capability to reinforce and resupply forces in Southern Europe. It is one of a series of annual operations, conducted each fall from Norway to Turkey, which provides unified and coordinated training of national and NATO forces within the Allied European Command.

A 1975 graduate of Charlevoix High School, Avery joined the Navy in August 1975.

The Department of Natural Resources warns motorists that November is the peak month for car-deer accidents in Michigan.

During 1978, there were a record 17,155 accidents over the 12 month period. Two persons were killed and 944 injured.

In Charlevoix County, there were 119 car-deer accidents and six persons were injured during 1978.

BILL GUTOS, DNR safety manager, says fall and winter, when deer activity is greatest due to the mating season and changing foraging habits, is prime time for car-deer collisions.

Most accidents occur on unlighted roadways after dark; the peak period is two hours after sunset, according to Gutos. Just before dawn is also a likely time.

Gutos offered the following tips to drivers:

When you see a deer warning sign, slow down. It's there because deer have been killed in the area. Keep your speed down for the next two or three miles at least; you can't expect the deer to obligingly cross the highway in front of the warning sign.

Be alert to traffic ahead and behind you and check the shoulder of the road in case you should have to hit the brakes. Make a habit of fastening safety belts so you and your passengers won't be jolted by a hard stop. If you do smash into a deer, chances are less likely that anyone will be seriously hurt if everyone is belted in.

Deer tend to travel in groups, so if you spot a deer crossing the road, assume there's another not far behind. Be ready to hit your brakes and sound your horn. Blowing your horn when you spot a deer may startle it into darting back into cover - but don't count on it. Use your brakes. In most cases there isn't time for evasive action.

If all fails and you do hit a deer, Gutos says try to get your car and the deer off to the side of the road and contact the local police department.

He reminds motorists not to remove a deer from an accident scene without a permit. Every state police post and most law enforcement agencies have the permits. One copy will be given to the person taking the deer and one to the local conservation officer.

Northern Michigan Congressman ROBERT DAVIS says he is pleased that the U.S. House of Representatives has acknowledged the urgent need for a winter heating assistance program for the poor and the elderly.

The House passed a measure last week which would provide payments to individuals and families living on incomes of 125 percent of the poverty level or less. A total of $1.6 billion would go to various heating assistance programs under the House measure, compared to a total of $250 million allocated for federal heating assistance last year.

Davis said the House resolution takes into account the weather in an area and the difference in the cost of heating fuel from last year to this year. He said the bill does not require individuals to show overdue fuel bills or be threatened with fuel cutoffs before they qualify for assistance. And, he added, it provides for renters to qualify for assistance, whether they pay directly for heating or indirectly through increases in rent.

The energy allowances will not be considered as income or resources under any other publicly assisted income program, Davis explained, but would be taken into consideration in determining eligibility for further energy assistance program.

COMMUNITY REPORT

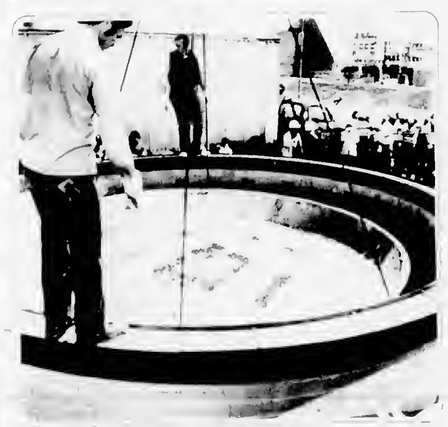
MEDUSA-CHARLEVOIX

GOOD WORKERS - GOOD CITIZENS - GOOD NEIGHBORS

People are the measure of our company, and the community they support

As Medusa-Charlevoix prepares to bring its new process on line, we would like to share a few thoughts with our Charlevoix-area neighbors about community relationships.

Since 1967, Medusa employees have distinguished themselves on and off the job. As workers, they have consistently led other Medusa plants in productivity. Along with their families, these same employees have worked alongside their friends and neighbors in community affairs.



The Traverse Area Chamber of Commerce has a reminder that man does not live by cherry pie alone. Fortunately, it also lives by cement. Cement is among the area's major industries.

The above message was one of many we received from the cherry capital, and we're happy to have participated.

The cake was baked in a special 1,000 lb. steel pan which measured 11 feet 7 inches in diameter, 2 inches at its deepest, and was baked on the grounds of the Medusa Cement Corporation's Charlevoix, Michigan, on May 16, 1979, as part of the town's Bicentennial celebration.

These photographs illustrate the warm personal side of the Medusa-Charlevoix community partnership. Underlying these productive neighborly day-to-day relationships which have developed since Medusa arrived here twelve years ago, is one all-important element: JOBS.

A local businessman put it this way in a letter he recently wrote to Charlevoix Township residents:

"We need quality industrial growth in our community. Industrial plants which have come to our community within the past 12 years have provided us with jobs and economic stability. Industry has given us year-round employment. We no longer need to rely on seasonal jobs, and as a result, wages have substantially increased over the past 12 years.

How quickly we forget our economic conditions prior to 1967! I have been a Charlevoix area resident for over 35 years. I clearly remember that most Charlevoix workers were required to rely on seasonal resort employment. These jobs paid minimum wage, and most of our children had to leave this area to find employment. Those were difficult times for most of us.

The industrial growth over the past 12 years has substantially changed the character of our community. As a result of the cooperative growth between industrial and resort interests, Charlevoix has grown to its present level of prosperity. This level of prosperity we must keep! We can not afford to throw our industry out. Don't we need to work with industry, to have more and better jobs, and keep more of our children in this community?"

To specifically define Medusa's importance to the Charlevoix-Emmet County area, please consider this recent study by Data Research Center Inc. Traverse City, Michigan:

DATA RESEARCH CENTER INC.

QUESTION
What Is The Potential Impact Of New Development For The Charlevoix-Emmet Area?

DATA RESEARCH CENTER
"For each dollar of income earned by these industries, around 23¢ is distributed to LOCAL HOUSEHOLDS in the form of wages, etc.

QUESTION
What does every dollar that Medusa brings into the community create in economic activity within the community?

ANSWER: $2.29

DATA RESEARCH CENTER
The community multiplier (of 2.29) represents the average of the industry multipliers with each industry being weighted according to its sales. It is calculated that the average dollar flowing into the community results in $2.29 of economic activity to the community.

QUESTION
How much area economic activity is generated by Medusa?

ANSWER: $89,880,000

DATA RESEARCH CENTER
We would expect that a projected [illegible] for Medusa Cement Company [illegible] would result in increase of $89,880,000 [illegible] economic activity for the area. If the Medusa Cement Company were to disappear overnight, total sales in the community would decline by $89 million because of the impacts on other industries.

QUESTION
How much would this activity generate in local wages, salaries and proprietor income?

ANSWER: $18,832,000

DATA RESEARCH CENTER
This (activity) would generate in local wages salaries and proprietor income $18,832,000.

QUESTION
How many jobs does Medusa create in the Charlevoix-Emmet area?

ANSWER: 355 jobs

DATA RESEARCH CENTER
It is normally assumed that a manufacturing plant provides a 1.5-2.0 employment multiplier for the community. We estimate that there will be created by the Medusa Cement Company 355 jobs within the Charlevoix-Emmet area. 142 of these jobs will be directly provided by Medusa. The remaining 213 jobs are or will be created in other agencies.

This current research gives you an overview of Medusa's economic importance in Charlevoix County. Possibly you have heard that Medusa is the County's largest taxpayer as of 1979 and wondered how much personal property and real estate taxes Medusa pays in comparison with other businesses. Here are the 1979 County Tax Totals:

Medusa	624,822
Consumers Power	592,470
Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative Inc	226,553
Other major Charlevoix Industry	122,465
East Jordan Iron Works	133,348
Sherman Canning	7,242
Argonne	2,188
The Belvedere Club (includes golf club, and all other property)	112,111
Grey Gables	3,132
Murdick's Fudge	950
The Lodge	9,789
Weathervane Terrace and Inn	8,351
First State Bank	5,588
LaBlance Agency	668
Irish Boat Shop	11,867

Since 1967, Medusa has contributed $5,341,442 in tax payments to Charlevoix County. Medusa's 1979 local tax contribution will be $624,822 as indicated above. This is an increase of $212,629. Most of this increase reflects Medusa's confidence in the community as expressed in the current $50 million plant conversion. Here again, let's get away from dull figures and look at community improvements that you can see or feel in your own pocketbook.

Most of Medusa's Charlevoix property and all of its manufacturing facilities are located in Charlevoix Township. Although Medusa requires no Township water, no Township sewer service and no Township road cleaning or plowing, MEDUSA PAYS 49.5% OF ALL TOWNSHIP TAXES.

Here's how some of this Medusa money was put to use to improve Township Essential Services:

Prior to 1967 many of Charlevoix Township roads were rough, primitive routes — with no paving except for some tar-and-chip surfaces.

Today — after 12 years with Medusa on the scene — 99 per cent of Charlevoix Township's roads are paved — thanks in large measure to Medusa's tax contributions. It should also be noted that, above and beyond taxes, Medusa recently contributed $230,000 in cash and $15,000 in materials toward the paving of Bells Bay Road.

Take a look at fire protection. Prior to 1967, Charlevoix Township did not own a single piece of fire fighting equipment. Today, just 12 years after Medusa's arrival here, Charlevoix Township has two fully equipped fire stations, strategically located on the north and south sides of town. Insurance rates have been reduced thirty (30) percent — thanks in part to Medusa's taxes. This reduction was estimated by the Charlevoix Insurance Agency.

Next, let's look at the cost of operating schools.

In the 1977-78 season, the school enrollment was 1,719. With an operating budget of $2,510,445, the operations cost per pupil was $1,460.

The school operational taxes paid by Medusa that year were $284,846. This, in itself, was enough to pay the operational costs for 195 children.

As far as the children of Medusa employees are concerned, there were 141 enrolled last year. Their parents of course pay taxes like everybody else. Even if they didn't, their company's tax contribution would be far more than enough to cover the cost of schooling for their children. At last year's rate it amounted to more than $2,000 for each Medusa child.

Thus it is obvious that there is a sizeable net benefit to the community, well beyond the cost of providing education for the children of Medusa workers.

This also applies to many of the other services which are provided by your, and Medusa's tax dollars. The Medusa plant is not served by public water. It is not served by public sewers, and Medusa plows and cleans its own roads.

And of course, taxes are not the only field in which Medusa supplies economic benefits to the community.

The Medusa annual payroll of $3.2 million in 1979 and estimated at $4 million in 1980 is an important element in the Charlevoix business scene. Medusa employees are well paid and their purchases of goods and services make up a substantial part of the area's economic activity.

MEDUSA PAYS TAXES PROMPTLY

Beyond the size of Medusa's tax payments, payroll, local supply and labor purchases and out-of-town visitors (over 5,600 year-round visitors in 1978), stands an important fact: Medusa pays its taxes promptly. While some large industries take advantage of laws which permit withholding tax payments up to three years, Medusa pays its taxes on the dot. The withholding of taxes by industry in some communities has caused disastrous dislocation of teachers and reductions in vital services.

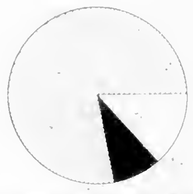
Medusa recognizes the importance of stable and vital local governments and school systems. Medusa does not condone any practice that would weaken the effectiveness of these institutions.

Here's how Medusa supports individual school, township and county services with 49.5% of all taxes paid in the township.

ALL SCHOOL TAXES
77.37% of Township Property Taxes
COMBINED SCHOOL 74.17%
INTERMEDIATE SCHOOL 3.20%
MEDUSA SHARE $330,879
OTHER TOWNSHIP TAXPAYERS $337,563

TOWNSHIP 8% of Township Property Taxes
MEDUSA SHARE $34,170
OTHER TOWNSHIP TAXPAYERS $34,860

COUNTY 11.98% of Township Property Taxes
MEDUSA SHARE $51,255
OTHER TOWNSHIP TAXPAYERS $52,260



As Good Workers. Good Citizens. Good Neighbors. Medusa is dedicated to contribute to the economic well-being of our community as well as the protection of our beautiful northern Michigan environment.

Planners OK 18 unit condo

An 18 unit condominium development near Hampton Village was approved by the Charlevoix Planning Commission Monday night.

The proposal will now go before the city council.

The development is called Marina Bluff. The 4.5 acre site overlooks Lake Charlevoix. The property is zoned PUD (Planned Unit Development) which allows four units per acre.

According to the site plan, three housing clusters are proposed. Each cluster would contain six units. The developers - George Richardson, Tom Erber and John Malpeli - indicated Monday the project would be completed in phases. Richardson said after the first cluster is constructed it could be "a year or two" before construction would resume on the other two clusters.

In approving the site plan, the commission made several recommendations to council: 1) Marina Bluff Drive - which will service the development - be kept private 2) Tennis courts not be lighted and 3) An environmental impact statement - required under PUD zoning - be waived.

Before approaching council, the commission asked that the developers indicate the parking spaces (45 required) on the site plan and draft a construction timetable for the project.

A petition was presented to the commission and the developers from residents in Hampton Village. Residents say they are concerned about increased traffic on Eaton Street and Hampton Road because of the development. The ingress and egress for the project will be at Hampton Road and Leonard Street. Residents asked that an alternate route be studied - either from Ferry Avenue or Stover Road.

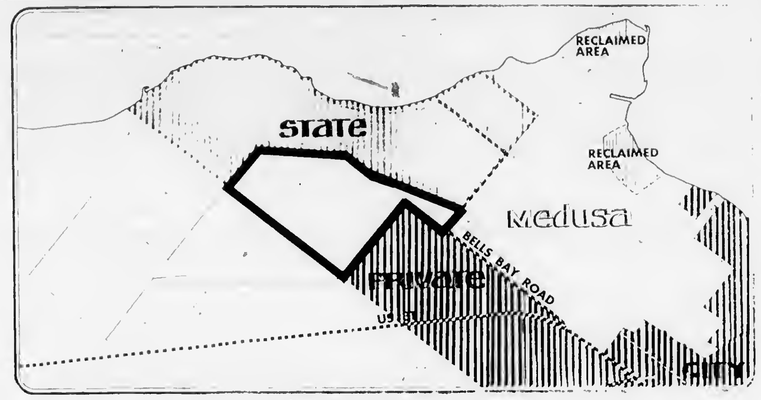
The commission, however, said the development would not create a traffic problem. In fact, the commission argued that more traffic would be generated if the property went single family residential.

In other action, the commission:

Recommended that Bernie Ward be allowed to construct a residence above his boat house on Round Lake. Ward would need side and rear yard setbacks. Ward said he planned to live in the residence and store his charter boats in the boat house. He added that the boat house needs "extensive repair" and that he would like to "tear it up" this winter and start building in the spring. In recommending the project's approval, the commission asked that council examine the property and other properties along the lake since the possibility exists that other lakefront owners could make the same request. Ward could meet requirements of the ordinance by building elsewhere on his property.

Recommended that the city manager get a stop work order to stop construction of an addition to a building in the Central Business District (CBD).

According to City Manager Jim Brinker, a building permit was issued in error. The commission said that a site plan is required. Questions about parking were raised.



The 230 acres rezoned to industrial is outlined in bold.

Record turnout of township voters approve Medusa rezoning

Voters in Charlevoix Township Tuesday upheld a decision by the township board by approving an amendment to the township ordinance that rezoned 230 acres of Medusa property from agricultural and scenic reserve to industrial.

A record 347 voters turned out for the election. The final tally was 194 votes in favor of the amendment and 151 votes against. There were two spoiled ballots. There are 610 registered voters in the township.

Now that voter approval has been obtained, Medusa officials plan to conduct "more definitive core drillings" on the property so a "detailed operational plan" can be formulated. After that is accomplished, permits for mining the property must be obtained from Charlevoix Township and the State of Michigan.

Tuesday's election apparently ends a year long struggle by Medusa to get the acreage rezoned. The request was approved by three different boards - the Charlevoix Township Zoning Board (February), the Charlevoix Planning Commission (March) and the Charlevoix Township Board (July). It was after the township board vote that residents in the township submitted a petition asking that the issue be brought before the voters.

Reached after Tuesday's election, Dale Boss, chairman of the Charlevoix Township Vote of Confidence Citizens Committee, had these comments:

"Today's gratifying vote of confidence in support of our township supervisor, Oscar Stroud, clerk, Joanne Elzinga, and treasurer Rose Bergmann, solidly confirms the July 9 township amendment which rezoned 230 acres of Medusa property from agricultural and scenic reserve to industrial.

"This record turnout of township voters favoring this rezoning represents a giant step forward for all Charlevoix County residents young and old alike. Everyone benefits when industry and the community work cooperatively. The only losers in today's election are those residents who fail to recognize this community's need for a growing industrial-commercial employment and tax base."

Boss said the rezoning will allow Medusa to fulfill two urgent commitments to energy conservation and utilization of shale reserves. Currently, Medusa hauls shale from its Ellsworth quarry, which is about 17 miles from the plant.

Boss added that the Charlevoix Township Vote of Confidence Citizens Committee is contemplating the formation of a permanent organization to encourage expansion and modernization of local industry.

PETITION

Prior to Tuesday's election, there had been a lot of public discussion on the petition that was signed by township residents asking that the issue be brought before the electorate. The petition was posted on the union bulletin board at Medusa and certain names on it were circled, checked or starred.

"It is my opinion that the circles, checks and stars around certain names on the petition is an attempt to single out, intimidate and harass those people who were willing to step forward and ask the Medusa rezoning be made a ballot question," said George Duke. "I recognize that the petition is a matter of public record but it should not be used in a reckless, harassing or intimidating manner."

Most of the names that were circled were names of businessmen. A source at Medusa told the Courier that employees were talking about boycotting the businesses that had signed the petition. However, Tom Oleksy, president of Local 480, United Cement Mine and Gypsum Workers, said he was not aware of any boycotting.

Oleksy said he was aware of the petition on the bulletin board, but that he had no knowledge of who put it up and why certain names were circled, checked or starred.

"I saw it up on the board and I noticed that some names were circled but I didn't see anything wrong about that," he said. "That petition is a public document."

Oleksy added that the workers have a "constitutional right" to know who signed the petition. Furthermore, he said, he did not think the signaling out of certain names on the petition was done to harass or intimidate those people.

Oleksy said the petition was on the bulletin board for about two months. Duke and other residents whose names were on the petition were given a copy of the petition showing the circles, checks and stars adjacent to certain names. Duke then sent letters to Oleksy and Medusa Plant Manager Chuck Broneck indicating that this was an attempt to harass and intimidate those people.

Oleksy said he believed Duke and the "citizens committee" (who opposed the rezoning) were guilty of harassment and intimidation and that the letter was proof of that.

CITY ELECTION

Meanwhile, in the City of Charlevoix voters returned all the incumbents to office. Sam Supernaw received 222 votes for mayor, Dr. Jeff Porter received 88 votes as first ward alderman, Robert Timms received 23 votes as second ward alderman, Earl Muma received 70 votes as third ward alderman and Deanne Balch received 100 votes as clerk.

All the incumbents were unopposed. Timms and Mrs. Balch, however, ran as write-in candidates. Timms just barely edged Kenneth Whitley, who garnered 21 votes. All told, 366 votes were cast.

Big Rock generating electricity once again

By Sara Gay Dammann

After a shaky start, Big Rock Nuclear Power Plant is again generating electricity.

The Consumers Power Company plant started up last Monday, Nov. 5 after an eight-month shutdown to repair leaks and damaged parts within the reactor.

The next evening, Tuesday, Nov. 6, the plant was shutdown again, to repair small leaks from two flanges in pipes which carry electric wires through the reactor vessel wall to instruments within the reactor core.

Consumers Power Company officials and Nuclear Regulatory (NRC) spokesman termed the leaks "not dangerous." But the plant was forced to remain closed until Friday (Nov. 9) when it was once again put back on line.

Donald DeMoor, plant technical engineer, told reporters that he did not anticipate any further problems. By Monday the plant was generating at capacity, 75 megawatts.

NRC Inspector Kenneth Ridgeway disclosed that the leaks which had closed the plant soon after it resumed operation, last week, were discovered during tests before the plant was fired up to go back on line, but the plant was permitted to go back on line so technicians could test the turbines.

Meanwhile, the Charlevoix organization opposed to Consumer's request to increase the spent fuel storage capacity at Big Rock, announced that the NRC has set Dec. 5 and 8 for pre-hearing sessions. They will be held in Petoskey at the City Council Chambers. (Story on page 5.)

The Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix have been admitted as intervenors in Consumers Power Company's request to expand the fuel storage at the plant. They are protesting the near quadrupling of the storage of radioactive fuel at the site, arguing that the increased storage capacity would permit Big Rock, the fifth oldest nuclear plant in the world, to operate beyond its natural lifetime.

Recently the Concerned Citizens have added to their arguments the question of the safety of Big Rock's containment sphere.

The NRC announced last week that Big Rock, along with all plants in the country, was asked to study their shielding design. The NRC raised questions of the ability of Big Rock's ¾ inch thick steel containment sphere to stop the passage of radioactivity in the case of a Three Mile Island type accident.

In order to stop the leakage of radioactivity, (specifically gamma rays), a two to three foot thick cement silo may have to be constructed around the present structure.

Constructed in 1962, Big Rock's current license expires in 2001. It was the first plant granted a license to use plutonium as a fuel, on an experimental basis.

The just ended eight month shutdown, followed by the leak, and then the questions of the plant's design have led to speculation about an early retirement for Big Rock.

Observers close to the plant, however, say that despite its problems and limited power, 75 megawatts, the electricity generated by Big Rock is too important to Consumers Power Company for the plant to be retired early.

Winter on its way, 10" of snow falls in Charlevoix

Although winter does not officially arrive until Dec. 22, Charlevoix got a taste of what's to come.

According to officials at the Charlevoix Wastewater Treatment Plant, 10 inches of snow fell over the weekend. Officials recorded one inch of snowfall Friday morning, seven inches of snowfall Saturday morning and an additional two inches Sunday morning. Measurements are taken at 8 a.m.

As a comparison, Charlevoix did not receive this much snow last year until late November.

The snow made roads slippery. In fact, the icy pavement was partly to blame for an accident on US-31 near Barnard Road Monday morning. Charlevoix County sheriff's deputies said James Lutz, 48, and his daughter, Kathleen, 17, were injured when an Allied Van truck and trailer driven by Lawrence Bergstrom, 39, Barbeau, jack-knifed in front of the Lutz vehicle. Lutz was northbound on US-31 and Bergstrom southbound.

James and Kathleen Lutz are reported in fair condition at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Bergstrom and his two passengers, Joe Johnstone, 18, and Roger Parr, 18, were not injured.

The tractor and the automobile driven by Lutz were badly damaged.

Readers respond to last week's picture

We received several replies to last week's questions about the location of Bert Mason's Grocery Store, shown in our picture. We talked with Mike Hamlin, Mrs. Carl Kohler, Cecil Murray, and Mrs. Pete Scott. They all agreed the store was located between Mason and Clinton Streets on the lake side of Bridge Street, where the park is now. Hamlin identified three of the men shown in front of the store as Charlie Oldrey, Art Olcox, and Bert Mason. He worked at the store about 1912 or 1914 and believes he is pictured in the rear. Mrs. Scott said that she and another woman operated a restaurant known as "Min' Eva's" in the store building in later years. Mrs. Kohler identified the store as being next to the old Bartlett Hotel, where she was born.

When you put your home on the market and try to sell it yourself, you're really on your own. You do your own advertising. Someone must stay by the phone to accept calls, stay home to show prospects through the house.

On your own, you're limited to those few prospects who answer your ads or see your "For Sale" sign. Perhaps a neighbor will bring a friend or relative to see the place. 'Getting to Know You, Getting to Know Me'

Joan Jadwin to lead CHIP workshops

With the success of her first workshop, Joan Heise Jadwin, has announced an evening series of "Getting to Know You. Getting to Know Me," workshops for Charlevoix's CHIP Counseling Center.

Starting Nov. 29, running for five consecutive Thursdays from 7 to 9:30 p.m., at CHIP, Joan will lead the men and women who participate through a series of exercises and discussions aimed at "self-awareness" – better understanding of who we are and why we behave the way we do."

Mrs. Jadwin who has volunteered to lead these workshops for the CHIP Conseling Center, has, returned to Charlevoix, her home town, after a career as a teacher and counselor in Flint.

Talking about the goals of her workshops, Joan says, "We share our feelings, our attitudes and our values and share in the joy of discovering that others have similar feelings, attitudes and values."

She also talks of a "quiet examination of self." She emphasizes that her one and only sermon during these workshops is that "there will be no judgements made and there must be complete confidentiality."

The first workshop Joan conducted for CHIP, this fall, was billed as an effort to fulfill her dream of "using her training and experience to help Charlevoixans, old timers and newcomers, get to know themselves and each other better."

Some ten people have met regularly at the CHIP Center for the first series of workshops, apparently enjoying the experience so much that another CHIP staff member was moved to say, "I might join the group just to find out what all the laughter has been about."

Mrs. Jadwin's workshops can be called "personal growth groups," in that she uses her group leadership skills to help people discover more about themselves and others."

Referring to the recent workshop, she said she had a cross section of local people. She laso said those who joined the first workshop have developed friendships and valued the sessions to such an extent they will probably continue meeting on an informal basis, after the workshop officially ends.

Among the specific exercises Mrs. Jadwin conducts are relaxation techniques.

"When you are ready to fly internally, reacting to stress, you can learn a process of slowing down. It is something you must practice, as with anything else, but proper relaxation techniques can actually slow down your physiological processes, your heart beat, your blood pressure, and give your body a chance to cope, a chance to focus."

There are other exercises, not all physical, through which Mrs. Jadwin leads her workshop participants.

"We ask what would you put in a perfect day, for example. And then we discuss how to achieve those goals. The emphasis is on supporting each other," she explains.

How have the people who participated in the first workshops reacted to their experience?

One woman wrote, "We have achieved your goal of people from the community sharing themselves with each other."

To register for the workshops beginning Nov. 29, call the CHIP center at 547-6551. Deadline for registration is Monday, Nov. 26. The workshop will be limited to 14 persons. A fee of $10 per person will cover materials, for all sessions.

Historical Society of Michigan looking for businesses 100 years old or more

The Historical Society of Michigan is continuing its search for businesses which have been operating in the state for at least 100 years.

The society started recognizing centennial businesses in 1976 as a Bicentennial project, and because the project received such enthusiastic response, it has been integrated into an ongoing project of the society.

According to Frank C. Wilhelm, executive director of the society, more than 350 centennial businesses have been located through an intensive search conducted by local historians.

"This most exclusive group of businesses has been honored in community ceremonies sponsored by historical societies and chambers of commerce," Wilhelme said. "Ceremonies include a presentation of a handsome, personalized certificate officially designating the company as a Michigan Centennial Business."

The society is especially interested in locating all businesses celebrating their centennial in 1980. These businesses will be honored at the annual Salute to Michigan's Business Pioneers, a celebration dinner for centennial businesses, scheduled for May 21, 1980 in Lansing. Businesses celebrating their 125th and 150th anniversaries will also be recognized at this dinner.

Applications for centennial business certificates should include the complete business name, address and phone number, the name and title of the chief executive officer, documention (or xerox copies of documentation) of founding date, and the name and address of the person submitting the application. Applications should be mailed to the Historical Society of Michigan, 2117 Washtenaw Ave., Ann Arbor, Mi., 48104.

Government interested in Hat Island

The federal government is making overtures to purchase or lease Hat Island.

The 11 acre island is presently owned by Edwin Jakeway of Grand Blanc. It is located northeast of Hog Island in the Beaver Island chain.

The government - through its Wildlife Ecosystem Program - would like to "preserve and protect" the wildlife resources on the island.

Colonial nesting birds, including a variety of gulls, terns and herons utilize Hat Island for nesting. The Caspian tern colony on the island produced 43 percent of the Caspian tern nests in the U.S. Great Lakes during 1976 and 1977. The island supports herring gulls and great blue herons and is used during migration by songbirds, shorebirds, raptors and waterfowl.

In addition to Hat Island, the government is interested in Harbor Island (750 acres) in Chippewa County and Gravelly, Gull and Little Gull Islands (22 acres) in Delta County.

Harbor Island - near Drummond Island - is the largest and highest of some 50 islands in Potagannissing Bay. The island is undeveloped and provides a habitat for at least 119 species of birds, according to wildlife surveys. The island is considered an important testing and feeding area for migrant shorebirds, waterfowl, songbirds and raptors. Osprey, marsh hawk and Cooper's hawk - designated by Michigan as threatened species - use the area. The island is unique in that it supports a resident winter white-tailed deer population. Five species of large manumalian predators: black bear, lynx, bobcat, red fox and coyote are found on the island.

The Gravelly, Gull and Little Gull Island group is a nesting colony for herring gulls, black crowned night herons, double crested cormorants, and Caspian terns. The Caspian tern colony has been on Gravelly Island since at least 1893 and is one of only four colonies in the U.S. Great Lakes. Migrant birds use the island complex when crossing this portion of Lake Michigan.

Government officials say "recreational pressure on the islands threatens the bird colonies. Colonial birds are excitable and easily frightened during nesting season. The adults leave the nest site when disturbed and mortality to eggs or young results."

Officials add that if purchasing the islands is determined to be the most feasible alternative for preservation, they will negotiate with landowners on a willing-seller basis. All properties would be appraised and "fair market" value offers made to the landowners.

Opinion

Your Opinion

The election rhubarb

Editor:

Many of you are perhaps confused over the recent events regarding the election on Tuesday, Nov. 6th.

The biggest bone of contention resulted from the fact that the administration somehow decided that we resident voters would not be much interested in the Charter Election; so failed to publish the fact well in advance of the voting date on Nov. 6.

We have in our midst many people with a distinct abhorrence for constitutional government with its incorporated checks and balances insuring respectable government providing respectable people will step forward to make it function.

Contrary to what some of you have heard – the position of city clerk elected at large (same as the Mayor) by all of the people of the city is a BIG, important job with actually more opportunity to serve the people than the position of Mayor.

I have before me a copy of – State and Local Government in Michigan by Ferris E. Lewis. Which states the following, (quote)

The city clerk is an elected official of the city. His duties and powers, in general, are:

1. He is clerk of the council and keeps an accurate record of the proceedings of the council.

2. He keeps a duplicate record of all moneys received and paid out by the city treasurer. (in fact the treasurer does not pay out funds without proper warrant from the clerk.)

3. He draws orders for the payment of money, by the city treasurer, when authorized to do so by the city council.

4. He issues licenses. Some city clerks issue as many as seventy different licenses such as dog licenses, boiler operator liccnses, food handlers licenses, etc.

5. He keeps a list of all registered voters living in the city and prepares the precinct poll books.

6. He is responsible for all elections on city matters insuring that voting machines or ballots are correct and ready on election day. (unquote)

The recent controversy involving the election proves that the clerks position is more than a mere part time responsibility.

Why! Do the people who worked so feverishly for our new Charter wish to change it so soon?

They never really wanted the elected clerks position to be incorporated in the new charter and yielded the point to gain public support.

Why! Doesn't some responsible person file in the election process for the position of city clerk?

Mainly because this administration has never implimented all of the new charter by attaching a salary to the position commensurate with the inherent responsibilities of the position.

I urge you to contact your elected councilmen and insist that our city government impliment All of the present City Charter and if they fail to respond; let up proceed to Elect some that will.

But most of all BEWARE of sneaky charter changes. There is much at stake.

Sincerely,
Oscar W. Ward

Teacher strikes should not be legalized

Editor:

I am working diligently to defeat proposed legislation which would retroactively legalize the recent and presently illegal strikes by public school teachers.

In my opinion, the State of Michigan flags on state buildings should be flown at half-mast for as long as we have public school teachers on strike.

My 11 years in the Legislature serve to reinforce my beliefs that indicate government must take lessons from the private enterprise system which cannot survive without good production by good people on a cost accountable basis.

Unions per se are unproductive and gain power and wealth by fomenting strife, demanding shorter hours and higher pay for their members.

Union controlled public school teachers who have tenure, and who consistently refuse to have their competency tested, are insulting the citizens and taxpayers of the State of Michigan. Their direct violation of the law is a poor example to those of their students who can read the local newspapers and learn that lawless teachers are publicly threatening the laws of a sovereign state.

History has shown us that a duly elected government cannot share its monopoly power of compulsion. It cannot share its sovereignty.

Flying the flag at half-staff on state buildings would be a symbol of how close we are to bowing to teachers' demands that we pass law to legalize teacher strikes. We must not allow a large and well organized band of public employees to bring the state to its knees as if we were a factory producing goods rather than a duly elected government providing peace and security to our people. Teachers should be reminded that they are not making cars and car parts which are closely checked and double checked by inspection and recall. In its callous disregard for law and government, the Michigan Education Association would more correctly carry the name Michigan Educated Anarchists.

I hope the readers of your paper will let their Legislators know how they feel about bowing to the union teachers' demands.

Yours very truly,
Gerrit C. "Barney" Hasper

Voluntary budget cuts asked

Steve Andrews

With a possible economic slowdown looming in the future, legislators and administration officials began scouring the state budget last week in an effort to pare $100 million.

The governor, who usually issues executive orders to cut spending subject to approval of the House and Senate Appropriations Committees, as chosen a more informal strategy for cutting costs.

Subcommittees in the House and Senate and department heads will confer to determine where programs can be trimmed to meet the savings goals with the least pain. And efforts to meet these goals will continue throughout the fiscal year.

The governor chose this tactic after being warned by his budget officials that spending may outpace revenues in the months to come. If voluntary cutbacks are not successful, and if state departments fail to reach the targets the Governor has set for them, he may be forced to issue an executive order to cut spending in the spring.

Of course, this does not permit as much leeway in deciding which programs, including education, can be trimmed.

Although the goal is to save $100 million, fiscal experts have indicated they would be satisfied if the state trims $80 to $90 million.

I certainly hope that cooperation is the watchword in the coming months. Voluntary cuts are more palatable than forced ones, certainly, and this is a good time to begin scrutinizing budgets to cut any fat.

During a brief visit to Michigan last week, Republican National Committee Chairman Bill Brock made a short stop at the Capitol in Lansing.

Mr. Brock made a few brief remarks to the House Republican Caucus and answered questions from members of the Capitol press corps.

He had some interesting observations about the entry of U.S. Senator Edward Kennedy into the race for the Democratic nomination for President. Mr. Brock noted that unless Senator Kennedy knocks off President Carter by the time of the March 11 Florida presidential primary, he may very well lose his race for the White House.

"If he doesn't do it that quickly, they're (the Democrats) going to have a very serious divisive battle that I'm not sure is good for the Democratic Party and I'm not even sure is good for the country," Brock told a news conference.

He also noted that a number of what he terned "mainline Democrat Senators" have questioned whether they could support Kennedy, Carter or Governor Jerry Brown of California. He said that he wouldn't be too surprised if more individuals than the three just mentioned enter the race.

Though the challenge to President Carter from his own party is rather interesting drama, it also means that the race for the White House is going to be quite complicated when you consider that there are nine candidates for the Republican nominations as well.

It is a signal to me that as citizens, we all should be following closely what each candidate has to say about inflation, the United States' prestige in the world, unemployment, and other issues important to the future of our country.

The events of the next seven months are going to be a remarkable period in the life of our nation, and one worth remembering in the future.

Visiting an old European settlement

Friday afternoon, under lowering skies and raw northwest winds, I wanted to take my family to the oldest permanent European settlement on the North American continent — which happens to be St. Augustine, Fla.

But time being short, we settled for the second oldest permanent European settlement on the North American continent — which happens to be Sault Ste. Marie.

I am not sure which Soo purports to be the oldest, but we opted for the Holiday Inn on the Canadian side which offers an indoor swimming pool overlooking the St. Marys River, a sauna hot enough to scald your lungs, spacious rooms overlooking some of the world's busiest shipping lanes, and other attractive appointments, including the world's best beer.

Furthermore, the Inn offers a panoramic view of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., where Fr. Marquette established a mission in 1668 — a full 33 years before Cadillac hoisted the first French flag over what is now the city of Detroit.

I have always found it surprising that the Soo located as it is in the far reaches of the northern wilds — should have been founded long before that weighty metropolis to the south. By rights, Detroit should hold the longevity title because its the biggest.

But a quick check of any map of North America will show you that the most direct route from the Lower St. Lawrence is up the Ottawa River, across Lake Nippissing and down the French River to Georgian Bay and Lake Hurun. From there it's clear sailing to points west, north and south.

In any event, I did a lot of thinking about Fr. Marquette and the early French explorers over the weekend. Wouldn't it be something if they could return to the Soo today to see what man has done with their untamed wilderness? Aside from the rapids in the middle of the St. Marys River and the Algoma Range to the north, there is probably not another geographical feature that they would recognize.

They certainly would be surprised to find gigantic freighters of all nations "locking through" the St. Marys River between Lake Superior and Lake Huron.

They would be astounded at the befuddling array of electric lights on both sides of the river, which certainly must be confusing at times to wheelsmen on the lakers.

They would be amazed at the gigantic steel and concrete International Bridge that now spans the wide river in two leaps.

They might hold their noses at fumes arising from steel and paper-making operations on the Canadian side, but I think they would be impressed.

Lastly, wouldn't they have loved to stop at a nine-story Holiday Inn on a cold winter night, warm their frosted hides in the toasty sauna, wallow in the heated swimming pool and dine on chicken teriaki in the red plush dining room, washing down their bountiful repast with huge drafts of Molson's Canadian beer or tankards of LaBatt's India Pale Ale?

If Marquette and his hearty colleagues had discovered the Soo as it is today, they might never have wandered as far south as Detroit.

Although prices in the Canadian Soo are atracious ($1.06 a pound for fryers and $1.03 a dozen for large eggs), Americans are still receiving quite a break on their greenbacks. The exchange rate Friday was 18 cents on the dollar, which means the Canadian economy is in even worse shape than ours — for whatever small consolation that may provide.

A super thriller for sure

Anne Kelly

You can't always trust the covers of books on the best sellers list. A claim to be "The Nation's Bestselling Super-thriller" may very well turn out to be just one more come-on. Nor can you always trust the recommendations of friends or reviewers for that matter. Taste is as personal in reading as it is in eating. But here for your consideration is what claims to be a bestselling super-thriller, certainly was, and was highly recommended by several friends. Eye of the Needle by Ken Follet is probably the most exciting and well-written spy story I have ever read.

Eye of the Needle is a triangular tale of espionage during World War II. On the corners we find Die Nadel, code name for alias Henry Faber, Hitler's master German spy – probably the only agent of consequence left after an MI5 clean up of Fifth Columnists by 1939, Henry's British counterparts Professor Godliman and Frederick Bloggs, and a woman, Lucy Rose.

Henry Faber is a remarkable characterization, quite an improvement over the prosaic secret service agent with all his self-destruct paraphernalia, or the more recent notoriety of the C.I.A. Perhaps what makes Henry so believable is not the ruthless wielding of the stiletto, nor his brilliantly conceived and executed strategies for reconnaisance and survival, nor his resiliency to physical injury, but rather his humanity. We keep catching glimpses of the feeling man, whose over-riding sense of dedication to a cause rationalizes even murder into terms of ethical war conduct. If it is possible to admire the wearer of the black hat, the reader admires Henry Faber.

As for Godliman, former historian of the Middle Ages, presently in the employ of Winston Churchill and the British Military Intelligence and Inspector Bloggs formerly of Scotland Yard with the Special Branch they too, are saved from the plight of the stereotype. Although always just one crucial step behind their prey, they are not bumbling misfits in the Intelligence machine, they are competent. Godbinan and Bloggs are an uncanny duo, Percival Godliman supplying foresight and ingenuity in pursuit, Frederick Bloggs enacting their stratagem. They do not need comic relief to strengthen their roles. They do need someone else.

To complete the triangle with the most critical character of all, incet Lucy Rose, beautiful, vulnerable, intelligent Lucy whose nerves of steel and loyalty beyond the norm may not be typical, but are believable enough to make the reader bite fingernails down to the very last page.

There will be moments when, by virtue of sheer terror you wish you didn't have to read what you are reading. There will be moments when yoo wish you didn't have to stop reading to eat supper. This is a "procrastination novel" which leads to household negligence until that last page is completed. Eye of the Needle, truly super-thriller of the year. Don't miss it.

Fathers experiencing 'empty nest' syndrome

Erma Bombeck

I read an interesting study the other morning that stated more and more fathers are experiencing the "empty nest" syndrome.

"We are living in a time of house husbands, father images, and husbands who share the burden of child raising," the survey said. "It's not uncommon for fathers to be depressed, and feel empty and restless when their children leave home."

"That," I said putting down the paper, "is a bunch of horsefeathers."

"I don't think it's horsefeathers at all," said my husband. "What you're saying is that I don't share the same love and concern for our children that you do. Why, I miss all four of them."

"We only had three," I amended.

"Are you sure? No matter. There isn't a day goes by that I don't think back on the good times we had as a family. Remember that wonderful summer we camped on the Atlantic Ocean and dug for clams? We all sat around the campfire and ate them like popcorn."

"It wasn't the Atlantic Ocean. It was Lake Larvae, and it WAS popcorn because you couldn't find where the clams hid."

"Whatever. I really miss those kids. There were a lot of fun times and a lot of trying times. I miss those too. Remember when our second-born came to me and said, 'Dad, will you teach me how to drive?'"

"I'll never forget it. You sent him tu the Kamikaze Driving School and it set us back $175."

"Gosh, those were good times – the broken legs – the broken skulls – the million and one emergencies that are parenthood."

"You never showed up for an emergency in your life!"

"But I called! Didn't I call?"

"Look, I know you love your children, but somehow men just don't get as involved in the lives of their children as mothers do."

He stood up stiffly. "I'm going to tell you something I've never told you before. I don't know why. Maybe I'm so macho I didn't want you to think I was weak or soft, but when my little girl walked out that door and said, 'Bye, Dad,' something in me died. I remembered the little ponytail and how we were always looking for rubber bands on doorknobs, little dolls crunching underfoot, grape bubblegum kisses and that wonderful feeling when she threw her arms around my neck and said, 'I love you, Daddy.' You never knew the pain when she left. If you did you never showed it."

"I never showed it because she never left. She's still at home."

He was silent a minute. Then he said, "Are you sure?"

Meet Charlevoix

By Peg Ohle

Diane Moore is a registered dietician working with the District Health Department No. 3 counseling diabetics on matters pertaining to diet. This week she tells the Courier about her work and how diabetics can take advantage of the services she offers.

COURIER: How does your program operate?

MOORE: All of our counseling is done at home rather than in a hospital or clinic. We offer the service in all four counties in District Health Department No. 3 (Charlevoix, Antrim, Emmet, and Otsego). We have a Community Health Aide in each county who assists with home visits. They work under my supervision and I go over each case with them, keeping in mind the physician's prescriptions.

COURIER: How do you come in contact with your patients?

MOORE: They are referred by physicians, public health nurses, other nurses, family members, even friends. However, we must have the consent of the patient and his or her physician before we consult with the patient. We have sent out letters to all the physicians and talked to senior citizens' groups and others to tell them about the program. It's a professional health service, not a diet gimmick.

COURIER: How do you go about setting up the individual diet programs?

MOORE: On our first visit, we go into the home, explain the program, and get the consent of the patient. Then we develop a nutritional care program based on the patient's needs and the physician's assessment. We deal with such things as recipes, restaurant menus, cooking for one (for those used to cooking for larger families), helping with low budget menu planning, and working convenient foods into menus.

COURIER: Do you think you are reaching a large percentage of diabetics who need help?

MOORE: No, we're just reaching those who have been troubled in the past, out of control in the past, and some of those who are newly diagnosed. Of course, many others are receiving services through local hospitals and physicians. What we are trying to do is reach those who are not getting any services.

COURIER: Is there a charge for your services?

MOORE: No, the program is funded by the State Department of Public Health. It's a pilot program and will run to the fall of 1980. They want to see if the program will help with dietary compliance, if it is a feasible program.

COURIER: If diets are so important in diabetes, why don't people follow them?

MOORE: Most people don't like to diet, even to lose weight. Diabetics, especially those newly diagnosed, have many questions many concerns. It's a problem because they haven't been taught. They become frustrated and it's unreasonable to expect anyone to learn about diet in one meeting.

COURIER: What, besides diet, is important in treating diabetes?

MOORE: We need a balance of diet, activities, and medication to control the blood sugar.

COURIER: Is there a cure for diabetes?

MOORE: No, but diabetics who receive the benefits of modern medical treatment can do almost the same things other people do. They eat most of the same foods, do similar kinds of work and enjoy many of the same recreational activities. But they must take care of themselves.

COURIER: Just what is diabetes?

MOORE: A person who has diabetes is unable to turn certain foods into the heat and energy necessary for normal body functions. The diabetic does not have enough active insulin, a body chemical which comes from an organ called the pancreas, to properly use digested food sugars after they have entered the blood stream. Because of this insulin problem, extra sugar collects in his blood and some of this sugar may overflow into his urine. Too much sugar in the blood and urine are signs of diabetes.

COURIER: Is diabetes more prevalent now than it used to be?

MOORE: That's hard to say, but we are able to diagnose diabetes more readily and there is more of an awareness of it.

COURIER: Do you work with both children and adults?

MOORE: No, we work only with adult diabetics. There are two types of diabetes, adult and juvenile. The person with adult diabetes manufactures some insulin, but the juvenile diabetic is unable to make insulin at all, so the treatments are different.

COURIER: Where did you get your dietetic training?

MOORE: At Michigan State University. I have also worked in a camp for diabetic children and did some food service work in the field of diabetics.

COURIER: And any diabetic in the area can call you for free consultation?

MOORE: Yes, they can call me at any office of District Health Department No. 3. In Charlevoix the number is 547-6523.

COURIER: Are you married?

MOORE: I was married Oct. 27 to Rick Haglund. He wurks for the Record Eagle in Traverse City.

COURIER: What are your hobbies?

MOORE: Cross-country skiing, swimming, biking. My husband is a sailor and is trying to get me interested.

Pre-hearing on spent fuel increase rescheduled

A pre-hearing on Consumers Power Company's request to increase its spent fuel storage capacity at the Big Rock Point nuclear power plant will be held Wednesday, Dec. 5 in Petoskey.

The pre-hearing will begin at 9:30 a.m. in Council Chambers, 200 Division Street. If necessary, it will continue on Dec. 6.

Consumers is seeking to increase its spent fuel storage capacity from 193 to 441 fuel assemblies.

Originally, the pre-hearing was scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 14. The conference was delayed because the law firm representing several interveners in the case is asking the NRC to consider what Consumers plans to do with its spent fuel once the plant's operating license expires. Thus far, said Karen Sheldon of the firm Sheldon, Harmon, Roisman and Weiss, the NRC has not considered that issue. But a Washington Court of Appeals has asked the NRC to hold hearings on whether or not that type of issue should be considered in such cases, she said.

In July of this year, the NRC announced that it was considering Consumers request. In response, petitions to intervene were filed by 24 residents of communities surrounding the facility, John A. Leithauser on his own behalf and as attorney for the Northwest Coalition, and John O'Neill, II.

At the pre-hearing, the licensing board will consider all intervention petitions, discuss specific issues to be considered at the evidentiary hearing, and will consider a schedule for further actions in the proceeding.

The public is invited to attend the pre-hearing conference. Depending upon space and time limitations the board will try to afford an opportunity for members of the public who are not parties to the proceeding to make oral limited appearance statements on the first day of the conference, including that evening, if necessary. There will be additional opportunities for limited appearance statements at subsequent sessions. In making a limited appearance statement, a person may state his views on the issues or raise questions he would like to have answered during the hearing to the extent they are within scope of the proceeding.

Concert Sunday

The Charlevoix High School choir, Junior High choir and 8th grade jazz band will appear in concert at 3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 18 at the Assembly of God Church.

The choirs and jazz band are under the direction of Steve Stargardt.

Residents of the community are invited to attend. No admission will be charged.

GEMWISE
JEWELRY FASHIONS FACTS FICTION

John Reusch
THE GREAT IMPOSTORS (Part I)
A diamond is always a diamond, but there are man-made materials on the market that can trick you into thinking they're diamond too.
There have always been gemstones that were confused with diamond – granted, most were poor substitutes. In the early days of diamond history, just about any colorless stone was suspect. However, as science and technology became more sophisticated, the differences between diamond and other transparent stones became more apparent. Always ready to make a product that does the same thing for less, scientists set out to duplicate or at least closely simulate diamond.
A word must be mentioned about the difference between simulated and synthetic. A simulated gemstone is made to resemble a natural gemstone. A synthetic gemstone, on the other hand, is a man made facsimile of the natural stone. That is, it has exactly the same chemical composition and essentially the same physical and optical properties. A synthetic is a much more sophisticated attempt at reproducing a natural stone's beauty.
The technology exists to make synthetic gem quality diamond; however this process is more costly than that of unearthing and processing the natural stone. The focus, therefore, has been placed on producing a close look alike.
In my next article I'll start the history of the simulated diamond. Please watch for it.

Rayders to host league leaders

The St. Ignace Saints, the undisputed rulers of the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference, will be coming to Charlevoix Friday to play the Rayders in a girls' basketball contest.

The Saints - going into action last week - were 9-0 in conference play and 13-1 overall. St. Ignace has a balanced attack with three players averaging in double figures - Sandy Halberg (14 ppg), Glenda Pemble (11 ppg) and Marsha Mandt (11 ppg).

Charlevoix, meanwhile, has been struggling as of late. The Rayders snapped a four game losing streak on Tuesday by edging Cheboygan, 54-50, but then suffered a heartbreaking, 46-44, setback to Grayling on Friday. The Rayders are 5-6 in conference play and 8-6 overall.

Junior Teresa Noirot and sophomore Lisa Pischner paced the Rayder scoring attack last week. Pischner tallied 29 points and Noirot 28 in the two games.

Against Cheboygan, the Rayders grabbed a 20-9 first quarter lead - and then hung on as the Chiefs made a valiant attempt to overtake Charlevoix. Cheboygan cut the 11 point lead to just 4 points, 42-38, after three quarters. Pischner had 17 points, Mel Kerridge 14 and Noirot 11 for the Rayders. Liz Driscoll canned 23 points and Laura Dodd added 14 for Cheboygan.

Against Grayling, the Rayders trailed most of the first half. The Vikings led 13-8 after the first quarter and 23-21 at half. Charlevoix took the lead, 31-30, after three quarters, but could not hang on. Noirot's 17 points led all scorers. Pischner added 12. For Grayling, Jane Baynham had 14 and Regina Methner chipped in with 11.

In junior varisty play, Charlevoix lost to Cheboygan, 35-6, and dropped a close one to Grayling, 26-25.

Harbor wins

Harbor Springs won the Charlevoix-Emmet Youth Soccer Lages 7-11) 12 team tournament held at the Charlevoix Township Field recently.

In the championship game Harbor Springs and Schafer's of Boyne City were tied at the end of regulation play in a contest that featured outstanding goal work by Mike Babcock of Harbor and Linda Judkins of Boyne City.

Harbor Springs finally won in a three-overtime shootout.

Harbor reached the finals by beating East Jordan, Aartvark of Charlevoix and Circus Shop from Petoskey while Schafer's downed LaBlance Agency of Charlevoix and Leutheuser's, also of Charlevoix.

All total 11 games were played.

City gets $6,000 as settlement in anti-trust suit

The Charlevoix City Council has been advised that the city will receive $6,000 from Consumers Power as cash settlement in an anti-trust suit.

Charlevoix was one of 17 wholesale electric customers to reach an agreement with Consumers on a rate increase.

"This is the second time that communities and smaller utilities have negotiated a settlement with Consumers Power on a rate increase without going through lengthy and costly legal proceedings before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC)," William J. Jefferson, executive director of rates and regulation for Consumers Power, said.

"In 1977, electric wholesale customers and the company obtained FERC approval, for the first time, of an increase negotiated before anything had been filed and prior to any participation by the staff of FERC. We anticipate similar approval of this settlement. The ratepayers of our wholesale customers will thus be spared the pass-through of legal costs that would have been incurred by the usual proceedings in Washington that occurred in previous years," Jefferson added.

Legislative bodies, the boards of electric cooperatives, and investor-owned utility boards have approved the settlement worked out by negotiators, Jefferson said.

If approved by FERC, the increase will be in two phases. The first, effective February 7, 1980, will reflect increased costs since the last rate increase in November 1977. Revenue to Consumers power will rise by $3.5 million annually, a 12 percent increase from wholesale customers.

The second phase will be effective when a new 770 megawatt coal-fired generating unit at the utility's J.H. Campbell plant near Holland goes into commercial service next fall. This increase will be an additional $2.4 million annually, or nine percent.

"By tying in the second phase with the commercial operating date of the new Campbell unit, we and our wholesale customers avoid the necessity of a new rate application at that time," Jefferson said. Campbell Unit 3, now almost three-fourths complete, will add more than 10 percent to the company's generating capacity.

The company's last increase amounted to about 10 percent and reflected inflationary factors in the mid-1970s. The new increase will take into consideration additional costs since the 1977 hike and cost projections through 1980.

The wholesale customers and their consulting firm, R.W. Beck and Associates of Indianapolis, Indiana, and Consumers Power also agreed to file at this time a more liberal facilities extension policy along with some other modifications to the billing procedures. In addition, the agreement provides that Consumers Power will not file for any further rate increase that would be effective before January 1, 1981.

"Under the liberalized extension policy, for example, Consumers Power may bear a considerable portion of the costs involved in constructing a new substation or transmission line required to provide service to a wholesale customer," Jefferson explained.

Negotiations began August 29 and culminated October 30 when Consumers Power filed with the FERC the settlement agreement, supporting documents, and a letter jointly signed by the company and the 17 customers urging the federal commission to approve it.

At the three meetings in September, overall costs, rate design, and provisions of service had been resolved. In October, governing entities of the wholesale customers approved the settlement.

Together, the 17 customers purchase about 830,000 megawatts of power annually, approximately three percent of Consumers Power's total electric sales to all customers. Wholesale power customers are: the cities of Bay City, Charlevoix, Coldwater, Eaton Rapids, Harbor Springs, Lowell, Marshall, Petoskey, Portland and St. Louis; the villages of Chelsea and Union City; Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative of Boyne City; Southeastern Michigan Rural Cooperative of Adrian and Wolverine Electric Cooperative of Big Rapids; and Alpena Power Company and Edison Sault Electric Company, investor-owned utilities.

Building tops $10 million

The cost of construction in Charlevoix County from Jan. 1 through October of this year topped the $10 million mark, the monthly report of the Department of Building Inspection indicates.

The report shows that 638 permits covering construction amounting to $10,150,964.40 have been issued during the 10-month period. This includes 75 permits for $1,316,522 issued during October.

Most permits issued in October were for residential construction, including 20 for new residences, 32 for residential additions and remodeling, 10 for residential garages, one for decks and porches, three for mobile homes, and six for residential outbuildings. The other three were for commercial outbuildings.

The largest number of permits, nine, was issued for construction in Hayes Township, followed by Eveline Township, seven; Melrose Township, seven; East Jordan, seven; City of Charlevoix, six; Boyne City, six; Bay Township, five; South Arm Township, five; Wilson Township, four; Evangeline Township, three; Hudson Township, three; Marion Township, three; Boyne Valley Township, two; Charlevoix Township, two; Norwood Township, two; Peaine Township, two; and St. James Township, two. No perults were issued in Chandler Township or Boyne Falls.

HUD reviews senior housing plans

Two members of the Charlevoix Housing Commission, Ralph McRae and Ralph Shapton, met with HUD officials in Grand Rapids on Tuesday, Nov. 6, to go over the preliminary blue prints of the senior housing development.

In attendance also were the Housing Commission's architect and consultant.

HUD review architects under the guidance of Robert Anderson, HUD public housing representative required some revisions to conform to HUD requirements. The Housing Commission as owners of the proposed building also made comments and suggestions for up-grading the project. The conference lasted 3½ hours, and as a result the plans went back to the drawing board to incorporate the improvements. However, the starting date of the complex will not be delayed.

The Housing Commission's regular meeting of Nov. 21 has been re-scheduled as a special meeting on Nov. 28.

The commission office, in the lower level in the City Hall, is open every Tuesday from 2:00 to 5:00 P.M. The telephone number is 547-5451.

Union Thanksgiving Service Nov. 21

The annual Union Thanksgiving Service will be held at the First Congregational Church at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 21 under the sponsorship of the Charlevoix Ministerial Associatiobn.

The Rev. Walter Hastings, pastor of the Community Church of God and president of the association, will deliver the Thanksgiving sermon. The Rev. Raymond Giffin will be the host pastor.

Others participating in the service will be the Rcv. Austin Regier of the United Methodist Church, the Rev. Daniel C. Abner of the First Baptist Church, the Rev. Fred Spring of the Assembly of God Church, the Rev. Ernest Knight of the Church of the Nazarene, the Rev. Larry Grooters of the Charlevoix Reformed Church and the Rev. Roger Ames of Christ Episcopal Church.

Special music will be by a community choir, which will rehearse on Nov. 15.

The offering will be used to further the work of the sponsoring association.

Nine inducted

The Kappa Sigma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi inducted nine pledges and welcomed a transfer member last week in ritual and initiation ceremonies at the Grey Gables Inn.

Those inducted were Sandy Bonello, Charlotte Kline, Nanci Burnside, Connie Phillips, Phyliss Hess, Lucille Ingram, Susan May, Jill Edgcr, and Janet Riley. Colleen Buckle, a transfer member from Canada, also joined the group.

Last week's ceremonies concluded fall rush activites, which also included a "Remember the 1960's" party and an authentic Chinese dinner prepared by sorority members.

The next event on the sorority's schedule is the annual Rosebuddy Party, which will also be held at the Grey Gables.

'A Distant Thunder' to be shown

"A Distant Thunder," a 78-minute color film, will be presented by The Assembly of God Church on Sunday, Nov. 18, at 6 p.m. in the church auditorium on M-66 South, Charlevoix.

The film is a sequel to "A Thief in the Night", a 1973 release that was widely hailed.

According to a news story about the event, "The film answers many of the questions raised by other recent motion pictures. Events foretold in the Bible as part of the Great Tribulation are vividly portrayed in 'A Distant Thunder.' You will remember the film as long as you live..perhaps forever."

The Tootsie Roll fund-raising campaign is conducted every spring with 100 percent of the contributions earmarked for the benefit of the mentally and physically handicapped, Olach explained. The local council conducted its first drive last April.

On Saturday, Dr. Harry Custer, Grand Knight of the local Council, presented a check for $400 to Mrs. Patrick Hynes for Charlevoix House and a second check for $183.29 to Mrs. Ray Cunningham who accepted it for the Bergmann Center.

Charlevoix House, managed by Mr. and Mrs. Hynes, is a resident home for physically and mentally handicapped adults who are employed at Bergmann Center, a sheltered work shop.

In announcing the presentation of the checks, Olach acknowledged the assistance given the drive by the area chapter of the Telephone Pioneers of America headed by Mrs. Clarence Rabach and all those who supported the fund drive.

County's goal is $5,641 in lung drive

The American Lung Association of Michigan announced a statewide need of $900,000 and a new educational effort in Michigan schools in kicking off its Christmas Seal campaign last week.

Charlevoix County's share of the need has been set at $5,641, which artist Gwen Frostic, northwest regional Christmas Seal chairperson, is looking to raise through Christmas Seal contributions and other fund raising efforts in the county.

The lung association's new information campaign called "Creating a Smoke Free Generation" is an intensive effort to reach as many Michigan children as possible to encourage them to be non-smokers. School programs are a central part of this effort.

Unique anti-smoking educational kits for grades kindergarten through third have been developed by an ALAM committee to teach students about their lungs and to provide the best possible care for their bodies. Notices are being sent out to every elementary school in Michigan announcing their availability to teachers. "Octopuff," an animated film for youngsters produced by the ALA is part of the curriculum. In the film, it's the children who convince a villainous chainsmoking octopus to quit smoking and stop polluting everyone's air and his own lungs.

Bowl-A-Thon in EJ to help cystic fibrosis

Gemini Lanes in East Jordan will be one of 75 bowling centers throughout Michigan participating in this year's Bowl-A-Thon on Friday, Nov. 23.

The objective of the Bowl-A-Thon is to raise money for cystic fibrosis research. Scientists are currently striving to find a control or cure so that thousands of children stricken with cystic fibrosis can lead fuller lives.

Everyone is invited to participate in the Bowl-A-Thon, and entry forms are available at Gemini Lanes. Entrants are encouraged to recruit as many sponsors as they can and have them pledge no more or no less than a penny a pin for each point in three ganies of bowling.

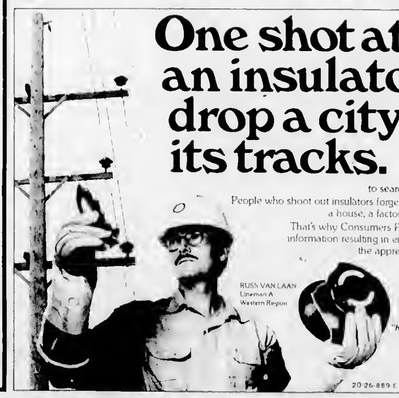
One shot at an insulator can drop a city in its tracks.



I know, because I'm a Consumers Power lineman, and it's my job to search for the cause of a power failure. People who shoot out insulators forget that a single shot can bring down a house, a factory, a hospital or even an entire city. That's why Consumers Power offers substantial rewards for information resulting in either the arrest and amagnment, or the apprehension of persons responsible for damage to our property. So, if you have information concerning such an incident, please contact a local police agency or call Consumers Power.

School to convert buses to propane

The Charlevoix School District will convert 15 school buses to propane gas.

The use of propane gas in school buses is somewhat of a novelty in northern Michigan. The conversion should make the buses safer and more economical, according to Business Manager Vince Olach.

Olach said the initial cost for conversion would be approximately $9,300. Included in the cost, he said, would be the propane gas units, storage tanks, labor, plumbing and meters.

From a cost standpoint, the conversion should save the district money. Olach said oil and oil filters in the buses would only be changed once a year and sparkplugs would not have to be changed at all - since there would be no carbon. During the 1978-79 school year, school buses used 484 quarts of oil at a cost $460.

Olach said the propane tanks are safer than the existing gas tanks. Olach said the propane tanks are cylindrical and made of heavier material than most tanks and are less apt to rupture. He added that if a tube leading from the tank would break that a safety feature built into the unit would cut off the gas supply.

Olach said some companies - like Parker Motor Freight and Wares Brothers of Traverse City - have already converted to propane, and that several school districts - like Alpena, Alcona and Onaway - are exploring the possibility.

He said the inaccessibility of units and propane gas in quantity have been the chief reasons that others have not converted.

The school buses will be converted one at a time.

The Charlevoix Board of Education approved the conversion last week.

The board also:

Accepted with regret the resignations of Mary Helvig and Barbara Christensen, elementary teachers who have been in the school system since the fall of 1970. They will be leaving at the end of the first semester (Jan. 25) to enter into a joint business venture in Presque Isle, Wis. - near the Michigan-Wisconsin border.

Sold a lathe used in the middle school industrial arts department to Edwin Crook for $106.50. Two other bids for $50 and $51 were received.

No action was taken on the Purchase Agreement with the Beaver Island Boat Company for the Clinton Street building.

Council discussed a lease agreement with the Beaver Island Boat Company to lease City docks, and provisions presented by the Beaver Island Boat Company that they wish to include in the lease. City Attorney Hoffman stated that it is not possible to have four automatic lease renewals as requested by the Beaver Island Boat Company, as the City Charter forbids such action. Council discussed various other aspects of the lease, including dock maintenance liability and parking spaces to be provided. The possibility of the Beaver Island Boat Company paying property taxes and insurance was also discussed. Council agreed to meet again with the Beaver Island Boat Company to negotiate the terms of the lease.

A Site Plan for Marina Bluff Condominium was presented to Council prior to sending it to the Planning Commission. George Richardson, a spokesman for the project stated that the matter was placed on the agenda as Council is considering having the Planning Commission study the PUD Zoned District, where the property for the proposed Marina Bluff Condominium is located, on Gov't. Lot No. 1, Sec. 35, T34N, R4W, only to make Council aware that there is a proposed plan for this property. The Site Plan was referred back to the Planning Commission for their evaluation and recommendation.

Council discussed a cost estimate of $456,000.00 for a new water tower as submitted by Granger Engineering, Inc., and, also, possible sites for the new tower. The City Manager stated he would explore grant money available for funding the project and would investigate the issuing of General Obligation Bonds for the financing of the project, which would require a vote of the people.

The Charlevoix Marina Engineering Study was referred to the Committee of a Whole for discussion at their next meeting on November 12, 1979.

Joann Bier of The Concerned Citizens for the Charlevoix Area appeared before Council to state that her group has intervened with the NRC regarding Big Rock Nuclear Plant's spent fuel capacity and Consumer's Power Company's failure to meet safety specifications. Ms. Bier asked Council to take a stand on informing citizens of an evacuation plan and the covering of the dome on Big Rock with 4' of concrete to prevent accidental radiation leakage. Oscar Ward suggested the group send a delegation to the County Board. Mayor Supernaw suggested the group also state their concern to the Hayes Township Board. Mrs. Bier urged Council to send a letter to the Governor and the President expressing concern for the safety of the area citizens and to ask that Big Rock remain shut down until such safety is assured, in lieu of the Three Mile Island incident.

Moved by Councilman Roloff and supported by Councilman Whitley to send a letter to Governor Milliken and President Carter to read: "The City Council of Charlevoix, in lieu of the President's Three Mile Island Commission's findings, ask President Carter to take all possible action to insure the safety of the residents of Charlevoix."

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley. Nays: Councilmen Timms and Porter. Absent: None.

BOARD OF APPEALS
NOVEMBER 5, 1979

The Board of Appeals convened with Councilmen Timms, Roloff, Wood, Whitley and Porter present. Absent: Councilman Muma.

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Wood to reduce the required square footage required per unit from 780 square feet to 650 square feet and to reduce the West side yard set back from 50 feet to 40 feet, for the Senior Citizen's Housing Project located on the NE Cor. of S¼ of SE¼ of SEC 27, T34N, R8W, as requested by the Housing Commission.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley and Porter. Nays: None. Absent: Councilman Muma.

The Board and several members of the General Public present discussed wigress and egress to the Senior Citizen's Housing Project and the resulting traffic flow, followed by a discussion of the actual need for such a project in the City. It was generally agreed that any increase in traffic flow in the area will be light and then there does exist a need for Senior Citizen housing.

Dennis Weimer, architect for George Duke's proposed residence on Dixon Avenue presented a request to reduce the required side yard set back from 15' to 13' for the purpose of accommodating a bay window. He stated that the lots involved are very long and narrow. Mr. Elliot, a neighboring property owner, stated an objection to the variance on the grounds that Mr. Duke knew the dimension of the lot when purchased. John Hess, another neighbor, stated that he did not object to the variance but that he was unable to secure a Site Plan of the proposed project until last Wednesday.

Moved by Councilman Roloff and supported by Councilman Whitley to deny a reduction in the side yard set back from 15' to 13' for the property located on Dixon Avenue, described as Lots 1, 4, 5 and 6; Gov't. Lot 2, Sec. 26, T34N, R8W, as requested by George Duke.

Motion was approved by the following yea and nay vote.

Yees: Councilmen Timms, Roloff, Wood, Whitley and Porter. Nays: None. Absent: Councilman Muma.

The Board of Appeals adjourned.

NOVEMBER 8, 1979
11:00 AM

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met in a Special Council Session on the above date and time with Mayor Supernaw presiding.

Present: Councilmen Roloff, Whitley, Muma and Timms.
Absent: Councilmen Wood and Porter.

Ed Ladd and Archie LoFrenere, representatives of the Beaver Island Boat Company, were present to discuss the terms of a lease which would continue to give the Boat Company the use of berths A and B at the City Dock. In return for the lease, the City would receive ownership of the Boat Company's building on Clinton Street at a price of $90,000.00 with no capital outlay or interest to be paid by the City as long as the dock lease continues. Mayor Supernaw stated that the dock lease could only be for five years and that the City is unable to offer two automatic renewals of the lease as requested by the Boat Company, as this would circumvent the intent of the five year maximum lease period set down in the City Charter. The Mayor further stated that the agreement to purchase the Clinton Street building would be written so that, should the City fail to renew the Boat Company's lease or increase their rent during the 25 year period, the interest on the purchase of the building would come due which would give future Councils an incentive for continuing the lease.

Paul Osterberg, a member of the General Public present, offered to lease the dock space in question for $8,000.00 per year. Mayor Supernaw advised him to submit a Proposal to the City Council for their perusal. Mr. Osterberg also questioned the City's purpose in purchasing the Clinton Street building. Mayor Supernaw stated that the present plan is to use the property for a downtown parking area.

It was generally agreed that the City would be responsible for any major structural upkeep on the building adjacent to the docks and will replace things which have deteriorated due to normal use. It was further agreed that the Boat Company will be responsible for minor maintenance of the dock building and any damages to the premises by the Boat Company. It was also agreed that the Boat Company must have approval of Council prior to making any major changes in the building.

Council was further agreed that the Boat Company lease would include the use of 12 City parking spaces, the same number allowed in the present lease, and, that the Boat Company would be responsible for any real or personal taxes on the property.

Council advised the Boat Company representatives that free parking for the patrons at the Municipal Airport is going to be discontinued and urged them to provide a private parking area for this purpose. Mayor Supernaw suggested that a sign be posted at the Boat Company ticket office advising their patrons that any vehicles left on City property will be towed away at the owners expense. (Enil Councilman Whitley).

Mr. Osterberg stated that his reason for wishing to lease the dock space is that, in his belief, the City is not deriving enough revenue from the docks to cover expenses and urged Council to study the matter carefully.

Council adjourned.

Sundew returns

The U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Sundew, skippered by Lt. Cmdr. Warren Miller has returned to its home port here after 38 days in Sturgeon Bay, Wis.

While there the ship was placed in drydock where it underwent extensive engineering repairs and hull inspection as well as buoy deck repairs according to Ensign Kevin Redik, public relations officer.

Some of the necessary repairs were the result of the ship's icebreaking activities during the early part of 1979 Redik said.

The ship was scheduled to begin fueling light stations within its area on Monday and its regular buoy season on Nov. 19. During the buoy season the ship removes the navigational buoys placed last spring and replaces them with winter buoys.

Auxiliary contributes to various organizations, hears report on conference at Boyne

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Charlevoix Veterans of Foreign Wars No. 1153 contributed to the Charlevoix Community Christmas Fund, the VA Hospital at Battle Creek for its Christmas party for veterans and to P.A.C., a new legislative group formed in Washington, D.C., to support veterans rights bills at a recent meeting held at the post home.

At the same meeting, members brought gifts to be donated to veterans at the State Hospital at Traverse City. Mrs. Melvin Plum will deliver the gifts to Mrs. Shirley Thomas, Veterans officer at the hospital.

Mrs. Clarence Goldstick, Auxiliary president, reported on the State V.F.W. Fall Conference held recently at Boyne Mountain and attended by approximately 1800 V.F.W. and Auxiliary members. Mrs. Goldstick and Mrs. Dorothy Gelding represented the local authority at the meeting. Mrs. Goldstick presented membership transmittals at the conference at which it was stressed that the Auxiliary is a service organization dedicated to community service and the promotion of loyalty and the teaching of Americanism. State President Leona Wolschum presided at the auxiliary division of the conference.

Mrs. Donald White, membership chairman, advised members that dues may be paid now. Forty-four members have paid their dues to date she reported. The group is striving for 100 percent paid membership this month. Dues may be paid to Mrs. Goldstick or Mrs. White.

Mrs. Goldstick urged members to vote in the city election Tuesday and the Charlevoix township election on Nov. 13. "It is your duty and privilege as an American, to vote" she said.

Mrs. Earl Elliott, past district president, was a guest at the meeting.

The V.F.W. Auxiliary members have invited the American Legion Auxiliary members to a social meeting at the home of Mrs. Albert Hazel Thursday, Nov. 15. Mrs. Russell and Mrs. James Whitley will assist.

It was announced that there would be no potluck supper on Nov. 24 because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Mrs. Angie Borths and Mrs. Martha Resch served refreshments at the recent meeting.

The next regular meeting is scheduled for Dec. 6.

Hat Island

If purchased, the islands would become part of the National Wildlife Refuge System and managed for the preservation, protection and enhancement of the islands habitats and the wildlife resources using the area.

The Federal Wildlife Service would make annual revenue sharing payments to the county in order to compensate for tax loss due to lands being removed from private ownership. The payments would be passed through to local units of government on a proportional basis and based upon 3/4 of 1 percent of the fair market value of the land, 25 percent of the yearly net refuge receipts, or 75 cents per acre, whichever is greater.

The proposal has already been submitted to the Charlevoix County Planning Commission.

Most of the islands in the Beaver Island chain are either owned by the state or federal government.

Cemetery urns are the responsibility of the owners. The city is not responsible for freezing and breakage of the urns.

CHARLEVOIX CHURCH DIRECTORY

According to a Bible text you've read, a mere two fishes and five loaves of bread were all that Jesus had on hand for food; in spite of which He led the multitude. We learn in Church that with the proper prayers, the Lord will demonstrate how much He cares; when with His goodness He will intercede in answer to our every earthly need. So trust in God, should some demand arise, exceeding your available supplies; for then, as people long ago have found, there'll always be enough to go around.

Northern Michigan Congressman BOB DAVIS says it is becoming increasingly obvious that Congress will have a difficult time passing legislation authorizing winter navigation on the Great Lakes. Shipping through the Soo Locks will continue until Jan. 8, plus or minus one week, according to Davis.

The winter shipping provision is included in the Omnibus Water Resources Bill which contains several controversial issues apart from winter shipping. Davis also pointed out that there is a good chance the Senate will not even take up the bill before winter in order to concentrate on the SALT II Treaty.

"The date (Jan. 8) is not that far off what was proposed in the bill (Jan. 15, plus or minus two weeks). The bad thing is that, without authorizing legislation, the Corps of Engineers has no authority to provide for island transportation needs or any of the other special needs of those living along the St. Mary's River. I made sure the bill would have provided for those needs," Davis pointed out.

SUE MILLER, a 1979 graduate of Charlevoix High School, participated in Hope College's Nykerk Cup Competition recently. WALT DRENTH (right) and JEFF DRENTH, graduates of Charlevoix High School where both earned all state recognition in cross country, are now running for the Chips of Central Michigan University.

The Chippewas belong to the Mid-American Conference. And while the CMU football team has been making headlines the same cannot be said for the cross country team.

They were expected to finish last in the conference but did better than expected by finishing seventh in the 10 team race.

Don Sazuna, the cross country coach, says "the team is a young one and is in the building process." There is one senior, one sophomore and five freshmen on the team. "We're very excited about the future of this group," Sazima says.

The training for cross country is very grueling with practice every week day at 6:30 a.m. and then again at 5 p.m. Each member of the team runs between 15-18 miles a day in practice.

The actual distance in a race is either 8,000 or 10,000 meters.

Jeff finished 52nd and Walt 61st in the recent Mid-American Conference Championships held at Kent, Ohio.

Jeff's best finish this year was 13th against Eastern Michigan. Walt's best finish was 12th also against Eastern.

Legislation has been introduced in the Michigan House of Representatives allowing Michigan's 750,000 renters to terminate rental agreements on homes and apartments if landlords increase rent due to additional maintenance and utility costs, including heat and electricity.

The bill, introduced by Reg. PAUL HILLEGONDS (Holland-R) and STEVE ANDREWS (Wolverine-R), would amend the "truth in renting act" to protect renters from legal penalties resulting from broken leases. Under the current law, which became effective July 1, landlords can file suit against tenants if leases are broken before their termination date. The proposed legislation, however, covers only certain circumstances under which leases cannot be broken.

"As the law now reads, landlords can raise rents to cover increases in utilities, including gas, water and electricity, and the leases cannot be broken without penalty," Hillegonds and Andrews stated. "Our bill allows the financially strapped renter to notify his landlord in writing 30 days after the increase has been announced that he is terminating his lease...and the landlord cannot take legal recourse against him, which would only further the financial woes of the renter."

The drama group of the forensics program presented selected aets from the popular "Fiddler on the Roof". A cast of 45 members appear in the presentation.

In addition to winning first place in its class among 12 schools, five members of the group were singled out for individual honors. John Grooters received a superior award for his guitar playing; James Boggs, an excellence for his piano playing and Shari Barnes, Debbie Thomure and Sheri Cook, acting excellence for their portrayals of the three older sisters in the east.

These five are among a cast of 44 who nppear in the team's presentation

St. Johns won top honors in Class A and Portage in Class B Mrs. Ford said.

In speaking of her team's success, Mrs. Ford said "They did very, very well. Their performance was superb. The total effect was very good".

Of the state competition in which the Charlevoix team participated, she said, "It was the best total group on a state level I've seen in a long time". She said the presentation of each school at the state level was outstanding.

"The conduct and the behavior of the entire team was exceptional and brought praise from members of the Michigan Forensics Council and the judges" Mrs. Ford added.

Charlevoix residents will have an opportunity to see the prize-winning presentation early next month, Mrs. Ford said.

County gets anti-crime grant

Charlevoix County has received an anti-crime grant of $19,635 for its Youth Diversionary Program, marking the second straight year the program has been funded by a grant from the Law Enforcement Association Administration.

The latest grant will fund the program from Oct. 1, 1979 through September 30, 1980. Funds are split $18,653 federal and $982 local.

Major commitments of the Youth Diversionary Program are to divert youths from arrest and referral to court, to reduce second arrests by 75 percent, and to divert 30 percent of the juvenile court referrals from processing.

In its first year, 39 youths between the ages of 12 and 17 were treated - most were referrals from law enforcement sources. All the youths and their parents were offered counseling. None of the youths have been arrested a second time after being referred to this program.

Prior to the advent of the Youth Diversionary Program, Charlevoix County offered no formalized diversion services for youths labeled as pre-delinquents. Most of the youths, in fact, who displayed criminal behavior were sent to Probate Court.

In 1976, for instance, 83 youths were apprehended by law enforcement officials in the county, 53 were sent to Probate Court. In 1977, 81 youths were apprehended and 55 ended up in Probate Court. However in 1978, with the Youth Diversionary Program operating, only five youths - out of 92 arrested - moved on to juvenile court proceedings.

Wrestling coach hired

The Charlevoix Board of Education hired a new wrestling coach.

Regis McCord has been signed as wrestling coach. McCord, who teaches at North Central Michigan College, is a graduate of a Los Angeles high school and received his B.S. and M.S. degrees at California State. He was an outstanding wrestler in his school and has attended many wrestling camps in addition to participating in the sport.

Ken Boss said the extra-curricular activities committee had met to discuss various sports program and that efforts would be made to have more continuity in the program in the program.

If voters approve bond issue

City to get new water tower?

A special election will be held Tuesday, March 4 on a bond issue to underwrite the cost of constructing a new water tower.

The Charlevoix City Council Monday agreed to the election date. It is expected the water tower will cost about $400,000. Council has hired Granger Engineering to do an engineering study on a proposed water tower.

If approved by the voters, the tower would be erected in a wooded section on the city golf course off Division Street behind Duffy's. Granger Engineering is expected to take soil borings of the area before winter to determine if the soil can support a 300,000 gallon water tower.

Originally, there had been talk of erecting a new water tower in the Norman Ance Industrial Park. However, officials say it will be cheaper to build it on the golf course, which is closer to the main water line.

The present water tower on Park Avenue is "falling apart," officials say, and is need of extensive repair. It is believed that the tower was built before the turn of the century.

Council also discussed extending the sewer along a 950 foot section of Stover Road from May Street to property owned by United Tool Craft. Once at the United Tool Craft property, the sewer could be extended about 350 feet to the north to pick-up additional households - although there has been opposition to that plan.

The 10 inch sanitary sewer line would be installed on the south side of Stover Road. City officials say large utility poles would make it difficult to install the line on the north side. And officials do not want to "tear up" the road and put the line directly under it.

Officials have indicated that Charlevoix Township would be interested in tapping into the sewer system. If the sewer is constructed and the township does tap-in, then the township will absorb about half the cost of installation.

Council did not take any action on the proposal.

In other action, council:

- Approved a site plan for an 18 unit condominium near Hampton Village. The development will be called Marina Bluff.
- Discussed selling two aeres of land on the corner of Taylor and Mereer. Dick Landon of Metric Tool Company has offered to purchase the property for a light industrial use.
- Learned that three cross country ski trails have been established near the golf course. One trail will be ¾ of a mile, another will be 1¼ miles and the the third trail will be 2 miles. The trails will start near the Charlevoix Elementary School.
- Agreed to administer the safety-eye glass program through local optometrists.
- Learned that a stop work order has been issued to L.B.J. Investments who own a building on Bridge Street adjacent to the Pine River Building. The owners are building a 14 foot addition on to the back of the building. However, the permit to build was issued in error because a site plan was not presented for the building project, which is required in the Central Business District. Council agreed that a site plan should be brought before the Charlevoix Planning Commission.

If city acquires Clinton Street property

Downtown parking to get boost

The Charlevoix City Council is working out a deal to acquire the Beaver Island Boat Company building on Clinton Street.

Council met with Ed Ladd and Archie LaFreniere, representatives of the company, recently to discuss the matter.

The boat company is seeking a long term lease on two berths at the city dock. In return for the lease, the city would receive ownership of the building on Clinton Street at a price of $90,000 with no capital outlay or interest to be paid by the city as long as the dock lease continues. The city would like the Clinton Street property for parking.

Officials from the boat company originally asked about a 25 year lease but Mayor Sam Supernaw said a dock lease could only be for five years and that the city would be unable to offer four automatic renewals of the lease because it would circumvent the intent of the five year maximum lease period established in the City Charter.

Supernaw added that an agreement to purchase the Clinton Street building would be written so that, should the city fail to renew the boat company's lease or increase the rent during the 25 year period, the interest on the purchase of the building would come due which would give future councils an incentive for continuing the lease.

City officials have agreed to replace pilings at the dock that deteriorate due to normal use and to maintain the structural upkeep of the building adjacent to the docks. The boat company would be responsible for interior maintenance of the dock building and any damages to the premises by the company. To make any major changes in the building, the company must get council's approval.

Council advised company representatives that free parking for the patrons at the municipal airport is going to be discontinued. Supernaw suggested a sign be posted at the ticket office advising patrons that any vehicles left on city property will be towed away at the owners expense. The company would get 12 parking spaces under the lease agreement.

Paul Osterberg has offered to lease the two berths at the city dock for $8,000. Osterberg said the city is not deriving enough revenue from the docks to cover expenses. Supernaw asked Osterberg to submit his bid in writing.

Avid distance runner falls short of goal

At the start of the year, Rev. Walt Hastings, an avid runner, made a couple New Year's resolutions.

One was to compete in a marathon. Another was to jog around Lake Charlevoix.

Hastings had no problem fulfilling his first resolution. In fact, he competed in three marathons this year. And in each marathon he improved his time.

In the Saginaw Bay Marathon in May he ran the 26.2 mile course in 3 hours 36 minutes. He whittled eight minutes off that time in the Breckenridge Marathon in June. And in September he had his best outing yet, finishing the Marquette Marathon in 3 hours 22 minutes.

However, Hastings second resolution has eluded him. But it's not because he didn't try. On Saturday the pastor of the Community Church of God almost accomplished the feat of running around Lake Charlevoix. An injury to his right knee stopped him.

"I think I tore a muscle in my right knee," said Hastings, who normally jogs 70 to 100 miles a week. "I bruised that knee a couple weeks ago...I thought it had healed because it hadn't bothered me (running)."

Hastings suffered the injury near Advance. He continued on to Boyne City and then to Horton Bay before calling it quits.

All told, Hastings ran about 30 miles. For the first 20 miles, his average time was nine minutes per mile, which is what he was striving for.

"Then I really started slowing down," he said. "I averaged about 15 minutes per mile for the next 10 miles...I can walk that fast."

Hastings took a 10 to 15 minute rest every five miles to change his shirt (to avoid chills) and socks (to avoid blisters). He started his jog in Charlevoix and had a friend, Charles Britton, tag along beside him in a car.

"I had a fun day even though I didn't make it," the pastor said.

Hastings plans to run all winter and participate in more marathons next year. And, hopefully, in the spring, he says, he might try to run around Lake Charlevoix again.

Selling Your House by Gene Steele
WHEN TIME MATTERS
There are always stories about eccentric old millionaires who put their homes on the market for some outlandish figure and then sit back, waiting -- perhaps for years -- until the market catches up with the price.
Most of us can't enjoy that luxury. When we sell our homes it's because we're moving to a new job, or to a new house. Or we're retiring to some sunny spot. When we want to sell, we want to sell NOW. We don't want to wait a few years.
Most buyers want to choose a home that's new on the market, too. If a house has been on the market for years, prospects wonder why. WHY hasn't it sold? What's wrong with it?
The difference between a house that sits for years, and one that sells quickly, is often the services of a real estate professional. We've the knowhow to price the house right. We've got the resources to bring in buyers. Let one of our associates show you how we can effectively market your property.
When you're ready to put YOUR home on the market, list with the professionals at Charlevoix Properties Inc.

CHS students master state tests

Results of assessment tests administered earlier in the school year will be sent home with students this week.

The assessment tests were given in September to all 4th, 7th and 10th grade students to measure their basic skills in reading and math.

The test results help teachers, counselors, principals and district personnel examine the status of basic skills in education on a student, classroom, building and district level. If there are any weak areas in the instructional program in reading and math, they can be corrected.

Overall, however, there does not appear to many weak areas. Charlevoix students again scored well on the tests

To understand the results of the tests it is important to understand how the tests work.

A 4th grader, for example, takes a reading test that has 19 objectives that deal with vocabulary meaning, literal comprehension, inferential comprehension and study skills. For each objective there are five questions. To "master or attain" an objective the student must answer four or five of the questions correctly.

This year 77.9 percent of the 4th grade class mastered the 19 objectives.

The format for the reading test is similar for 7th and 10th graders except 7th graders have 20 objectives and 10th graders have 15. Also, there are four - instead of five - questions per objective for the 10th graders.

At the 7th grade level, 86.1 percent of the students mastered the 20 reading objectives while 71.4 percent of the 10th graders mastered 15 objectives.

The number of objectives also varied on the math test. The objectives dealt with fractions, decimals, geometry, algebra, etc. An amazing 94.7 percent of the 4th graders mastered 33 math objectives, 81 percent of the 7th graders mastered 45 objectives and 70.3 percent of the 10th graders mastered 40 objectives.

School officials were extremely pleased with the 4th grade math results. Not only did 94.7 percent master the objectives but the remaining 5.3 percent just missed - averaging three correct answers on each objective.

"That's a pretty darn good score," said Condit Drury, counselor at the middle school. "We've stepped up our math program and I think it shows."

The assessment tests are now mandatory for all three grades in Michigan. Previously, it was voluntary at the 10th grade level.

Although school districts have received their results, the Michigan Department of Education has not yet figured out the state averages. Since the tests were iniated, Charlevoix has consistently scored higher than the state averages.

Sailing, sailing...

Thursday was the opening day of deer season, but for several avid sailors in the area it marked the 8th annual "Deer Opening Season Sail from Harbor Springs to Charlevoix for Lunch and Back."

Six boats participated in this year's sail. Four boats - including Traveler, owned and skippered by Dave Irish, and Merry Hell, owned and skippered by Jim Dilworth - left Harbor Springs early in the morning for the trip to Charlevoix. They were greeted about five miles from the Charlevoix Harbor by two Charlevoix boats - Mint Julep, owned and skippered by Jack Begrow, and Tigger, owned and skippered by Dr. John Hall.

The six boats, sailing in winds of up to 20 knots, made it to Charlevoix shortly after noon and had lunch at the Weathervane Inn. Traveler and Merry Hell returned to Harbor Springs after lunch while the other boats went out into Lake Charlevoix.

Sailing on the Mint Julep were Begrow and his wife, Barb, Lou Hollow, Gene Steele, Latimore Spinney, Mike Carland, Dick Georgi, Tom and Sisi Bickersteth and Steve Andres. Sailing on Tigger were Dr. Hall, Cliff Biddick, Steve Johnson, John Fought, Tom Dammann and Gary Gleason.

Irish said it was a "good outing" and that sailing conditions were "beautiful for a November 15th."

The annual event is the brainchild of Irish, a marina owner, and Dilworth, general manager of Nub's Nob, who in 1971 found themselves without workers on the opening day of deer season and decided the day "was hardly fit for working" so they would take it off and do what they like best - sail.

Only twice in eight years have the Harbor Springs boats failed to make it to Charlevoix - once when there was a 48 knot gale on the lake and also when there was no wind at all.

Opinion

Bob Clock

A day for chores

"What would you have done if you hadn't been given this one, last day?" my daughter Jennifer asked Sunday evening as I tried to wash my hands in the sink while she was doing the dishes.

She was thinking, of course, of all the chores the Clocks were able to get done around the house during Sunday's 70-degreeweather.

The day was all the more remarkable, because just one week ago Charlevoixans awoke to find almost a foot of snow on the ground and pavements so icy that driving was ill-advised.

Yet this Sunday was a different. Although the day dawned frosty, a hot sun in a cloudless sky soon turned it into shirt-sleeve weather. So now:

—The storm windows, at long last, are all washed, glazed and installed and the screens are tucked away in the basement.

—The leaves on the lront lawn — the ones the kids jumped into from the porch for a month — are all raked up and are in the street awaiting the city's pick-up erew. (I would have burned them, but the kids are still on an ecology kick.)

—The grass has been cut for one last time. It was surprising how much it had grown since the last time I eranked up the lawn mower in October.

—The front porch furniture has been hauled onto the sheltered side porch for the winter.

—The bicyeles, garden tools, and outdoor grille have been consigned to the shed.

—Most of the carrots and beets have been resurrected from their muddy incubator and have been brought indoors. I did leave one row of carrots and marked it with a stick so I can dig them this winter when the snow is waist-deep — a reminder of the spring and summer to come.

"I don't know what we would have done without this one last day," I told Jennifer. "We probably would have sailed right into winter like we usually do, with the yard buried in leaves, the bicycles rusting under mountainous snowdrifts and porch furniture peeling in tune to 'Jingle Bells'."

One day like Sunday, coming at the end of dismal November, is better than a whole string of 70-degree days in June or July.

I suppose thank-you's are in order. So "Thank you, up there."

I also suppose we should be thankful to the Ayatollah Khomeini for freeing at least some of his American hostages before Thanksgiving. Wouldn't benice if he went the distance and turned them all free?

This may be a little premature, but I have a feeling deer season is going to be a washout this year in the Charlevoixarea. So far, I have seen very few venison dinners tooling through town strapped to fenders and luggage racks.

Furthermore, you can almost count on one hand the number of hunters' ears parked along U.S. 31 between Charlevoix and Petoskey by dawn's early light.

Come to think of it, I have seen very few deer along that particular stretch of road for months now. Other years you have had to pay particular attention because of the large number of deer loitering along the road shoulders.

The last few very rugged winters probably have taken their toll of the deer herd. Which is all the more reason why we could stand a whole skein of days like Nov. 18 — right up until the middle of April, 1980.

How much will you pay in taxes?

The owner of a $40,000 house with a state equalized value of $20,000 located in East Jordan will pay taxes amounting to $1170.30 next year, while the owner of a house of equal value located in the Vanderbilt School District of Chandler Township will pay taxes amounting to $654.08.

These are the "high and low" of property taxes in Charlevoix County as revealed by the annual report of the Equalization Department.

The difference in amount of taxes is due to the difference in cost of operating the local unit of government (Chandler Township and the City of East Jordan), and to the difference in cost of operating the school systems (Vanderbilt and East Jordan).

The cost of operating Chandler Township is .994 of a mill and the cost of operating the City of East Jordan is 17.850 mills. The cost of operating the Vanderbilt School System is 25.200 mills and the cost of operating the East Jordan School System is 34.244 mills.

Taxes on a $40,000 house in the City of Charlevoix will amount of $933.02 and on the same house in Charlevoix Township, $733.02. They are based on 13.000 mills operating cost in the City and 3.000 mills operating costs in the Township. The Charlevoix School System serves both communities at a cost of 27.230 mills.

All property owners in Charlevoix County will pay 5.250 mills for operation of county government (including .75 mills for the addition to Grandvue Medical Care Facility), and 1.171 mills for operation of the Char-Em School District along with their township or city operating costs and the costs of operating their local school systems.

As a result of the Tax Limitation Law (Headlee Amendment), the millage allocated to the county was reduced by a "Millage Reduction Fraction" of .9620 and the millage allocated to the Char-Em School District was reduced by .9766. The reductions in township and local school district millages varied throughout the county.

A breakdown of millage rates in all townships and cities follows:

Township Board wants input

Editor:

Officers of Marion Township announced in the Courier before the last regular meeting that one topic for discussion would be support of the enforcement of ordinance number 7 (the junk ordinance).

Several people who attended that October 16 meeting voiced their support for enforcement. Others said that the ordinance is too strict and called for changes.

This ordinance was adopted by unanimous roll call vote of township officers and became effective September 17, 1975. The board took this step to prevent further blight and deterioration and to preserve beauty in the township.

Efforts have been made since 1975 to enforce this ordinance, some of which have resulted in legal costs.

I believe that if such costs are involved in future enforcement, most citizens will agree that this is a necessary expenditure.

The board needs to know how the citizens (over 400 registered voters) feel about this problem. I urge you Marion Township citizens to come to the board meeting November 27 at 8 p.m. at the township hall.

One statement at the October 16th meeting concerned the "right to earn a living and at the same time provide a service to the community by establishing a junk yard."

I believe a citizen has the right not to have a junk yard across from his driveway.

I believe that citizens have a moral responsibility in taking part in township government.

Legalize strikes?

Editor:

I am quite sure that your readers would like to know that the Michigan Education Association's power drive for legalizing teacher strikes with binding arbitration might be slowing down.

During the past week the passage of "bills" to implement the union demands has been "laid over" every day in the Michigan House.

I believe that many of your readers have written or contacted their legislators on this matter and that if more will write or call their representatives, the public can win this battle.

If the teachers win this battle to legnlize their present violations of the law - then we will see more strikes and the certain defeat of future millage requests in your school district.

The Legislature returns to session Nov. 27 so if you have not made contact with your representative, there is plenty of time to enlist the support of your representative in the cause of better and uninterrupted education of your children.

Yours very truly,

Meet Charlevoix

The Reverend Ray Giffin is pastor of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix, chairman of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging, president-elect of the Kiwanis Club, and a member of the board of the Chip Counseling Center. This week the Courier talks with him about his many activities.

COURIER: How long have you been in Charlevoix?

GIFFIN: Since 1973. We came here from Minneapolis, where I was with the Minnesota Conference of the United Church of Christ. My assignment was working with youth, teacher training, and Christian education.

COURIER: Where were you before that?

GIFFIN: I was minister to youth at the Mayflower Church in Minneapolis, and earlier I was in Troy, Ohio as an associate pastor. My wife, Jean, and I had been missionaries in China. I was born in China, where my parents were missionaries, and spent 16 years of my early life there. We went back to China in 1947 intending to spend a lifetime, but the Communists came and we returned in 1948.

COURIER: Where did you go to college?

GIFFIN: I did my undergraduate work at Denison University in Ohio and later studied at the Oberlin School of Theology.

COURIER: Is anything of special interest going on in your church right now?

GIFFIN: Yes, we are sponsoring a refugee Vietnamese family. They arrived last week. They were "boat people", part of a group of 46 people rescued at sea from a twelve and a half foot long open boat and taken to Singapore. The family consists of a father, mother, and three small children -- three and four years and three months old. The baby was born in Singapore.

COURIER: What is the church's responsibility to this family?

GIFFIN: To see that they are comfortable and receive language training, and to help find a job for the breadwinner.

COURIER: What kind of work will the father be able to do?

GIFFIN: He has worked with boats and wants to be a mechanic. He also has done some painting.

COURIER: Where is the family living?

GIFFIN: On south State Street. A member of our church who teaches at Ferris has turned the house over to them. We are assisting them in learning how to live in this country. It is a bad time of year for them to become acclimated to the weather. The church has a Clothes Closet for fire victims, welfare cases and others who need clothes and we have been able to clothe this family.

COURIER: When was the Charlevoix Congregational Church organized?

GIFFIN: In 1882. We became affiliated with the United Church of Christ in 1957.

COURIER: When was this church building built?

GIFFIN: In 1883. It's unusual for a church building this old to continue in use. We keep doing things to save fuel -- insulating, putting up storm windows, adding fans, that sort of thing. Our addition is 10 years old. Last summer we re-did the outside of the building, including re roofing the steeple.

COURIER: What about church activities?

GIFFIN: We recently added a part time youth director to our staff to re-activate the youth program. Music is an important part of our church -- the caliber of the choir and organ music is special. Our present organist, Elizabeth Humphrey, is a graduate of the Julliard School of Music, and our choir director, Ellen Addington, is also well trained. Our Women's Fellowship is very active in study and service. They sponsor the Clothes Closet and the summer Country Fair, which raises quite a bit of money for good deeds. Myrtle Fulton is head of our Fellowship. Among the men, Jerry Staublin is moderator of the church, which means he is chairman of the church council.

COUIER: Do many of your members go south in the winter?

GIFFIN: Yes, but, on the other hand, we get quite a few seasonal residents in the summer, especially from the Belvedere Club. There are quite a few Presbyterians at the Belvedere and we are nearest of any church in town to Presbyterian. It was our church through which the Ransoms worked to establish the Chip Counseling Center.

COURIER: Do you enjoy your work?

GIFFIN: Yes. The ministry is very satisfying because we get into the lives of people at a point of need -- illness, death, family problems. In this church we're trying to foster a feeling of a loving community in which people care for people. The thing that's hard about being a minister is that our schedule is so broken up by evening meetings, weddings, funerals, and other things that it's hard to take a day off.

COURIER: As a result of serving on the Commission on Aging, what do you find are the main problems of older people in this area?

GIFFIN: Loneliness, coupled with a meaningless feeling -- that they are of no worth any more -- and poor health. Lonely widows rattle around in single houses. I'm interested in the Hospice Movement.

COURIER: What's that?

GIFFIN: It's a program of providing for the terminally ill in a caring community with continuing activity -- keeping them active and using pain-killing drugs without criticism of addiction. They can be cared for in a building or at home and taken about the community to do what they want -- shop, visit, or whatever. Representative David Hollister is working with a State committee on the Hospice Movement. I also wish older people could work longer.

COURIER: What is the major service of the Kiwanis Club?

GIFFIN: Helping youth. We allocate money to several groups, including Camp Daggett, the high school band, Scouts, Youth for Christ, and Little League. We are happy we are adding some new, younger members to our membership.

COURIER: We mentioned the Chip Counseling Center before. That has been a successful venture, hasn't it?

GIFFIN: Yes, but the three-year funding provided by the Ransoms is now running out and we will have to pick up operating money locally. We've undertaken a drive to do this.

COURIER: What are some of your other interests?

GIFFIN: I like to read, cross-country ski, and hike. I would also like to sail but have'nt gotten around to it.

COURIER: What outside church jobs do you have?

GIFFIN: I'm on the bylaws committee of the Michigan Conference of the United Church of Christ and formerly served as moderator of the Northern Area of the Conference.

COURIER: Do you and Jean have any children?

GIFFIN: We have two married daughters, one in Bethesda, Maryland, and one in Bloomington, Minnesota, and two grandchildren.

Rayders give Saints a scare

Charlevoix gave Michigan-Huron Shores power St. Ignace all it could handle Friday before succumbing, 50-43, in girls basketball action.

The win boosted St. Ignace's record to 17-1. The lone Saint loss was to Sault Ste. Marie. Charlevoix's record dropped to 9-7.

The game started slowly with Charlevoix scoring the first four points but then getting blanked the rest of the quarter as St. Ignace moved out to a 7-4 lead.

The tempo picked up in the second quarter as the Rayders - behind the scoring of Mel Kerridge - kept right on the tail of St. Ignace. The Saints led by just two points, 22-20, at half.

The contest remained close in the second half with the Rayders trailing by three points with two minutes to go. However, St. Ignace went into a four corner offense to whittle time off the clock forcing Charlevoix to foul to get the ball.

Kerridge finished with 18 points to pace all Charlevoix scorers. Sandy Halberg tallied 23 points and Glenda Pemble added 14 for St. Ignace.

Earlier in the week, the Rayders beat Rogers City, 50-49, in overtime.

Charlevoix came from four points down with 30 seconds to go in regulation play to force the overtime. Lisa Pischner scored to cut the gap to two points and then the Rayders pressed and Rogers City turned the ball over and Teresa Noirot canned a five footer to knot the score.

Pischner turned out to be the hero in the extra session as her shot at the buzzer won the game.

The lead seesawed throughout the game. After an 8-8 deadlock in the first quarter, Charlevoix grabbed a 23-20 halftime advantage only to have Rogers City comeback to take a two point lead 33-31 after three quarters.

Kerridge again led the Rayder attack with 15 points. Pischner added 14.

Charlevoix will host Boyne City Tuesday in a Parents Night contest.

In junior varsity action, Rogers City beat Charlevoix 45-18 and St. Ignace upended the Rayders 46-25.

Cross-country ski center opens at Shanty Creek

BELLAIRE -- The Rossignol Ski Company will open their first Michigan Cross-Country Touring Center this winter at Hilton Shanty Creek, in Bellaire.

Hilton Shanty Creek, a totally self-contained 1300 acre resort with alpine slopes, swimming pool and convention facilities, will maintain 28 kilometers of dual track set trails and certified nordic instruction. The Bahnhof Ski Shop will offer a complete rental line of Rossignol cross-country equipment.

"We selected Hilton Shanty Creek for our first Michigan location because of their beautiful trails and excellent accommodations," said Joe Arbaugh of the Rossignol Ski Company. Rossignol has many cross-country touring centers throughout the United States; The nearest center to Hilton Shanty Creek is located in Ohio.

Representatives from Rossignol have been working with Hilton Shanty Creek personnel since June, providing professional consulting for preparation and up-keep of the touring center. Throughout the season company representatives and members of the Rossignol Cross-Country Ski Team will visit the center for training and observation.

The newly established touring center will feature thirteen trails, allowing skiers many hours of scenic pleasure. Terrain and trail loops through forested hills and valleys will be available for the beginner and advanced skier. Also available will be the Bill Koch Ski League, for children 13 years and under, and on Tuesday and Sunday afternoons cross-country Nastar races will be held.

A special feature of the new touring center will be three annual races. The Hilton Shanty Creek Stampede, to be held on Saturday, Dec. 15, 5, 10 and 15 kilometers; The Bahnhof Citizens Race, on Saturday, Jan. 20, 10 and 15 kilometers; and the ULLR Dog Open, on Saturday, March 2, 10 and 20 kilometers.

Auxiliary to make fruit baskets for Grandvue patients

The Auxiliary of the Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, made plans for hosting the 11th District meeting at the Post Home on Sunday, Dec. 9, at a recent meeting held at the Post Home.

The Auxillary will prepare and serve a dinner for American Legion and Auxillary members at 1 p.m. The business sessions for both organizations will follow at 2 p.m.

Plans were also made to meet at the Post Home at 1 p.m. Tuesday to make up fruit baskets for patients at the Grandvue Medical Care Facility and to deliver them to the facility on Wednesday. This has been a project carried on by the auxiliary for several years.

Mrs. Nancy Wood, Girls' State chairperson, reported on this project stating that the project was underway, rules were being compiled and plans to send three girls again this year were being formulated. Wolverine Girls State is a project sponsored by the State Department whose purpose is to interest high school age girls in government and Americanism. It is held at a College campus in June. The Auxiliary underwrites the cost of the project.

Mrs. Genevieve Smith reported that 27 gifts for men, women and children had been sent to the gift shop at the VA Hospital at Battle Creek for the benefit of patients. Wrapping paper and cards were included.

Mrs. Betty Pearsall, legislative chairman, reported that she had received scholarship blanks and legislative reports advising energy conservation.

Mrs. Josephine Bindj, Mrs. Angeline Borths, Mrs. Pearsall and Mrs. Lyda Johnson attended the recent fall round-up at Harbor Springs where they heard reports on the fall conference held at Ann Arbor where energy conservation, "the year of the child" and the Special Olympics were the main topics emphasized.

Plans were also made for the next meeting scheduled for Dec. 13. It will be a Christmas party and exchange of gifts. Mrs. Bindi and Mrs. Gladys Pellitier will host the meeting to be held at the post home.

Mrs. Mary Ann Farkas, president, and Mrs. Betty McKenzie served refreshments.

New directory

Michigan Bell has introduced a new Yellow Pages Directory called the Straits Area Michigan Travelers Directory.

E.W. Mike Reid, local Michigan Bell manager, said the new directory is a compact travelers' Yellow Pages designed specifically to meet the needs of vacationers and travelers.

The new directory lists businesses which serve or aid travelers and vactioners in the Straits area.

"Under about 200 headings, the Travelers Directory lists everything from boat, car, and sporting good stores to antique dealers, restaurants, motels, doctors, service stations, laundromats and various repair and rental firms," Reid said.

He noted that one of the primary aims of the new book is to supplement existing sources of information in a way that benefits tourists and travelers in Michigan as well as businesses which cater to tourists and travelers.

Luncheon, bazaar Nov. 28

An array of handcrafted toys, mittens and other crafts, home-baked goodies, cookbooks and ceramics will be featured at the annual Charlevoix Area Hospital Salad Luncheon and Bazaar, Wednesday, Nov. 28th at the American Legion Hall.

Beginning at 11 a.m. on the 28th, the public is invited to sample homemade foods, from entrees to salads, all prepared by hospital employees. Luncheon tickets are $2.50 per person.

Tickets will be sold for chances on Raggedy Ann and Andy dolls, handmade by Barbara Gebott, from the hospital business office; and a beautiful hand stitched quilt, donated by Helen Jensen of Ellsworth, grandmother of hospital business office employee Jean Van Stedum.

All proceeds from the luncheon and the contest will be used to buy a "Life Pack" for the Emergency Room at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The "Life Pack" is the latest model resuscitator and defibrillator. It is a vital piece of equipment in treating victims of heart failure, and will be an addition to the resuscitators and defibrillators already on hand at the hospital.

Last year the Salad Luncheon and Bazaar raised over $1500 which the employees donated to the hospital's building fund. It has become an annual affair because of the success of last year's effort, and, as one employee said, "It was su much fun."

THE GREAT IMPOSTORS
(Part II)

In my last article I explained the difference between simulated and synthetic. A simulated stone resembles the natural; a synthetic is, for the most part, chemically, optically and physically identical. Synthetic diamonds will not pop up in a jewelry store, so there is no reason for concern in this area. However, simulated diamonds are passed off as the real thing every day, so you should be aware of these.

The simulated diamond movement began in 1948 with the invention of synthetic rutile (Titania). It has very high dispersion of fire, but it is much softer than diamond and always has a tinge of yellow in it.

Strontium titanate (Fabulite) was developed in 1955. Although a colorless stone can be manufactured, its major drawback is that it is even softer than synthetic rutile, so it's prone to scratching and abrading. Also, it's too fiery to be a believable diamond substitute.

The early 60's saw the advent of the YAG (synthetic yttrium aluminum garnet). Although this is much harder than its forerunners, it does not maintain its brilliancy. This was marketed under over a dozen different trade names, including Diamonair and Diamonique.

In my next article I will talk about the advances of the '70s, including the newest and most sophisticated simulated diamond. This is information every diamond lover should know.

Five CHS students selected to District Honors Band

By Fran Martin

Five members of the Charlevoix High School Symphony Band have been named to the District II Honors Band.

The District II Honors Band is composed of outstanding young instrumentalists in northern Michigan.

Representing Charlevoix will be Bill Horton, Mary Hortou, Lori Paul, Mary Plagge and David Staublin. They were selected after auditioning before a panel of judges composed of District II band directors.

The Honors Band concert will be presented at the Interlochen Arts Academy on Sunday, Dec. 8. The time of the concert will be announced later.

Dr. Frederick Fennel, conductor-in-rosidence at the University of Miami (Fla) will be the guest conductor at the concert.

Michael Filkens, director of music in Charlevoix, will accompany the five students to Interlochen on Saturday for rehearsals. Rehearsals will also be held on Sunday prior to the concert. They will be guests of the Academy while at Interlochen.

The Honors Band is sponsored by District II of the Michigan Band and Orchestra Association.

Mitten Trees to be put up Dec. 7

If you think back to a year ago, you know how cold it can get in Charlevoix County. Especially if you are a small child with no mittens.

On Dec. 7 the Child Abuse Prevention Committee, a non-profit organization serving the Charlevoix County area, will be putting up Mitten Trees in Charlevoix, East Jordan Boyne City and Boyne Falls.

The trees will be used to hold mittens, hats and scarves that area residents would like to donate. The donations will be equally divided and distributed to all elementary schools in Charlevoix County plus Holy Childhood in Harbor Springs. School nurses will pass out the items to needy children in grades K-5.

This year Mitten Trees will be located at Leisure Time in the Oleson's Shopping Center in Charlevoix, and Northwestern State Bank in East Jordan, Boyne Falls and Boyne City (Country Star branch).

Last year about 250 pair of mittens were donated.

If you desire more information contact Kathy Danforth, 536-2876.

Weddings

Wells-Matthew

Julie May Wells of Charlevoix and Mitchell Jon Matthew of Walloon Lake exchanged marriage vows Nov. 3 at the First Congregational Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wells of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Matthew of Walloon Lake.

Wedding music was offered by Fran Tollas and Elizabeth Humphrey. Among other selections were "If" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a gown of dacron polyester over bridal taffeta with a high neckline, full bishop sleeves and cuffs of silk venise lace. A ruffled embroidered flounce graced the hemline and an attached chapel length train. The bodice was overlaid with silk venise lace and above the ruffled flounce were silk venise appliques and lace trim. Her fingertip veil of illusion was edged with matching lace and attached to a Juliet cap of lace and seed pearls. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of silk carnations and pink rosebuds with a single orchid in the center of the arrangement.

Barbara Kane of Charlevoix was the maid of honor. She wore a blu gown of sheer organza. The long sleeves and high collar were trimmed with ivory lace and a ruffled flounce accented the hemline. She wore a wide brimmed hat and carried a lighted hurricane candle with silk carnations to match her gown.

Bridesmaids were Charlene Weidenhamer of Petoskey, Sherrie Selissen of Charlevoix and Andrea Brown of Grand Rapids.

They wore gowns styled like the maid of honor's gown in shades of maize, mint and apricot, respectively. The bridesmaids also carried lighted hurricane candles with silk carnations to match their gowns.

Tonya Matthers of Charlevoix was the flower girl. She wore a miniature version of the bride's gown and carried a miniature cascade bouquet of an orchid surrounded by silk carnations and pink rosebuds.

Christopher Weidenhamer of Petoskey was the ringbearer.

Best man was Donald Wells Jr., brother of the bride, and groomsmen were Joel Weidenhamer of Petoskey, Tom Pheips of St. Ignace, and Brian Sarasin of Walloon Lake. Ushers were Dan Wells, Walter Olson, Calvin Olson and Bill LaBrecque.

A reception followed the wedding at the 4-H Center in Petoskey, given by the parents of the bride. The wedding cake was made by Bobbie Parkes of Charlevoix.

The newlyweds chose a Florida honeymoon. They will reside in Charlevoix. The bride is a graduate of Charlevoix High School and the groom graduated from Petoskey High School. He is employed at Wickes Lumber in Petoskey.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at the Flap Jack Shack on Friday evening.

HIRING MILLIONS OF PEOPLE TO WORK ON UNITED WAY WOULD NOT BE EFFICIENT.
GETTING THEM TO WORK FOR NOTHING IS.
The big reason why United Way can do so much for so many is that a lot of big hearted Americans contribute countless millions of hours every year. Free of charge. Volunteers do everything from collecting money to deciding how it will be used in their local communities. So administrative costs are low, and more can be spent on needed services.
And that's how United Way works. And why.
Thanks for what it works for all of us.

On Garden Island

Indian burial ground restored and preserved

It's all a memory now.

• The hoot of the barn owls as they complained of the intrusion of humans.

• The unfamiliar sound of the coyotes as they barked at the full moon.

• The sorrowful call of the whip-poor-will.

• The sight of stars set in a sky of midnight blue.

• Stories of Indian heritage as told by Kee Peschel, teacher-student of ethobotany and Indian history.

• The closeness of friends gathered around an open fire.

• The satisfaction of accomplishing a mission.

For seven area Indian youths and their adult conselors - Pete Spieles, Gary Brindel and James Jensen - the sights and sounds will not soon be forgotten. The group spent two weeks on Garden Island restoring and preserving an Indian burial grounds, where many of the youths ancestors are buried.

The 10-12,000 acre island is located north of Beaver Island between Grey's Reef and the outer shipping lane in northern Lake Michigan. It once was the site of an Indian village, which was located along the harbor on the island's southwest side. It boasted a population of several hundred. Most of the Indians made a living by fishing and - in later years - by working at the Northcutt mill on the south end of the island and for white families who raised cattle and fished. Its history dates back to 1661 when the first French missionaries and explorers, traveling by canoe and later by small boat, visited the island and converted the Native Americans to Christianity.

However, isolation and a lack of deep harbors and employment led to the migration of the Indians to Beaver Island and the mainland during the 1920's - leaving the homes and the cemetery to the forest and the elements.

Then, while he was on Beaver Island as assistant director of Environmental Education at the lighthouse for the Charlevoix Public Schools, Brian Molitar heard of the burial grounds. His interest grew and as it did he received support from a committee of Native Americans and obtained an Indian Education grant of approximately $4,000 to finance the restoration and preservation of the Garden Island burial grounds.

The project as planned by the committee, Molitar and others was to be a summer learning, work and environmental education experience for local Indian youths.

Two goals were established:

1)To restore and preserve the burial grounds - an area that contains an immeasurable amount of cultural wealth for the Indian community.

2)To meet specific educational and cultural needs of the Indian youths and give them an opportunity to learn from Ms. Peschel, who is of Indian heritage and who has researched Garden Island for the past 10 summers.

Spieles, who is also of Indian descent and who teaches in Charlevoix, directed the project. The youths who participated in the project were: Edward Oliver, Matt Boulton, Michael Schmidt, Steve Schmidt and Louis Knudtson of Charlevoix; Ron Boda of Pellston; and John Kenwabakise of St. James. Brindel accompanied the group the first week and Jensen the second week.

After reaching the harbor, the group had to rebuild the existing dock, unload gear, and set up camp, before they could explore the island.

"When we finally located the cemetery, which was northeast of the former village, it was so grown over with brush, weeds, and bracken that it was difficult to find the grave sites and the spirit houses," Spieles said.

Marker trees that outline the boundaries of the seven acre cemetery were located first. Then, spirit houses and other types of markers, like wooden crosses, that identified grave sites were found.

The group learned that birch trees were used to mark graves. And carvings in a tree identified the occupation of the deceased (hunter, canoe builder, etc).

"We tried not to disturb the natural growth within the boundaries of the cemetery," Spieles explained. "We cut low brush and removed trees that had fallen over graves or spirit houses.

"When this was completed we repaired spirit houses that had been damaged and restored others that had deteriorated by using lumber salvaged from an old building during an exploratory trip."

In addition, they also removed fallen branches and set other markers in place.

The seven youths did the actual work at the historic site, since it was determined this would give them a great sense of pride in preserving an important part of their past.

During the second week of their stay, the youths had an opportunity to meet with Ms. Peschel. She told the group that spirit houses were put over grave sites and that food, tobacco and other commodities were placed inside for the benefit of the spirits who would accompany the spirit of the deceased to the Land of Eternity which lies in the west. That is why, she said, all graves in the cemetery face west. In addition, she said, all graves were once lined with birch bark.

She also told the group of Indian legends and beliefs before their conversion to Christianity and how they used various plants as food and medicine. The youths listened with great interest and curiousity, Spieles said.

The camping experience was also new to most of the boys. They lived in tents and prepared meals on a Coleman stove. When their work for the day was finished they explored the island, following trails established long ago by their ancestors.

"I think - from their conversations - that they had a feel for the history of the island and the part their ancestors had in it," Spieles said.

Garden Island had long been a "stopping off" place for missionaries, fur traders and explorers. However, with the use of larger boats the island was by-passed because it lacked a deep harbor.

Though the early missionaries had converted the Indians to Christianity long before, it wasn't until 1915-16 that the first church was constructed. James W. Gallagher, former Beaver Island resident who now lives here, recalled the building of the small church by Hugh Gallagher (no relation) and its dedication in 1917. Gallagher said he and another boy from the island - who was part Indian - accompanied his grandfather and the bishop from Grand Rapids to Garden Island aboard a fishing tug. The two boys served as altar boys at the dedication, he said. The church was a wooden structure built with hand-hewn timbers milled at Northcutt's.

It was in the 1920's when the mill closed and those who raised cattle and fished left the island that the Indian population dwindled.

In 1930, the Rev. Edward F. Neubecker, who served as pastor of Holy Cross Church on Beaver Island, recalled that the church was dismantled, the altar stone removed, the bell removed from the steeple and taken to Beaver Island, the statues taken to a chapel at the Christian Brothers summer residents, and the church proper transported via barge to Cheboygan where it was converted into a home. The timbers used for the foundation were floated to Beaver Island and used in the construction of docks at the St. James harbor.

During the summer of 1980 the Beaver Island Historical Society plans to erect the National Historical marker at the site of the Indian burial ground. The site has also been designated as a Native American Cemetery and will be listed as such in the national registry.

The project will then be completed and the island - except for an occasional visit by a DNR representative or bass fishermen - will be left to wildlife - deer, coyotes, foxes and rabbits - and to the feathered population - sandhill loons, the bard owls, the whip-poor-will and song birds - that inhabit the island.

Planners recommend zoning change

The Charlevoix Planning Commission has recommended that all property zoned PUD (Planned Unit Development) in the city be rezoned to R-1 (Single Family Residential).

The recommendation, approved Monday night, will be forwarded to the Charlevoix City Council.

The recommendation will not affect many property owners. The only PUD zoned land in Charlevoix is on the city's south side, and most of it is owned by Robert Schleman.

The planning commission has asked council to initiate public hearings on the recommendation.

Council just approved an 18 unit condominium project near Hampton Village on property zoned PUD.

The planners have also asked council to not rezone any property to R-4 (Multiple Family) until a study can be made of Charlevoix's multiple housing development.

"We don't want Charlevoix to look like Miami Beach," one planner commented.

It was not determined who would conduct the study and when it would be conducted.

In other action, the planners tabled action on a site plan presented by L.B.J. Investments, who own a building on Bridge Street next to the Pine River Building. The owners started building an addition on the back. However, a stop work order was issued when it was learned that the building permit was issued in error and that a site plan needed to be presented to the planners. The planners recommended that John Haggard - representing L.B.J. Investments - show on a site plan several different parking arrangements behind the building. As it stands, Haggard would need a variance for parking.

How much is paid in property taxes?

Last week the Courier presented the Charlevoix County property tax bill for 1979 in terms of mills and individual pieces of property.

Another side of the story is the dollar amount raised by property taxes in each township, city, and village.

Bills amounting to $11,171,500 will soon be in the hands of Charlevoix County property owners (although those in Charlevoix, Boyne City, and East Jordan will receive only partial bills this winter and the rest next summer).

Charlevoix City property owners will pay the largest amount of any political unit, $1,811,119, followed by: Boyne City, $1,266,889; Hayes Township, $1,064,199; Eveline Township, $1,053,352; Charlevoix Township, $893,987; East Jordan, $814,469; Melrose Township, $692,175; South Arm Township, $587,791; Boyne Valley Township, $523,297; Bay Township, $471,905; Wilson Township, $355,333; Evangeline Township, $317,440; Marion Township, $313,985; Hudson Township, $309,742; Norwood Township, $238,633; Chandler Township, $149,912; St. James Township, $148,652; Peaine Township, $145,503; and Boyne Falls, $23,109.

Where will all this money go? The largest portion, 70.314 percent, amounting to $7,855,096, will go to support local school systems; 14.238 percent, amounting to $1,590,635, will go to support township, city, and village governments; 10.824 percent, amounting to $1,209,166, will go to support county government; 2.82 percent, amounting to $315,073, will go to support the Char-Em Intermediate School District; and 1.804 percent, amounting to $201,527, will go to the Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

First graders at the Charlevoix Elementary School had a Thanksgiving feast Tuesday morning. The children dressed for the occasion, watched Chris Two Crow (right) perform Indian dances and then had lunch.

Ferry closing Friday

The earliest closing of the Ironton Ferry in recent years has been announced by Fred Welch, engineer-manager of the Charlevoix County Road Commission which operates the ferry for the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

The ferry will cease operation across the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix which connects M-66 with Boyne City via Ferry Road at 10 a.m. Friday, Nov. 30.

Increased costs of operation and maintenance were given as the reason for closing down the operation at the early date. The ferry traditionally operates until ice forces the closing or until Dec. 31.

At the Nov. 14 meeting of the board of commissioners, the recommendation of the road commission that the ferry discontinue operation on Nov. 30 did not have the support of the board of commissioners. However, the commissioners did, by a vote of 8-3, vote to leave the closing to the discretion of the road commission.

Selling Your House by Gene Steele

WHAT KIND OF PEOPLE?

What kind of people are going to buy your home? Most probably, when the sale is consummated, they will turn out to be a pleasant family with whom you have some rapport. You hope your old neighbors will like them, too.

Until you find the buyers, though, there will be many others who are interested in your home, and some who will want to come and look at it. What kind of people will they be? The truth is, YOU DON'T KNOW.

And if you advertise your home for sale, you are going to hear from all kinds of people. You can't really tell, over the telephone, even at the door, what they are like. Do you want to deal with these people? Are they bona fide prospects?

You need help. You need someone to screen these people, separate the buyers from the lookers, separate the qualified prospects from those who simply cannot meet your price. And that help should be knowledgable in these areas.

That's where we come in. A professional real estate agent is experienced in screening the qualified buyer from all the other people who might come ringing your doorbell.

Our staff has the ability to find just the right buyer for your property. Let them get the results you want.

THE GREAT IMPOSTORS (Part III)

John Reusch

This is the conclusion of my three part series on simulated diamonds. This will bring you to the end of the book on the history of the movement, although another page could be written tomorrow.

GGG (gadolinium gallium garnet) was the first diamond simulant of the '70s. It's not as hard as YAG but its brilliancy and dispersion are much closer to that of diamond. Unfortunately, it tends to discolor when exposed to ultraviolet light.

The newest and most sophisticated of the diamond look-alikes is synthetic cubic zirconia. You may have seen this advertised as Diamon-Z, Diamonesque, Diamonair II or a similar trade name.

Synthetic cubic zirconia has the hardness of YAG but, unlike its predecessor, it bears an amazing resemblance to diamond. When it first came on the market, a number of very knowledgeable jewelers were fooled by it. Normal gem testing equipment is insufficient in separating cubic zirconia from diamond, so it has brought new equipment on the market.

Because of the high level of sophistication of the newest diamond substitutes, consumers must seek out jewelers with up-to-date gemological knowledge. American Gem Society jewelers have all completed intensive courses of gemological study and have passed rigid examinations. In addition, each year they are required to pass an exam covering the latest developments. Whenever you are considering as important a purchase as a diamond, be sure to consult us or another AGS member firm.

Charlevoix Yesterday

If Charlevoix voters approve a bond issue on March 4 to construct a new water tower, this old one overlooking the Pine River Channel will end its days of usefulness, and may even be torn down. The present tower was built about 1906 and looms high over the city in all the old photographs of Charlevoix. The building it stands next to in this picture is the old Oldham Club.

County records now on microfilm

Persons interested in researching Charlevoix County government proceedings as far back as 1881 will now be able to do so at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Through the efforts of Charlevoix County Clerk Clarence Rabach, the library has secured microfilm records of all the journals of the County Board of Supervisors and the later Board of Commissioners. The library also has a new microfilm reader-printer with which the microfilm can be read, and when desired, copied onto paper for future reference.

The set of microfilms of county journals given to the library is one of three sets recently made by Micro-Data Service of Charlevoix. One other set will be stored in a vault in the county building and the third set will be used as a "working copy" in the county building.

The journals are divided into nine volumes, beginning with the proceedings of the Board of Supervisors on Oct. 10, 1881 and continuing through those of the Board of Commissioners on Aug. 22, 179. They will be added to on a regular basis.

Although Charlevoix County was established in 1869, there are no records pertaining to it prior to 1881. It is believed that the early records were destroyed in the fire that razed the county building when it was located in Boyne City.

Of additional historical interest are the microfilms of all available copies of the Charlevoix Courier through 1978, which are now also available at the library.

The microfilm service is only one of the many services offered by the library.

The library is part of the Northland Library Co-op, and through that organization has access to the State Library loan system. When requested materials are not available at the local library they can usually be secured from Northland or the State Library.

Also through Northland, the library can secure any of a large number of films which can be ordered from a catalog in the library.

The library's audio-visual department contains serveral film projectors – 8 mm., 16 mm., and 35 mm. – a nuviewable screen, and a cassette record player, among other pieces of equipment. They can be borrowed by individuals or organizations upon payment of a deposit. Also available are a collection of 8 mm. sound films for use at children's parties. They include such favorites as "Winnie the Pooh", "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea", and "Swiss Family Robinson".

Materials for the blind and physically handicapped are also available at the library. They are funneled through the Northland Co-op, the State Library, and the Library of Congress. A Certificate of Eligibility signed by a physician or optometrist is all that is necessary to receive a record player and cassette player. Records and cassettes are sent through the mail to those who order them.

Another service of the library is the coin-operated copying machine on which copies of legal documents, excerpts from books and magazines, and other materials may be made.

For young children, the library offers three story hours each week. Phyllis Hess conducts one story hour on Tuesday mornings from 10:30 to 11:30 for three to five-year-olds, and Mary Jo Bascom conducts two story hours on Saturdays, one from 11 a.m. to noon for three to five-year-olds and one from 12:30 to 1:30 for six to eight-year-olds.

And of course, the Charlevoix Public Library has books – 14,897 of them at last count, according to Librarian Marybeth Wallick.

At Charlevoix Area Hospital

Nurses personalize care

Last week an elderly widow, living alone in rural East Jordan, received a postcard:

"Please call or come by the Charlevoix Area Hospital to let us know how you are doing."

She had been a patient earlier this fall. Members of the nursing staff became concerned about her recuperation and progress after she returned home, but discovered her phone had been disconnected. So the postcard was sent.

The woman dropped by the hospital and chatted with her friends among nurses and aides, assuring them she was fairing well. The nurses were relieved and the former patient promised to stay in touch.

Last year a nursing staff member faced a personal emergency that took her away from work for more time than her vacation and sick days would permit.

With the hospital administration's blessing, other nurses and aides donated their personal vacation time to her until she returned to work.

Two Christmases ago, a father of five was stricken by an heart attack. His family faced a sad and bleak Christmas with no money for gifts.

With no fanfare, the nursing staff saw that each member of the family received something special Christmas morning.

Asked about these and other similar incidents, Kathy Boss, director of Nursing Services, replied, "Those are things we do. They are part of our job."

"We don't go out and tell the world about it," Mrs. Boss said, almost annoyed by the persistent questioning.

That being small gives Charlevoix Area Hospital an unique atmosphere is not taken for granted by the staff.

The nursing staff and administration work to maintain the personal relationships, between patients and staff and staff and administration, that characterize the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Recently the method of keeping patient charts was changed to give nurses and aides more time to be at patients' bedsides.

"When you come in here you are not just a number of foot or gall bladder," Isabel Seidel, RB, assistant to the director of Nursing Services, said, laughing.

"Our aides deserve a lot of credit," the nurse added. "They work closely with patients, helping them wash their hair, get dressed, walk around."

Mary Ann Cox, RN, whose job as In-Service coordinator includes orienting new nurses, said, coming to a small hospital is often an adjustment for nurses from specialty hospitals.

"Here everyone works together. When the Intensive Care Unit nurses, for example, are not busy, they help in other areas, and vice versa."

Speaking of her staff's philosophy, Mrs. Boss said, "We treat patients as a whole.

"If a nurse is willing to sit down, talk and listen, patients will unload their problems.

"We all contribute what we know about a patient to help in his care. If someone is hard of hearing, we make a note for the next nurse.

"If someone needs help when they are discharged, we work with social services to find what they need – supplies, babysitters, help with meals," Mrs. Boss explained as she stopped to talk with a patient waiting to enter X-ray.

The personalized concern for the hospital's 35 RNs, 6 LPNs, 20 aides, and orderlies, technicians and clerk is carefully nurtured by the administration.

"Open communication between staff and administration is important," Mrs. Boss said.

"We encourage everyone to discuss problems, share suggestions," the nursing director explained as she seated herself in her office, the door to which is rarely closed.

Another observer said, "Employees are treated as individuals, personally, not as a group."

"Everyone works together for the hospital," Diane Nuvotny secretary to the administrator commented.

"Compassion" is more than a word at Charlevoix Area Hospital, it is a way of life.

Nurses aide Shirley Tomga of Ellsworth takes a minute to visit with a patient.

Need aid for college?

Along with everything else, the cost of attending college continues to spiral upwards. With public colleges and universities in the State of Michigan exceeding $3,500 per year, more and more families are finding it extremely difficult to finance a son's or daughter's college education.

The complex and often frustrating process of applying for financial aid for post secondary education will be the topic of discussion at a "financial aid workshop" to be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 3 at Charlevoix High School cafeteria.

Students in the 11th and 12th grades and their parents are invited to the workshop which will cover basic concepts of financial aid as well as a discussion on federal, state and local sources of financial assistance.

Cliff Denay, director of financial aid at North Central Michigan College, Gayle Kaczynski and Charles Bentley, counselers at CHS, will analyze the programs and process for financial aid.

Time to solve parking woes

Winter may be on its way but now is the time for the Charlevoix City Council to plan ahead and attempt to remedy the summer parking woes in the downtown district.

The inadequate parking facilites downtown have been talked about for years. But there has been little action. Hopefully, that will change in the months ahead.

Council is presently trying to hammer out a deal with the Beaver Island Boat Company. The boat company owns a parcel of land off Clinton Street in the downtown district. They are offering it to the city for $90,000. City officials estimate that between 50 and 60 parking spaces could be put on the property.

The boat company in return would like a long term lease on two berths at the city dock. Initially, they asked about a 25 year lease. However, Mayor Sam Supernaw has said the city can only offer a five year lease - and that it cannot offer four automatic renewals - because it would circumvent the intent of the five year maximum lease period established in the City Charter.

Now here is where the deal gets interesting.

If the city does purchase the Clinton Street property, the possibility exists that no capital outlay or interest will be paid by the city - as long as the dock lease continues. Since council cannot make a long term committment, Mayor Supernaw has recommended that an agreement be written so that - should the city fail to renew the boat company's lease or increase the rent during the 25 year period - the interest on the purchase of the building would come due which would give future councils an incentive for continuing the lease.

The city has been receiving $2,700 for the rental of the two berths. Council is proposing to increase the rent to $3,600.

On the surface, that might sound cheap. But keep in mind that most of the merchants in downtown Charlevoix - and elsewhere - benefit from the company's boat excursions to Beaver Island.

There are some in the community who insist that the traffic flow is the problem - and not the parking. But, in actuality, the two go hand-in-hand. If the city had adequate parking, Bridge Street could be converted into four lanes and that would help the traffic flow considerably. And it may be just a matter of time before the State Department of Highways and Transportation bans on-street parking on Bridge Street. If that happens, the city better be ready with some solutions.

What makes the Beaver Island Boat Company property valuable is that it is centrally located and it is one of the few sites available for off-street parking. Financially, it is also the most feasible. It would cost city taxpayers thousands and thousands of dollars to build a ramp, which would be one alternative. Just ask Petoskey officials (who have been studying plans for a parking ramp) how unwise that would be.

Economically, the downtown district is still thriving. The shops are full. But to keep it that way the parking must be improved. This should be one key issue council should tackle in the long, cold winter months ahead.

Comments on Iranian crisis

Editor's note: Charles Baer, a former Charlevoix resident, recently wrote his congressman concerning the takeover of the U.S. embassy in Iran. Following is a reply to Baer's letter from Rep. Robert Bauman.

Dear Mr. Baer:

Thank you for informing me of your indignation about the takeover of our Embassy in Iran and the holding of Americans as hostages.

I, too, am outraged over this blatant disregard for U.S. sovereignty and slap in the face to all American citizens. We have tolerated the antics of the Ayatollah Khomeini long enough, and now this barbarian has gone too far. It is time the United States stopped acting as the world's doormat, and started letting these terrorists know we will not allow our peoples' lives to be threatened.

I believe we should take strong, punitive measures against Iran. The House unanimously accepted my call for a complete cutoff of military and economic aid to Iran on November 13. I have co-sponsored legislation to deport any Iranians residing illegally in this country, as well as those who participate in violent demonstrations. I also support an immediate end of all military and economic aid to Iran, seizure of iranian assets in our country, and the closing of the Iranian Embassy in Washington. Finally, once our citizens are rescued from our Embassy, we should announce publicly that we will never again tolerate such an invasion of our embassies anywhere in the world, and make that pledge stick.

I appreciate your comments on this urgent matter, and I'm glad to see that you support my views. Please don't hesitate to contact me again if I may be of future service to you.

Long term bonds may be best investment of all

Harold Smith

For all of its capriciousness there is one thing about inflation that's completely predictable: It's always around – in one form or another.

This year, for example, the nation has been burdened by virtual non-stop double digit inflation. In 1974, the same condition prevailed. We had double digit inflation in all its glory. Although it was slightly lower than today, it, nevertheless, gave off the impression that it would be with us forever. But it wasn't. In 1975 the inflation rate dropped to 8.6 percent, then to 5.5 percent in 1976, 6.5 percent in 1977, and 7.7 percent in 1978.

Many investors in 1974 were bitten by the same bug that keeps nibbling away at them in 1979. They were paralyzed first by indecision, and then by an obsession to make only short term investments. Investment funds virtually poured into the high-yielding, short-term, fixed income investments such as money funds, U.S. Government obligations, CD's and commercial paper.

High-yielding long term investments, then as now, went begging. The anxiety of double digit inflation apparently drove investors to believe that the future had a boundry line of six months, no more. A few alert fixed income investors, however, bought the high 11 and 12 percent long term bonds that were available in 1974 and early 1975. The result was they were able to harvest those same delectable rates of return year after year, even when interest rates headed south and bottomed in the 5 and 6 percent area.

The short term investors, in the meantime, took it in the chops. Their short term investments paid off for only the short term. After that they had to settle for the 5 to 6 percent stuff and live with that condition for the next four to five years. I wouldn't presume to suggest that all investment funds go into long term bonds. Far from it. But a little nibble here and there shouldn't hurt. It might, in fact, improve your portfolio income for many years to come.

Most investors are (or should be) the long term variety. Plopping all of one's investment funds into short term money market stuff isn't a bad idea, to be sure. But keep in mind that you'll get just what you pay for: a short term solution to a long term problem. And that just might not be a solution at all.

Guaranteeing the safety of nuclear power

Bob Davis

The U.S. House of Representatives is in the process of reauthorizing the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. The reauthorization itself is relatively non-controversial, however, some of the amendments expected to be offered will probably stir up quite a bit of debate.

Probably the most controversial amendment will be one which will propose a six-month moratorium on the issuance of any new nuclear construction permits. The Kemeny Commission, which was appointed by President Carter to study the accident at Three Mile Island, did not recommend a moratorium, as such, but did suggest that no new construction permits be issued without requiring that specific and strict safety standards be met. Such standards include technological improvements and guarantees, safety measures, and competency tests for technicians, operators, and management.

A second amendment being proposed would require that no new licenses be issued until a community evacuation permit is submitted and approved.

Obviously, these amendments are going to require thorough study. Whether I choose to support them on the floor, I feel it is incumbent upon Congress to ensure the safety of nuclear power. In order to lessen our dependence on foreign oil, I feel we must pursue every available alternative source of energy, including the further development of nuclear power. We cannot afford, however, to go full speed ahead in such development without regard to safety.

WHAT DIRECTION FOR SOLAR POWER?

As a member of the Energy Development and Application Subcommittee of the House Committee on Science and Technology, I have had the opportunity to study, in depth, the development of solar power.

The development of solar power is very exciting to me, and I'm an avid supporter of most solar-related legislation. However, there is one bill currently before us which I do not feel is in the best interests of the United States.

The bill, H.R. 2335, proposes to authorize $25 million for accelerating a solar research and development program which would initiate a full-scale solar power satellite program. The plan is to eventually launch as many as 60 solar satebites above the earth, 22,500 miles in orbit. Each satellite would be the size of Manhattan (10 square miles) and construction would have to take place in outer space – which would be both impractical and expensive. Although this type of massive program may be of benefit to us at some point in the future, this is not the time to dive head first into a program with a final cost estimated to be between $500 billion and $2.5 trillion. Even the Solar Lobby is opposing the satelbte program. The Department of Energy is already conducting a $16 million research feasibility study of such a program, making it unreasonable to fund a program whose merits are suspect and still under study.

One bill which I have co-sponsored would provide long-term, low-interest loans to individuals using solar equipment. I would support expanding this program to include such loans for commercial and industrial uses as well. I feel that loans and tax incentives provide a much more practical route to the further development of solar power.

CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTIONS

This is the time of year when a lot of charity drives are going on for many worthwhile purposes. Technically, the contributions you make to these charities are tax deductable. But there's a hitch.

The amount you contribute to charities can only be subtracted from your taxable income if you itemize your return.

Over the years the standard deduction has been increased several times, thereby making the task of itemizing deductions less attractive. Thus, while approximately 50 percent of taxpayers itemized their deductions in 1970, only about 25 percent do so now.

As a result, charitable organizations say they are losing $1 billion annually. And, people who decide not to itemize are penalized, in effect.

I have co-sponsored legislation which would allow all taxpayers, whether they itemize or not, to deduct charitable contributions from their taxable incomes. I feel this bill would benefit charities and taxpayers alike.

Robert Davis represents the 11th Congressional District in Washington.

Country united on Iranian issue

One of my young co-workers, a girl in her middle 20's, commented the other day in the lunchroom that the current crisis in Iran marks the first time in her memory that Americans have spoken with one voice on anything.

"It probably hasn't happened since World War II," she said, "and that was before I was born."

And she is probably right. Americans were totally united against the Axis during the last world war, but we have seldom have seen eye-to-eye on many issues since then — until the seizure of the American Embassy staff in Tehran three weeks ago.

We certainly were not in full accord with each other during the Korean War, which had few precedents and all of dubious value. Public opinion was so divided during the Vietnam War that it almostwrenched the nation asunder.

We might have come close to some kind of general accord during the early days of space exploration and certainly our hearts pounded in unison that July evening ten years ago when Astronaut Neil Armstrong set foot on the moon.

But there have been few times in this century when the American people have been as firm in their resolve as they are today over the insane detention of our embassy staff by a ragtag army of students, encouraged by the aging Ayatollah Khomeini.

We would expect that old warhorse Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona to speak out in favor of armed intervention to free the hostages. But not gentle, mild-mannered Eugene McCarthy who was one of the most eloquent "doves" during the Vietnam War.

Yet now we find them both urging President Carter to take military action if he decides there is no other way for the United States to bring about the release of the captives.

You may be sure that anything the president decides to do at this point will be approved by Congress — without question.

If we learn anything from the crisis in Iran, I hope it will be that we must be more careful in choosing our friends. I think we would all feel better about the present impasse if Shah Mohanumad Reza Pahlavi had not earned himself such a bad reputation while he held the reigns of power. Of course, we cannot turn him over to the ayatollah. That's not the way we do things. But if he had not used his power so ruthlessly, he would be a lot easier to love.

I hope we also learn that it doesn't make good sense to arm the world. It is painful to me to think that if worse comes to worst in Iran, almost every bullet fired by the ayatollah will be stamped "Made in U.S.A."

Let us arm ourselves to the teeth, if necessary; but let us not arm every two-bit dictatorship around the globe — regardless of how badly we need oil.

Lastly — and this is going to hurt — we must achieve energy self-sufficiency as quickly as possible. Regardless of how the crisis in Iran is resolved, we know now that the United States cannot continue to depend on Middle East to sustain our standard of living.

Events of the last three weeks already mean a radical disruption in the life-styles of every American, resulting from an upheaval in our sources of petroleum. Even if the ayatollah freed the hostages today, I, for one, will be mightily surprised if gasoline is not rationed before the end of the year.

And you can tack another 50 cents or more on to the price-per-gallon before spring.

Meet Charlevoix

William House, a former Charlevoix resident who now lives in Burton, is a direct descendent of Thomas Bedford, who has been accused of the fatal shooting of the Mormon king, James Jesse Strang, on Beaver Island in June 1856. This week he tells the Courier about what he has heard about his notorious ancestor and explains some old newspaper articles and pictures.

The three children of Thomas Bedford and friends.

COURIER: How are you related to Thomas Bedford?

HOUSE: He was my great great grandfather. His daughter, Julia Bedford Campbell Cram, raised me. She lived in a house on Mason Street that was torn down not long ago to make more parking space for the county building. She died in Charlevoix in 1943.

COURIER: Then who were your other descendents on the Bedford side?

HOUSE: My grandmother, Una Crani Campbell, and my mother, Winifred Campbell. She married my father, George House.

COURIER: Thomas Bedford was a follower of King Strang. Why did he turn on him?

HOUSE: There were probably many reasons, but one story is that Bedford's wife, Ruth Ann, refused to wear bloomers as ordered by Strang. She led a rebellion that led from one thing to another and some of the Mormons began to fear for their lives and plot against their leader.

COURIER: The pictures of Thomas and Ruth Ann Bedford which are in these old newspaper clippings are quite old. Where did you get them?

HOUSE: They came from the Bedford family album. They were tintypes and as far as we know are the only pictures of Thomas and his wife in existence. The tintypes are now in the Clark Historical Collection at Central Michigan University. It's probably the best collection of Beaver Island history in the country.

COURIER: Then there's this picture of five young women and five men. Who are they?

COURIER: Did Thomas Bedford stay around the area after King Strang was shot?

HOUSE: Yes. There was this story in the Detroit News back in 1961 that said that in 1881 a News reporter had interviewed Bedford and he told about going back to the island a short time later. He said he took back a group of mainland fishermen and drove off the Mormons who had not already left the island. They were put on a boat and shipped to Chicago.

COURIER: And his daughter, Julia, also stayed in the area and married Lance Campbell, according to this clipping from a Charlevoix newspaper of May 5, 1889.

HOUSE: Yes, the clipping tells about Campbell's death from a heart attack when he was 36 years old. They lived in Eveline Township.

COURIER: This cemetery deed for Lot No. 2 of Block No. B in the Charlevoix Cemetery issued to Julia Campbell on May 30, 1889 shows that she paid $5 for her husband's burial plot, right?

HOUSE: Yes, and here's another cemetery deed issued to Ransom Cram. He was Julia's second husband. This deed was issued on July 30, 1903 by the Baxter Post of the Grand Army of the Republic in Charlevoix and is for Lot No. 39 in the Baxter Post Cemetery. It cost $2. The deed says Cram had served in Co. "B" of the 14th Regiment of the Wisconsin Infantry.

COURIER: When were Julia Campbell and Ransom Cram married?

HOUSE: Here's their wedding certificate. It's dated Nov. 18, 1901, so Julia was a widow for over 12 years. They were married by T. B. Hughes, pastor of the Charlevoix Baptist Church. Harrison Bedford and Minnie Bedford were witnesses.

COURIER: It's obvious that the descendents of Thomas Bedford became respected citizens of Charlevoix. Do you recall any conversations about the Strang assasination?

HOUSE: Not really. Sometimes there would be some whispering, but if someone walked in from the outside, everything would be quiet. I used to go over to the island on fishing tugs from time to time.

COURIER: Now that you have moved away, are there any of Julia Bedford's descendents in the area?

HOUSE: My daughter, Veronica. She's married to Tom Elzinga. We also have two sons. Bill teaches school in Utica and Charles is in the Navy.

Charlevoix Graphics moving to U.S. 31

Construction is scheduled to begin this week on a new 1500 square foot strucuture that will house the Charlevoix Graphics Printing Co. presently located at 230 Antrim Street, the owner of the company, James Boocher, has announced.

The new home of the printing plant is to be at 1520 U.S. 31 South on property formerly owned by Mrs. Arthur Heilig. Ross Drayton is the local contractor for the project. The building will be a metal structure that is scheduled to be ready for occupancy by mid-January.

Boocher who moved here from Ohio in 1978 and who opened his present shop at 230 Antrim St. on Jan. 2 of this year said that he would have a full line of printing. The plant will boast the largest sheet-fed press in the area and will feature computerized type setting.

Prior to coming to Charlevoix in June, 1978, Boocher had a plant in London, Ohio, near Columbus where he printed four different shopping news. He has also worked in various other phases of printing.

With additional equipment in the new shop to be constructed across from the Charlevoix airport Boocher will have one of the most modern of printing plants to be found anywhere in the north.

When Boocher came here from Ohio in mid-1978, he was accompanied by his wife and their two children, Linda, 17, and Scott, 15½, both students at the Charlevoix High School. The family lives on Burnett Road in Hayes township.

I hope we also learn that it doesn't make good sense to arm the world. It is painful to me to think that if worse comes to worst in Iran, almost every bullet fired by the ayatollah will be stamped "Made in U.S.A."

Let us arm ourselves to the teeth, if necessary; but let us not arm every two-bit dictatorship around the globe — regardless of how badly we need oil.

Lastly — and this is going to hurt — we must achieve energy self-sufficiency as quickly as possible. Regardless of how the crisis in Iran is resolved, we know now that the United States cannot continue to depend on Middle East to sustain our standard of living.

Events of the last three weeks already mean a radical disruption in the life-styles of every American, resulting from an upheaval in our sources of petroleum. Even if the ayatollah freed the hostages today, I, for one, will be mightily surprised if gasoline is not rationed before the end of the year.

And you can tack another 50 cents or more on to the price-per-gallon before spring.

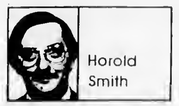
Long term bonds may be best investment of all



For all of its capriciousness there is one thing about inflation that's completely predictable: It's always around – in one form or another.

This year, for example, the nation has been burdened by virtual non-stop double digit inflation. In 1974, the same condition prevailed. We had double digit inflation in all its glory. Although it was slightly lower than today, it, nevertheless, gave off the impression that it would be with us forever. But it wasn't. In 1975 the inflation rate dropped to 8.6 percent, then to 5.5 percent in 1976, 6.5 percent in 1977, and 7.7 percent in 1978.

Many investors in 1974 were bitten by the same bug that keeps nibbling away at them in 1979. They were paralyzed first by indecision, and then by an obsession to make only short term investments. Investment funds virtually poured into the high-yielding, short-term, fixed income investments such as money funds, U.S. Government obligations, CD's and commercial paper.

High-yielding long term investments, then as now, went begging. The anxiety of double digit inflation apparently drove investors to believe that the future had a boundry line of six months, no more. A few alert fixed income investors, however, bought the high 11 and 12 percent long term bonds that were available in 1974 and early 1975. The result was they were able to harvest those same delectable rates of return year after year, even when interest rates headed south and bottomed in the 5 and 6 percent area.

The short term investors, in the meantime, took it in the chops. Their short term investments paid off for only the short term. After that they had to settle for the 5 to 6 percent stuff and live with that condition for the next four to five years. I wouldn't presume to suggest that all investment funds go into long term bonds. Far from it. But a little nibble here and there shouldn't hurt. It might, in fact, improve your portfolio income for many years to come.

Most investors are (or should be) the long term variety. Plopping all of one's investment funds into short term money market stuff isn't a bad idea, to be sure. But keep in mind that you'll get just what you pay for: a short term solution to a long term problem. And that just might not be a solution at all.

Guaranteeing the safety of nuclear power

The U.S. House of Representatives is in the process of reauthorizing the Nucleor Regulatory Commission. The reauthorization itself is relatively non-controversial, however, some of the amendments expected to be offered will probably stir up quite a bit of debate.

Probably the most controversial amendment will be one which will propose a six-month moratorium on the issuance of any new nuclear construction permits. The Kemeny Commission, which was appointed by President Carter to study the accident at Three Mile Island, did not recommend a moratorium, as such, but did suggest that no new construction permits be issued without requiring that specific and strict safety standards be met. Such standards include technological improvements and guarantees, safety measures, and competency tests for technicians, operators, and management.

A second amendment being proposed would require that no new licenses be issued until a community evacuation permit is submitted and approved.

Obviously, these amendments are going to require thorough study. Whether I choose to support them on the floor, I feel it is incumbent upon Congress to ensure the safety of nuclear power. In order to lessen our dependence on foreign oil, I feel we must pursue every available alternative source of energy, including the further development of nuclear power. We cannot afford, however, to go full speed ahead in such development without regard to safety.

WHAT OIRECTION FOR SOLAR POWER?

As a member of the Energy Development and Application Subcommittee of the House Committee on Science and Technology, I have had the opportunity to study, in depth, the development of solar power.

The development of solar power is very exciting to me, and I'm an avid supporter of most solar-related legislation. However, there is one bill currently before us which I do not feel is in the best interests of the United States.

The bill, H.R. 2335, proposes to authorize $25 million for accelerating a solar research and development program which would initiate a full-scale solar power satellite program. The plan is to eventually launch as many as 60 solar satelittes above the earth, 22,500 miles in orbit. Each satellite would be the size of Manhattan (10 square miles) and construction would have to take place in outer space – which would be both impractical and expensive. Although this type of massive program may be of benefit to us at some point in the future, this is not the time to dive head first into a program with a final cost estimated to be between $500 billion and $2.5 trillion. Even the Solar Lobby is opposing the satellite program. The Department of Energy is already conducting a $16 million research feasibility study of such a program, making it unreasonable to fund a program whose merits are suspect and still under study.

One bill which I have co-sponsored would provide long-term, low-interest loans to individuals using solar equipment. I would support expanding this program to include such loans for commercial and industrial uses as well. I feel that loans and tax incentives provide a much more practical route to the further development of solar power.

CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTIONS

This is the time of year when a lot of charity drives are going on for many worthwhile purposes. Technically, the contributions you make to these charities are tax deductable. But there's a hitch.

The amount you contribute to charities can only be subtracted from your taxable income if you itemize your return.

Over the years the standard deduction has been increased several times, thereby making the task of itemizing deductions less attractive. Thus, while approximately 50 percent of taxpayers itemized their deductions in 1970, only about 25 percent do so now.

As a result, charitable organizations say they are losing $1 billion annually. And, people who decide not to itemize are penalized, in effect.

I have co-sponsored legislation which would allow all taxpayers, whether they itemize or not, to deduct charitable contributions from their taxable incomes. I feel this bill would benefit charities and taxpayers alike.

Meet Charlevoix

William House, a former Charlevoix resident who now lives in Burton, is a direct descendent of Thomas Bedford, who has been accused of the fatal shooting of the Mormon king, James Jesse Strang, on Beaver Island in June 1856. This week he tells the Courier about what he has heard about his notorious ancestor and explains some old newspaper anicles and pictures.

The three children of Thomas Bedford and friends.

COURIER: How are you related to Thomas Bedford?

HOUSE: He was my great great grandfather. His daughter, Julia Bedford Campbell Cram, raised me. She lived in a house on Mason Street that was torn down not long ago to make more parking space for the county building. She died in Charlevoix in 1943.

COURIER: Then who were your other descendents on the Bedford side?

HOUSE: My grandmother, Una Cram Campbell, and my mother, Winifred Campbell. She married my father, George House.

COURIER: Thomas Bedford was a follower of King Strang. Why did he turn on him?

HOUSE: There were probably many reasons, but one story is that Bedford's wife, Ruth Ann, refused to wear bloomers as ordered by Strang. She led a rebellion that led from one thing to another and some of the Mormons began to fear for their lives and plot against their leader.

COURIER: The pictures of Thomas and Ruth Ann Bedford which are in these old newspaper clippings are quite old. Where did you get them?

HOUSE: They came from the Bedford family album. They were tintypes and as far as we know are the only pictures of Thomas and his wife in existence. The tintypes are now in the Clark Historical Collection at Central Michigan University. It's probably the best collection of Beaver Island history in the country.

COURIER: Then there's this picture of five young women and five men. Who are they?

COURIER: Did Thomas Bedford stay around the area after King Strang was shot?

HOUSE: Yes. There was this story in the Detroit News back in 061 that said that in 881 a News reporter had interviewed Bedford and he told about going back to the island a short time later. He said he took back a group of mainland fishermen and drove off the Mormons who had not already left the island. They were put on a boat and shipped to Chicago.

COURIER: And his daughter, Julia, also stayed in the area and married Lance Campbell, according to this clipping from a Charlevoix newspaper of May 5, 1889.

HOUSE: Yes, the clipping tells about Campbell's death from a heart attack when he was 36 years old. They lived in Eveline Township.

COURIER: This cemetery deed for Lot No. 2 of Block No. B in the Charlevoix Cemetery issued to Julia Campbell on May 30, 1889 shows that she paid $5 for her husband's burial plot, right?

HOUSE: Yes, and here's another cemetery deed issued to Ransom Cram. He was Julia's second husband. This deed was issued on July 30, 1903 by the Baxter Post of the Grand Army of the Republic in Charlevoix and is for Lot No. 39 in the Baxter Post Cemetery. It cost $2. The deed says Cram had served in Co. "B" of the 14th Regiment of the Wisconsin Infantry.

COURIER: When were Julia Campbell and Ransom Cram married?

HOUSE: Here's their wedding certificate. It's dated Nov. 16, 1901, so Julia was a widow for over 12 years. They were married by T. B. Hughes, pastor of the Charlevoix Baptist Church. Harrison Bedford and Minnie Bedford were witnesses.

COURIER: It's obvious that the descendents of Thomas Bedford became respected citizens of Charlevoix. Do you recall any conversations about the Strang assasination?

HOUSE: Not really. Sometimes there would be some whispering, but if someone walked in from the outside, everything would be quiet. I used to go over to the island on fishing tugs from time to time.

COURIER: Now that you have moved away, are there any of Julia Bedford's descendents in the area?

HOUSE: My daughter, Veronica. She's married to Tom Elzinga. We also have two sons. Bill teaches school in Utica and Charles is in the Navy.

Charlevoix Graphics moving to U.S. 31

Construction is scheduled to begin this week on a new 1500 square foot structure that will house the Charlevoix Graphics Printing Co. presently located at 230 Antrim Street, the owner of the company, James Boocher, has announced.

The new home of the printing plant is to be at 1520 U.S. 31 South on property formerly owned by Mrs. Arthur Heilig. Ross Drayton is the local contractor for the project. The building will be a metal structure that is scheduled to be ready for occupancy by mid-January.

Boocher who moved here from Ohio in 1978 and who opened his present shop at 230 Antrim St. on Jan. 2 of this year said that he would have a full line of printing. The plant will boast the largest sheet-fed press in the area and will feature computerized type setting.

Prior to coming to Charlevoix in June, 1978, Boocher had a plant in London, Ohio, near Columbus where he printed four different shopping news. He has also worked in various other phases of printing.

With additional equipment in the new shop to be constructed across from the Charlevoix airport Boocher will have one of the most modern of printing plants to be found anywhere in the north.

When Boocher came here from Ohio in mid-1978, he was accompanied by his wife and their two children, Linda, 17, and Scott, 15½, both students at the Charlevoix High School. The family lives on Burnett Road in Hayes township.

Senior survey to be taken

The Northwest Michigan Area Agency on Aging will be conducting a survey of persons 60 years of age and over in the northwest Michigan counties of Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Manistee, Missaukee and Wexford.

The survey will be administered by the Data Research Center, Inc. and will identify the problems associated with older living and the social, economic, and institutional constraints to their resolution. The survey will be administered to 50 persons over 60 years of age in each of the 10 counties of the northwest Michigan region. Questions will be concentrated in the following area: Demographic, housing, health, nutrition, personal care activity, personal household activities, social interaction, and employment-income.

The results of the survey will be used in the development of the Area Agency on Aging's Multi-Year Plan. The problems and barriers identified in the study will provide the basis for the design of programs and services funded by the Area Agency for Aging for the next three fiscal years. Possible strategies contemplated by the AAA would be continued funding of new and existing services, advocacy in behalf of senior citizen needs, and coordination of new programs with other social services agencies.

Persons requiring additional information may contact AAA at 947-8020 or 1-800-442-1713 toll free.

Davis says Petoskey harbor may be turned over to the federal government

Petoskey's harbor may be designated a federal harbor, thereby turning over the responsibility for maintenance dredging to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Northern Michigan Congressman Bob Oavis has announced that the House Public Works Cmuimittee has approved a resolution authorizing the Corps of Engineers to study the feasibilty of turning over the Petoskey harbor to the federal government. Cost of the study is estimated at around $265,000, and the study will take three to complete. Oavis explained that the committee action was binding since this type of resolution only requires passage by the full committee in either the House or the Senate.

Petoskey City Manager Richard Gorman asked Oavis to look into the possible federal designation this past summer. Oavis requested the Public Works Committee to authorize a Corps of Engineers study of the harbor, and the full committee gave its approval to the study late last week.

Oavis said he is now attempting to get funding for the study included in the fiscal year 1981 appropriation for the Corps.

Oavis also announced that the Cross Village recreational boat harbor is coming closer to reality and may be under construction by 1983.

Davis said the State Waterways Commission has made the project its No. 2 priority. He said the Corps of Engineers is in the process of reformulating the plan somewhat to preserve two wetland areas and a swimming area on the shoreline. The Corps will conduct an environmental impact study, and that statement should be available to the public by April of next year.

Linda Sherer and George Richardson

Linda Scherer joins The Real Estate Place

Linda Scherer has joined The Real Estate Place as a sales associate, George Richardson, broker and part owner of the company, has announced.

Mrs. Scherer has lived in Charlevoix five years. She has a bachelor of arts from Albion College and has taught Spanish and English at the high school level in Michigan for eight years.

"Considering the present inflationary-recessionary economy and tight money situation in the marketplace, I am happy to be associated with the professional and innovative people at The Real Estate Place," Mrs. Scherer said.

"I am enthusiastic about learning how to create new ways to enable people to buy homes, businesses and investment real estate in the northern Michigan area."

Windmill Farms to innaugurate ski season Saturday

Windmill Farms Cross Country Ski Area, seven miles east of Charlevoix, on the Boyne City Road, will innaugurate the season, Saturday, Dec. 1, with an evening ski party.

The cross country ski season will officialy begin at 10 a.m. Saturday morning, when the more than 20 kilometers of groomed trails will be opened to the public.

Opening day's evening gathering will include a wine and cheese party which skiers may join for $6 per person.

The central valley of trails will be lighted for evening skiing every Saturday, until 9 p.m. More adventurous cross country skiers may rent headlamps from the ski rental office at the Farms, to explore the trails out through the woods and valleys.

Windmill Farms' trails are "groomed" by a track setter, eliminating the need to break your own trail; The groomed trails meander in a series of loops around the 500 acre farm's woods, valleys, hills, and fields. Each trail is marked and maps explain how they are color coded for difficulty.

There are easy trails, with gentle hills and turns and there are advanced trails which test the ability and endurance of those seeking more skiing thrills. Each trail crosses through a variety of terrain and offers some truly spectacular vistas. Skiers may also break trails on their own.

The trails and rental office will be open every weekend during the season, and all of Christmas-New Year's week.

"And we will be open anytime for special groups, by pre-arrangement," Nellie Hiehle, manager, adds.

A busy schedule for groups is already begun. Young skiers, racers, members of the Bill Koch League, may use Windmill Farms on Tuesday afternoons and evenings.

Thursdays have been designated "Ladies Day" and "Senior Citizens Day." Reduced rates will be offered to these groups.

The Charlevoix Area Cross Country Ski Club will begin its season meeting Thursday evenings at Windmill Farms. Anyone may join the club by calling Silent Sports North in Charlevoix, which has agreed to help with registration and a newsletter.

Two major events are planned for Windmill Farms.

The Charlevoix Winter Cup Festival Cross Country Ski Races will be held Sunday, Feb. 17. Officially sanctioned by the United States Ski Association, these races will attract top competitors from around the midwest.

The Winter Cup will include events for the less competitive skiers, "citizen tourers" who would like to ski the course, be timed, but not against the racers. Children will also race in timed events, over shorter courses.

The First Annual Great Wooden Ski Rally will be held later this winter, on a date to be announced.

"Because my emphasis is that cross country skiing is recreation and exercise for everyone; because fiberglass has become the in-thing, with fewer and fewer good wooden skis being made; and because we know some people with wonderful, old wooden skis – classics – we are holding this rally. It is not a race," Nellie emphasized.

"Skiers will be urged to wear old fashioned ski costumes while skiing an easy two mile course.

"They will be judged on the basis of poise, dignity and character," Nellie smiles broadly.

Free waxing clinics, conducted by Nellie, will continue to be held every Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Market Mall, through Dec. 11.

The rental office at Windmill Farms will have skis, boots, and poles in all sizes, children through adult, for rent, at $7 per day. Reduced rates are available for longer periods. Clinics will be taught by reservation at Windmill Farms. The cost of a lesson is $7 per person for a two hour group session.

The office will have on sale socks, gloves, hats and quick snack items.

Trail fees are $2 per day for adults, $1.50 for children. Season tickets are $20.

Skiers are encouraged to carry their own snacks and beverages, to enjoy either out on the trail or in the newly remodeled "Munch Room" above the office at the farm.

Life of Dr. McMillan to be discussed

The next meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society will be held Tuesday evening, Dec. 4, at 8 o'clock in the Community Room of the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

Following a business session, Mrs. Lila Arvilla will reminisce on the life of her father, Dr. Albert McMillan, who was a family doctor in Charlevoix during the 1920's, when people had money, and during the lean years of the 1930's.

Persons who recall those days remember that there was no medical or hospital insurance and many medical services were performed in the home.

Everyone interested in the history of the Charlevoix area is invited to attend this meeting.

Parent-Teacher conferences scheduled

Parent-Teacher Conferences will be held at the Charlevoix Middle School on Thursday, Nov. 29, Vincent Chew, middle school principal, has announced.

Conferences are being scheduled for a two hour period, from 7 until 9 p.m. Any parent seeking a conference with any teacher is asked to call the school at 547-4407 to schedule a time. This will allow the parent an individual conference with a certain teacher or teachers Chew added.

Moved by Councilman Whitley and supported by Councilman Roloff that the Minutes of the November 8, 1979 special Council meeting be approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen Roloff, Wood, Muma, Whitley, Porter and Timms. Nays: None Absent: None.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the proposed Stover Road sewer extension. The City Manager outlined the project and stated that he has been contacted by the Charlevoix Township Supervisor who had indicated that several Township residents wish to be included in the extension. The Manager recommended approval of the request in order to increase the revenue in the Sewer Fund. He further stated that he had received one letter objecting to the extension on the grounds of financial hardship. Mr. and Mrs. Don Kelly, members of the General Public present, questioned the advisability of the 350 foot portion of the extension proposed to run North off Stover Road, as they are aware of two property owners adjacent to this section who do not want it. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly indicated that they would like to have sewer service and asked what their portion of the cost would be. The City Manager advised them that he is unable to give them a firm figure until the actual number of property owners to be included in the special assessment district is determined.

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Roloff to refer the Stover Road sewer extension to the Committee of the Whole for further study and evaluation.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Dean Mikulski and Otto Yemmans, members of the General Public present, indicated that they would be interested in purchasing a City-owned strip of property running in front of their parcels which is connected to the acreage desired by Mr. Landon. Mr. Yemmans stated he had previously tried to purchase the portion in front of his property but had been advised that the City was unable to sell it. Oscar Stroud, Charlevoix Township Supervisor, asked that the two acre paicel not be zoned Industrial as it abuts a residential area of the Township. Mr. Mikulski questioned any industrial use of the acreage as the use would not be compatable with the surrounding neighborhood.

The question of placing a Charter Amendment on the ballot of the scheduled March 4, 1980 Special Election to propose changing the Clerk's position from elected to appointed was discussed at length.

John Haggard, representing L.B.J. Investments, appeared before Council to request that a Zoning Permit issued for the firms remodeling and construction project at 701 and 701½ Bridge Street be reinstated as a stop-work order has been placed on the project. The City Manager stated that the permit had been issued in error and recommended that Mr. Haggard be required to return to the Planning Commission with a proper Site Plan for the Commission's evaluation, and that he be required to pay the fee for a Site Plan Review. Weddings

Lochner-Whitley

Laura Lynn Lochner became the bride of Aaron Scott Whitley on Friday evening, Nov. 16, in the Community Church of God in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Lochner of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Whitley, also of Charlevoix.

Approximately 250 guests witnessed the double-ring ceremony in which Mr. Lochner gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride styled her own wedding gown which was fashioned from white satin and featured a low neckline embroidered with flowers and lace sleeves. The flowers were blue and white, while a wreath of blue flowers was entwined in the veil.

Lisa Marie Fritcher served her sister as maid of honor. She wore a gown of turquoise blue with ruffs around the neck, wrists, and bottom. Her headpiece was a blue flower.

Lawrence Whitley, Jr. was best man, and Greg Whitley and George Lochner served as ushers.

Mrs. Lochner chose a silk gown of white with red polka dots for her daughter's wedding, and Mrs. Whitley wore a long blue gown.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception at the American Legion Hall, assisted by Mrs. Whitley.

Following a wedding trip through northern Michigan, the newlyweds will be at home in Charlevoix, where both are students at Charlevoix High School.

Out-of-town guests from New York and Virginia attended the wedding.

Barrett-Weller

Roxanne E. Barrett of Petoskey and William J. Weller, also of Petoskey, exchanged their wedding vows at a double ring service solemnized at St. Clement's Church at Pellston Friday evening.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Richard N. Barrett of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Earl R. Weller of Alanson.

The Rev. Paul E. Kimmick officiated at the service in the presence of 125 guests. White potted mums decorated the altar and white satin bows marked the pews. Theone Allen, at the organ, played a program of traditional music.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, wore a traditional gown of white qiana knit made by her mother for her wedding. It was fashioned with an empire waist, high neckline with re-embroidered lace yoke and sleeves and a chapel length train edges with a ruffle. A Juliet cap of lace secured her veil of bridal illusion. She carried a bouquet of miniature apricot roses and baby's breath.

Tina DeRosia of St. James, Beaver Island, attended the bride as maid of honor and Susan Squire of Taylor, cousin of the bride, and Michaline Weller of Alanson, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. They wore identical gowns of apricot polyester styled with blouson tops. They carried bouquets of dried flowers in autumn shades and wore miniature flowers in their hair.

John Sevener of Petoskey assisted the bridegroom as best man. James Weller of Petoskey, brother of the bridegroom, and Scott Barrett of Charlevoix, brother of the bride, were groomsmen. Michael Bango of Harbor Springs and Randy Walker of Petoskey seated the guests.

CHARLEVOIX CHURCH DIRECTORY

The opening of the school year is close at hand; and aside from a slight reluctance on their part, presumably your children are all ready for it. Their clothes are in order, shoes repaired, eyes examined, etc. However, have you examined their conduct lately? No matter how well they normally behave, remember that they have been living in an atmosphere of unrestricted freedom all summer, and to be suddenly thrust into the regimented confines of a classroom may be a difficult adjustment for them to make. Now is the time to remind them about manners, discipline and respect for authority, from which there can be no freedom in a civilized world. The Sunday school at the Church of your choice can be of great help in bringing these lessons home.

Northern Michigan Congressman BOB DAVIS is working to initiate a system to help senior citizens and low income people obtain firewood for home heating purposes.

After hearing of a similiar successful program being operated in Pueblo, Colorado, Davis contacted National Forest Service supervisors and CETA directors in Northern Michigan about the possibility of using CETA workers to clear dead wood from the National Forests. The wood would be delivered to the homes of elderly and poor people who could use it for heating purposes.

The program is particularly helpful to senior citizens who have no means to cut, transport and stack the wood.

The program first must be approved by the Forest Service, and Davis has contacted the supervisors of the Ottawa, Hiawatha and Huron-Manistee National Forests explaining the proposal.

'The Muppet Movie' is comic relief

By Anne Kelly

Movin' right along in search of good times and good news with good friends who can't loose
this could become a habit
Opportunity knocks once let's reach out and grab it together we'll nab it
we'll hitch hike bus or Yellow Cab it
Movin' right along we'll learn to share a load
we don't need a map to keep this show on the road
Movin' right along we found a life on the highway and you're way is my way
so trust my navigation
California here we come the pie in the sky land
Palm trees and warm sand
No, sappy we just left Rhode Island
Movin' right along hey L.A. where are you goin'
Send someone to fetch us
we're in Saskatchewan
Movin' right along you take it you know best
Hey, I've never seen the sun come up in the west
Movin' right along we're truly birds of a feather we're in this together and we know where we're goin' movie stars with flashy cars and life with the top down we're stormin' the big town
yea, storm is right could it be snowin'?
Movin' right along do I see signs of men?
Yea, welcome on the same post it says come back again
Movin' right along foot loose and fancy free

Is it ready for me?

"Movin' Right Along"
Paul Williams and Kenny Ascher
Walbeck Music Corp. (ASCAP) 1979

Who likes the Muppets? From the length of the pre-show lines this week, just about everyone in town. And the lines weren't composed of just kids either. Even if you went initially as a dutiful parent or grandparent, you emerged from "The Muppet Movie" with a new respect for the clever little critters the kids have been loving for a long time on Sesame Street and the Saturday night Muppet Show. It's heart warming, it's funny – it's even G-rated. And the music is delightful. I'm sure Paul Williams and Kenny Ascher enjoyed themselves immensely writing the score for this film. They certainly outdid themselves for Kermit the Frog and academy nominee, Miss Piggy. Favorites, which are also theme songs of sorts, are "Rainbow Connection" and "Movin' Right Along."

It's the kind of movie America needs right now – a fantasy about dreamers and lovers. A shot in the arm for cynics. The Muppets let us escape momentarily, in times of national stress, into the realm of a child-like frame of mind, where optimism is kept movin' right along despite difficulty to a happy conclusion.

"The Muppet Movie" doesn't miss a traditional trick. There is Kermit the hero, Piggy, the beautiful heroine, the villian out to get Kermit (who has refused to do his frog leg franchise commercials), the hired killer whose gun shoots fatal forks. There is action, pursuit, romance, adventure, humor and pathos. And there is music.

Who likes the Muppets? To borrow a phrase from "Rainbow Connection," ...the dreamers, the lovers, and me.

HIRING MILLIONS OF PEOPLE TO WORK ON UNITED WAY WOULD NOT BE EFFICIENT.

GETTING THEM TO WORK FOR NOTHING IS.

The big reason why United Way can do so much for so many is that a lot of big hearted Americans contribute countless millions of hours every year. Free of charge. Volunteers do everything from collecting money to deciding how it will be used in their local communities. So administrative costs are low, and more can be spent on needed services.

And that's how United Way works. And why.

Thanks to you, it works. For all of us.

Charlevoix gets cross country ski trails

Three cross country ski trails have been established in the City of Charlevoix.

The trails start at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

The first trail is ¾ of a mile, the second trail is 1¼ miles and the third trail is 2.1 miles. The first two trails wind around the golf course. The greens have been roped off and will be off limits for skiers. The third trail goes from the golf course to McSauba Road and then to the Mt. McSauba property. Skiers are asked to stay off private land (indicated in black on the map).

The trails are open to the public and city officials are hoping to keep the trails, which are predominantly flat, groomed.

For those who would like to learn more about cross country skiing, the Bill Koch Ski Team - under the sponsorship of the U.S. Ski Team - will be at the Charlevoix Elementary School at 10 a.m. Wednesday to teach the sport.

For more information on cross country ski trails in the Charlevoix area see page 11.

Gill netting temporarily banned

The Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati has temporarily banned gill net fishing in the Great Lakes.

The court's temporary injunction - announced Thursday - will remain in effect until the three member panel reviews the entire fishing controversy and issues a final ruling.

The court stated "that fisheries, fish supplies and spawning grounds...of the Great Lakes will be irreparably damaged or destroyed by continued intensive gill net fishing."

Attorney General Frank Kelley had filed an appeal with the Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals after U.S. District Court Judge Noel P. Fox earlier this year ruled that the State of Michigan does not have the right to restrict or limit the fishing rights of the Bay Mills Indian community or the Sault Ste. Marie Tribe of Chippewa Indians, thus enabling those Indian communities to use gill nets.

In his appeal, Kelley argued that even if the Indians did retain some fishing rights under treaties signed in 1836 and 1855 - a point Kelley contests - the State of Michigan retained the right to impose some restrictions to conserve and preserve fish resources. Kelley said gill netting is "endangering" Michigan's fish stocks.

Thursday's action by the federal appeals court marked the second time in six weeks that it has overruled Judge Fox in the controversy.

In October, the court overturned Fox's decision prohibiting the State of Michigan from enforcing its fishing regulations against members of the Grand Traverse Bay Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians.

Howard Tanner, director for the Department of Natural Resources, called Thursday's ruling "very timely." Tanner said December is a critical month for trout and whitefish reproduction.

DNR officers have been monitoring gill net fishing, particularly from Mackinaw City to Elk Rapids.

The Bay Mills Tribe and the Sault Ste. Marie Band agreed not to fish for lake trout or whitefish in Lake Michigan and in Lake Huron during November. However, three Bay Mills fishermen were stopped last week by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department with a reported 900 pounds of lake trout. Officers who stopped the trio were unaware of the tribal ban and the men were released.

Three Ottowa Indians arrested by DNR officers nearly two weeks ago will be arraigned in court on charges of illegal gill netting in December. The trio were fishing off the shoreline by Norwood.

The DNR does not recognize the Ottawa Band as a party to the treaty.

On Big Rock issue

Location changed for pre-hearing

The location has been changed for a Nuclear Regulatory Commission pre-hearing conference on the request of Consumers Power Company to increase the storage capacity for spent reactor fuel at its Big Rock Point nuclear power plant.

The pre-hearing conference will begin at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, Dec. 5 at the Holiday Inn, US-31 South, Petoskey. It previously was to be in the Petoskey City Council Chambers.

In July, the NRC announced that it was considering Consumers request. In response, petitions to intervene were filed by the Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix, John Leithauser and John O'Neill, II.

At the pre-hearing the licensing board will consider all intervention petitions, discuss specific issues to be considered at the evidentiary hearing and will consider a schedule for further actions in the proceeding.

The public is invited to attend. Depending upon space and time limitations the board will try to afford an opportunity for members of the public who are not parties to the proceeding to make oral limited appearance statements on the first day of the conference, including that evening, if necessary. There will be additional opportunities for limited appearance statements at subsequent sessions. In making a limited appearance statement, a person may state his views on the issues or raise questions he would like to have answered during the hearing to the extent they are within the scope of the proceeding.

Members of the licensing board include Dr. Oscar H. Paris, an environmental scientist; Frederick J. Shon, a nuclear engineer; and Herbert Grossman, a lawyer who is chairman of the board. All are full-time members of the NRC Atomic Safety and Licensing Board Panel.

Public hearing scheduled for sewer extension

A public hearing will be held Monday, Dec. 17 on a proposal to extend the city sewer along a 900 foot section of Stover Road.

That same night, a hearing to discuss the special assessment roll for the sewer extension is slated.

The Charlevoix City Council agreed to the public hearings at its meeting Monday night.

According to City Manager Jim Brinker, the assessment roll has been prepared and is on file with the city clerk at City Hall.

There is still some question on whether or not property owners in Charlevoix Township will have aeeess to the proposed extension. Stover Road is the dividing line between the city and township. If township property owners were to hook on, it would reduce the assessment for those in the city by about half. The extension is expected to cost about $30,000.

In addition to the 900 feet along Stover Road, there is also talk of extending the sewer line north starting at the United Tool Craft property. Originally, city officials planned on a 350 foot extension to the north to pick up three property owners. However, two owners objected so the plan has been revised to 180 feet to pick up one property owner. Under this arraugement, seven lots would be picked up.

Officials have indicated that the sewer line extension would be placed on the south side of Stover Road because large utility poles make it difficult to install the line on the north side and officials do not want to "tear up" the road and put the line directly under it.

In other action, council denied a side yard setback variance for Bernie Ward to allow for construction of a boat house and single family residence.

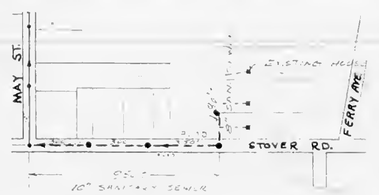
Ward has an existing boat house on Round Lake that is ready to "fall down." Ward said he would like to rebuild the boat house and construct a single family residence directly above it. He indicated that he would not use the boat house for eommercial use, but instead would store his boats in it during the winter. Ward also said he planned to stabilize the shoreline along the property.

One property owner objected to the proposal while another said he did not object as long as council would allow him to do the same.

"I can see a flurry of residents on the north side of Round Lake asking us to do the same for them," said Councilman Bob Timms. "I think this would set a precedent."

Council also:

Learned that it is operating its disposal site off US-31 illegally. The site is used for disposing of trees, brush, limbs, leaves, etc. An official for the Department of Natural Resources inspected the site and noted the following violations - A) No license to operate a disposal site has been issued or applied for B) The waste has been dumped into a waterfilled pit and C) No attendant has been on duty and the cable at the entrance has been left open. The DNR reeommended the city "cease operation" of the disposal site and deliver the waste to an approved landfill, seek a license from the DNR or mulch the waste. City Manager Jim Brinker said he would consider the alternatives and respond to the DNR within 30 days.



Amended a restriction on property deeded to the Charlevoix Area Hospital. When the property was deeded to the hospital there was a restriction indicating that the property would revert back to the city if it were not used for hospital purposes. The hospital is presently seeking a loan from Farmers Home Administration to expand the hospital. In order for the loan to be approved, officials say, the restriction should be lifted. Council lifted the restriction, but only as long as the hospital has a debt outstanding to Farmers Home Administration. The loan the hospital is seeking is for 25 years (about $3 million).

Agreed to put an amendment to the City Charter on the ballot for the special election March 4. Voters will be asked if the city clerk's position should be elected or appointed.

Agreed to pursue a critical area treatment grant for Michigan Beach Park. According to Brinker, the city is "99 percent assured" of getting one of two grants designed to correct the erosion problem at the park. One grant the city would pay 25 percent of the cost while the other grant stipulates the material would be funded but the city would pay for the labor.

School board hires coaches

The Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night appointed three coaches, approved a contract for snow removal, heard a report on a "Stress" workshop, and appointed a legal firm to represent the school district and named a member to the library committee.

Henry Wagner was appointed seventh grade boys basketball coach for the 1979-80 season; Regis McCord was named wrestling coach for the same season. He had been selected earlier for the post. This was a formal appointment. Mrs. Marsha Trimper was appointed cheerleading coach for the remainder of the 1979-80 school year.

Hugh Lambert was awarded the contract for snow removal at school buildings during the current school year at the rate of $20 per hour using his own equipment. This is the second year he has been awarded the contract.

Sandra Fassett, coordinator for two workshops relating to "Stress", reported on the success of the two meeting attended by 30 members of the faculty who chose to attend.

Scott T. Beatty was appointed to the Charlevoix Public Library Advisory Committee to fill a vacancy on the board.

The firm of Poinlner, Pajtas and Ewald was named to represent the Charlevoix School District which is settling a contract for past services with Manson Jackson & Kane of Lansing.

The girls basketball team was granted permission for an overnight trip to attend the state finals provided they have proper supervision and medical forms.

The next meeting of the board is scheduled for Jan. 21.

Selling Your House by Gene Steele

WOULD YOU BUY YOUR HOUSE?

If you went out looking for a home today, would you buy your house? Is it attractive, in good condition? Does it have "curb appeal?"

If you're putting your house on the market, you'd better look now to see how it stacks up. Would a prospect get out of his car and go in for a better look at the property? If the prospect toured your rooms, from basement to attic, would he be pleased by what he saw?

Most houses need brightening up. Very often this means the clean paint job that would make everything look newer. Small repairs must be taken care of. Nothing undermines a prospect's confidence in your home like seeing a cracked windowpane or a leaky faucet. It indicates that you don't care enough to keep the property. And if these small things are broken, what more might be wrong that doesn't show?

Let us go through your rooms with you. We'll point out, with a knowledgeable eye, the small repairs you can make that will pay off best in buyer interest and in price offered. We'll help you price your property – and then we'll bring you a buyer, too. We offer a full service with professional consulting at CPI.

Avoid holiday blues

Holiday blues are an annual topic of conversation.

CHIP Center therapists, Oren Schroeder and Terry Smith recently discussed the problems of holiday depression and stress, offering positive suggestions.

"Stress is a natural part of the holidays," Smith emphasized. "Whether that stress is negative or positive depends on the individual."

"Loneliness, too," Schroeder continued, "Is very natural, whether because families are separated by distance, death, divorce, or children growing up and leaving the nest."

The problem, the counselors were saying, was not stress nor loneliness, but that the public has bought the commercial hype of the season, which creates false images and expectations.

Money is another source of holiday anxieties.

"This can be a guilt producing time," Schroeder said. "People feel compelled to spend money.

"The danger of the heavy commercialization of Christmas is people feel forced to try to buy affection," Schroeder, CHIP Center Director observed.

While enmumerating the many sources of holiday anxiety, and depression, the two counselors offered positive advice.

"Plan. Ask yourself, 'What do I want out of this holiday season?' That is the first step toward being more in control rather than being controlled by events," Schroeder advised.

"Imagine it is January, 1980," Smith added. "Look back over the holiday season and ask yourself, 'How would I have liked this season to have been? What can I do to make this my holiday, not Bing Crosby's, Scar's, or Saks'," Smith said.

Planning ahead is good advice for everyone, whether or not they are anticipating a Christmas season that has been changed by death, divorce, children leaving home or other circumstances, the therapists said.

"We have lost sight of what these holidays are all about and too often bought the image that is being sold to us," Schroeder commented.

"For some people loneliness will be a realistic factor in the holidays," he said. "The mobility in our society, for one thing, makes it impossible for families to get together.

"When there has been a loss of spouse or other family member, the crisis of lineliness is appropriate."

"The one rule of thumb we make is, 'Not to try to run from loneliness.'

"We really can't, it will catch us and it will grow and loom larger.

"I face lonebness head-on," the counselors agreed.

Planning is even more vital for people anticipating being lonely, they emphasized.

Smith advised," Become more involved in group activities which are in the normal range of your social activities. Consider all the community and church gatherings, as well."

Schroeder suggested, "One thing a person in a lonely state can do is to give something of themselves. Help another person. Become involved in projects that are larger than themselves.

"Become involved with other people rather than being an observer."

Schroeder referred to a friend, recently divorced. "He is beginning his own tradition, collecting Christmas decorations, which he loves. He will create a nice atmosphere and won't be overwhelmed by self-pity."

"A personally creative approach to loneliness is often a way of dealing with the stress of the season," Schroeder added.

Financial worries are another distressing source of holiday depression.

The counselors warn against the "enjoy now, pay later" approach.

Planning includes financial planning, they say, Budgets are essential.

"You can still spend a lot within a budget," Smith cautions.

Planning is the essential step to a successful holiday season, they emphasized repeatedly.

"Before the "I wish I would haves,' before you kick yourself in the pants, ask what the holiday season is all about for you," Schroeder urges.

"Should I break with tradition of hype and anti-climatic Christmas Day'? Is this the year I break that?

"Is this the year I become more involved in the religious and festival significance of Christmas and the community?" Schroeder asked rhetorically.

Chip Counselors think planning can make holiday stress positive.

Grandvue hiring

The Grandvue Medical Care Facility will soon be hiring nine new employees through the Comprehensive Education and Training Act (CETA).

Grandvue Administrator Ron Conkle told the Courier the new employees will be given a training course to equip them to work as aides in the new Residential Wing of Grandvue which is scheduled to open early this spring.

The aides will be responsible for care of the new building and the people in it, according to Conkle. "They will do some nursing, perform household duties, work in the kitchen – all the things that a typical housewife does," he said.

Any person interested in a Grandvue job must apply through the Michigan Employment Security Commission in Petoskey, which screens applicants for CETA eligibility.

License plate fee changed? Here's why

When you open your prepared license plate application form and notice that your fee is different from last year, be assured that your monthly rate has not increased or decreased. It's just that you are likely paying for a different number of months.

"Actually, there is no difference in the rate from last year," said Secretary of State Dick Austin. "The only variation is time...the number of months vehicle owners are paying during the conversion period."

Quite simply, Austin said, fees for passenger vehicles are based on an owner's birthdate. These can range from seven months for persons born in November to 18 months for those whose birthday falls in October. Fees for individually owned pickup trucks and vans, also under the new "birthday" system, can vary from eight to 19 months.

The vast majority of prepared license plate applications are now being sent to owners of passenger vehicles and motorcycles.

Although local residents can obtain tabs at the Secretary of State's branch office in Charlevoix, Austin is encouraging the use of mail.

"It's by far the easiest method of getting tabs and will save time and gasoline," he said.

Sticker tabs are being issued this year. But instead of the traditional one tab indicating the year, two tabs...the second for the month of expiration will be issued. As usual, all tabs must be purchased by March 31.

Following is a chart which breaks down fees according to birth months:

IF YOUR BIRTHDAY IS IN:	YOU PAY A FEE FOR: PASSENGER PLATES	PICK-UPS & VANS
November	7 Months	8 Months
December	8 Months	9 Months
January	9 Months	10 Months
February	10 Months	11 Months
March	11 Months	12 Months
April	12 Months	13 Months
May	13 Months	14 Months
June	14 Months	15 Months
July	15 Months	16 Months
August	16 Months	17 Months
September	17 Months	18 Months
October	18 Months	19 Months

Forgetful? Sheilah Bogart can help you

It's your wife's birthday. You're stumped on what tu get her and you're pressed for time.

Relax. Give Sheilah Bogart a call.

Sheilah has just started a gift buying service called "Remember Me!!!" All you have to do is call her, tell her what you have in mind for a gift, how much you want to spend and she'll do the rest. And if you don't have any specific gift ideas in mind Sheilah will be glad to offer suggestions - based upon the information you give her.

For a $6 fee, Sheilah will buy the gift and a card to go with it. And if you want her to mail it, well, she'll do that, too.

"People can call me the day they need the gift or even a year in advance," Sheilah said. "All I need is one hour notice."

Sheilah will buy gifts for any occassion. She'll also keep a file on each gift purchased for reference.

And that's not all. For a $1 fee, Sheilah will call to remind you of an occassion - not once but twice. The first call will be a week before the occassion. The second call will be the day of the occassion.

For 50 cents, she'll mail a card for you on an occassion. Of course, you're responsible for buying the card and signing it. Sheilah makes sure it gets in the mail and to its destination on time.

Sheilah said she expects some clients to submit lists of occassions for an entire year.

"In one night (to write out a list) you could be guaranteed a year full of happiness," she said.

Gift buying is something Sheilah has been doing for years.

"I do all the gift buying in the family and I used to buy for my bosses, too," she said. "I just like to shop."

And when she's shopping in Charlevoix, she'll have company, too, eight month old son, Nicholas.

"This is our first child and I want to be with him," she said. "I take him with me. He's the perfect little shopper. He goes everywhere. All the store owners know him."

Sheilah can be reached at 547-4658 or contacted at 843 Petoskey Avenue.

Co-op could split $15 million project

The Department of Energy has selected the Wolverine Electric Cooperative of Boyne City, and the Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative of Big Rapids for contract negotiators in a $15 million utility storage battery project.

Under the contract to be negotiated, the two cooperatives would jointly design, build, test and demonstrate the Storage Battery Electric Energy Demonstration (SBEED) plant, to be located in Hersey, Mich.

The SBEED plant would measure and demonstrate the feasibility of planning and operating a commercial-scale battery plant for use by utility systems during peak demand periods (usually early morning and late afternoon).

The $15 million project will be funded with about $8 million from DOE, $1 million from the Electric Power Research Institute, a co-sponsor, and $6 million from the two cooperatives. The project, including a nine-year commercial operation phase, could continue for approximately 14 years.

Currently, many small utilities and rural electric cooperatives generate power during peak hours with inefficient gas turbines and diesel engines. They frequently have to purchase peak power from other, larger utilities because they lack adequate generating capacity.

With batteries, a utility would be able to store electricity generated from more efficient equipment during off-peak hours, and then release it when demand increases. DOE expects that the current project will help accelerate the introduction and market acceptance of commercial-scale battery energy storage plants.

The five phases of the SBEED project are design, construction, acceptance testing, test operation and commercial operation of the facility.

Working with the two cooperatives, Dayerman Associates of Grand Rapids, will act as project manager and architect-engineer; United Technologies – Power Systems Division of Hartford, CT, will provide the converter; and the C&D Batteries Division of the Eltra Co. of Plymouth Meeting, PA, will supply the batteries.

Final negotiations should be completed by early 1980.

Gilbert H. Zitzelsberger of Riverview, Michigan Governor of Kiwanis International, and Don Quinn of Cheboygan, Lt. Governor of District 20, will also attend and address the group.

Your Opinion

Rebuttal from City Hall

Editor:

I'd like to take this opportunity to reply to the two recent letters of November 7 and 14, 1979, written by Mr. Oscar Ward appearing in your newspaper.

I will not attempt to argue the facts dealing with the State Legislature's interpretation of the Headlee Amendment to the State Constitution, as I feel neither myself or Mr. Ward are well enough versed on the subject. I will, however, attempt to state the correct facts dealing with the City's taxation, need for borrowing and the proposed Charter Amendment to change the City Clerk's position from an elected to appointed.

First, I shall explain the taxation questions addressed in the Noveinber 7th letter, the one (1) extra mill levied in 1979 and the borrowing of $160,000, which were two separate and distinct issues. With the presentation of the 1979-80 budget the City Manager recommended an increase of one (1) mill of property taxes to maintain present services and some needed capital improvements with which the City Counell agreed and adopted the budget. In April of this year, it became apparent to the staff that the City was experieneing a cash-flow problem and may have to issue Tax Anticiption Notes, until the City tax collections started in July. The City Council agreed with the staff, but requested the independent auditing firm of Hill, Woodcock and Distel to look into the problem and make a full report to the City Council, which they did at the regular Council meeting of May 21, 1979. Their report showed the problem started back five years and was not the result of overspending this year's budget, but a steady declining cash balanee every year, from $650,000 in 1975 to $75,000 in 1979 and they concurred with the need to borrow to solve the temporary cash-flow problem.

Mr. Ward also asked in his letter, the neeessity of raising all real property valuations by a factor of 15 percent rather than complying with the law of notifying property owners by mail that their assessment had been increased by 15 percent. I'm surprised at this question, as Mr. Ward is a member of the Equalization Committee, of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, and must know the equalization process. This process is very complex and I shall not attempt to expain it in detail here, but briefly, the County Equalization Department was updating tne assessments in the City, which not completed in time for the 1979 Assessment Roll, therefore, a factor had to be applied to raise the total valuation, as required by State Law, to 50 percent of market value. The City Assessor does not have to notify individual property owners, but State Law requires that this factor be published in a local paper, which was done. The Assessor went one step further by explaining how this factor would apply to an average home in a letter published, March 6, 1979, in the newspaper, a step not required by law.

The second issue, Mr. Warıl addressed in his letter of November 14th, is the confusion over the election November 6, 1979. I will fully admit the City Administration made a mistake in preparing the Charter Amendment for the ballot, however the Administration was not sneaky, as this proposal was discussed numerous times at open Council meetings and Committee meetings, it was not intentional, as the staff relied nn the former City Attorney and County Clerk for guidance, unfortunately the laws governing Charter Amendments were not checked thoroughly enough, an honest mistake for which we apologize.

I will agree with Mr. Ward that the City Clerk's position is a big and inıportant job, however the book that he quotes from - State and Local Government in Michigan, by Ferris E. Lewis, is a school text book, which talks in generalities and is not a law that governs all City Clerk's. The Charlevoix City Charter governs this City and section 3.8, City Clerk-Election-Duties states: "The City Clerk shall be elected by a majority vote of the electors of the City at large for a one (1) year term. The City Clerk shall be the Clerk of the Council and shall, with the Mayor, sign all ordinances. The City Clerk shall keep a permanent journal for all Council proceedings and urdinances. In addition, the City Clerk shall perform all other duties prescribed by law, this Charter, and the Council. The City Clerk may, with the approval of the City Counell, appoint a Deputy City Clerk."The duties prescribed by State law deal mainly with the election process and voter registration. The City Council has implemented all the provisions of the Charter and has approved the salary set by the City Compensation Commission, of which Mr. Ward is a member, for the City Clerk's position. As it now stands, no one will file to run in an election for the position of City Clerk mainly because the duties, as outlined in the Charter, call for a part-time Clerk and the salary is set accordingly. I firmly believe, as do a majority of the City Council, that the City Clerk should be a full-time Administrative Offieer of the City, appointed by the City Council and answerable to the Council, free from the political pressures of filing and running for election each and every year. The City Clerk does not take part in the decision making process of the Council and does not have a vote. The City Clerk should be appointed and removed from office the same as the City Manager, Attorney, Assessor, Treasurer, Police Chief and Fire Chief, by the City Council, who inturn are answerable to the people of the City of Charlevoix.

In closing, I'd like to state that I firmly believe that the elected and appointed officials nf the City of Charlevoix work very hard and have nothing but the good of the people and the City at heart. Thank you.

Sincerely,
James M. Brinker
City Manager

The state champs

Editor:

In your November 21 issue, specifically on the front page article about Charlevoix High School's drama "Fiddler On The Roof," you mentioned that St. Johns won honors in Class A, Portage in Class B, and Charlevoix in Class C-D. This is not incorrect. However, you failed to mention that the first place show in the entire state contest (or first in the state) is Southfield-Lathrup High School's show "The Long Stay Cut Short or The Unsatisfactory Supper" by Tennessee Williams. I believe that Central Montcalm was number two. Here is the official order:

Rank	School	Show
1st in state	Southfield-Lathrup	See above
2nd in state	Central Montcalm	"Of Mice and Men"
3rd in state	Standish-Sterling	"The Miracle Worker"
Class A	St. Johns	"Medea"
Class B	Portage Northern	"The Brick and The Rose"
Class C-D	Charlevoix	Fiddler On The Roof"

I am a member of the Southfield-Lathrup company (I did lighting) and I came across the article beeause we have a cottage on Six Mile Lake and often travel to Charlevoix.

Thank you,

Group decisions destructive

For years I have been bothered by the not-so-subtle change that cumes over many citizens once they are elected to public office.

Tune and time again I have seen cautious, prudent, penny-pinching inen suddenly become the last of the big spenders.

I have seen otherwise thoughtful, democratically-oriented lawmakers suddenly attempt to pass laws that not only are contrary to the public good but constitute a downright trespass un the rights of their constituents.

Now along comes Ø. Patrick Wright, who collaborated with former GM Vice President John Z. DeLorean on a book entitled "On a Clear Day You Can See General Motors," who claims this strange phenomena also extends to higher eschelons of the corporate structure.

Although DeLorean has backed out of the publishing venture, the story is told in the first person and recounts DeLorean's long struggle to maintain a modicum un individuality in an organization where teamwork is the name uf the game.

"As I grew with the corporation, I guess I gradually came into conflict with it," DeLorean is quoted as saying. "Conflict with the philosophy of business. Conflict with the system of management. And conflict with the people in positions of power.

"It seemed to nie that there was (and is) cancerous anoralty about this system," DeLorean continues. "The undue emphasis on profits and eost control, without a wider concern for the effects of GM's business on its many publics, seemed too often eapable of bringing together, in the corporation, men of sound personal morality and responsibility who, as a group, reached business decisions which were irresponsible and of questionable morality."

As an example, DeLorean points to the introduction of the Corvair automobile, which GM's top engineer, Charlie Chayne, and his staff considered unsafe. But despite Chane's objections, GM management elected to put the ear on the market in 1969.

"These were not immoral men who were bringing out this car," DeLorean says. "These were warm, breathing men with families and children who, as private individuals, never would have approved this project for a minute if they were told, 'You are going to kill and injure people with this car.' But those same men, in a business atmosphere, with production deadlines, were able as a group to approve a product most of them wouldn't have considered approving as individuals."

It is a pity that not more is known about this strange facet of human behavior so that we, as individuals, could be on our guard against it.

We witnessed what happened a generation ago when the German people fell into line behind the Nazi party, accepting the edicts of the leadership virtually without question.

In our own country, we are all too familiar with the atrocities committed by lynch mobs and other racial activists.

A year ago, we witnessed the results of mass hysteria in the Jonestown suicides.

One month ago we stood by helplessly when a group of Iranian students decided to take collective action to effect the return of the shah.

Groups — not individuals — are responsible for most of the calamities that befall this old world and we scarcely know why.

Student loans programs still important

Bob Davis

Despite several attempts to increase the interest rates un National Direct Student Loans, the House of Representatives voted recently to leave the rate at three percent.

Amendments tu raise the rate were offered to the Higher Education Act reauthorization bill in every step of the process – subcommittee, committee and on the floor. The House, however, passed the bill almost intact, and unless the Senate raises the rate and a eunference cummittee goes along, students will be able to continue to enjoy the low rate. The House bill also increased the maximum loan from $2,500 to $3,000 to reflect the increasing costs of attending college. Eligibility for these loans is based strictly on financial need and any student attending a partieipating college can apply.

Offering student loans at three percent when the prime rate is hovering at near 16 percent may sound somewhat questionable. Higher education is becoming more neccssary all the time, and with the escalating costs, it is becoming even harder for middle income families to send their children to school and next to impossible for low income families. The loan program is both valuable and necessary. However, we must take the necessary steps to cut the chronically high default rate un these loans.

There are moves in Congress to lower the default rate through such means as forbidding students to deelare bankruptcy soon after leaving school and allowing the Commissioner of Education to report student defaults to credit bureaus. Students of tomorrow should not be denied the opportunity to obtain continuing education loans because uf the poor prepayment recurds of their precedessors. I would like to point out, however, as I have said before, the students of Northern Michigan have an excellent repayment rate – far above the national average.

PEAT ENERGY

Earlier this year I was successful in getting passed an amendment to provide $6.7 million for research and development of technology for the development of peat gasification as an alternative energy source. The appropriation was just recently cut to $3 million by a eunference eummittee, but that is still a ample amount.

Northern Michigan has a great deal of peat – as a matter of fact we rank third nationally as a state, behind only Alaska and Minnesota. It could prove to be very valuable as an energy resource in the years to eome.

Unfortunately, the Department of Energy seems to only be talking about the importance of peat, and not really doing anyything with the development. In fiscal year 1981, the peat gasification program of the DOE is scheduled to move out of the research phase and into actual production for general consumption. The cost for such a move would be around $20 million, yet tne DOE has tentatively requested only $5 million. This lack of emphasis is especially questionable when the program is progressing quite successfully and is getting a lot uf support and attention from private industry.

I have asked the Secretary of Energy to explain his reasoning behind the budget request. We need some solid commitments to alternative energy sources if we are ever going to lessen our dependence on foreign oil.

Sunset battle hits House floor

Ralph Ostling

The battle to make unelected bureaucracies more accountable to the people who pay the bills and who they purportedly serve was scheduled to resume on the House floor last week. The issue is whether a bill proposing a special legislative committee to review state programs would have the teeth uf termination dates added to it.

The bill passed by the Senate, called a sunset bill in states which put termination dates in it, did not include the dates. A House eommittee defeated an amendment offered by Representative Paul Hillegonds, R-Holland, to put the termination dates in the bill.

The termintion date fight is really a question of whether the campaign rhetoric utilized by many in the last two elections about controlling the growth of government and making state agencies once again serve the people rather than the other way around is really something more than rhetoric. Termination dates would assign to each state department and program a date on which they would cease to exist unless the legislature specifically renews the agency or program. It is really a mechanism to force the legislature to do the rcview job the current bill promises. Without the threat of termination dates, it is almost assured that another legislative committee will be created with expensive staff, but the results will be very little in the way of finding government waste.

A year and a half ago the Supreme Court told the legislature that unless changes were made lo the state's no fault law by early December of this year, it would be deelared unconstitutional. Faced with that deadline, the legislature passed a bill reforming the no fault law in early October and it has been signed into law by the Governor. This, 1 believe, demonstrates the need to place termination dates in the program review bill.

As I mentioned earlier, the figlt to do that was scheduled to take place as I write this article. We will find out if the majority leadership, which angrily opposes terminatbn dates, will permit a debate on the issue of termination and thereby making controlling runaway growth a reality.

The quintessence of John Updike

Anne Kelly

Too Far To Go by John Updike is a collection of 17 short stories, which put into chapter sequence for this novel's purpose, composes the ballad of the Maples; the decline and fall of a marriage.

Nine of these stories first appeared in The New Yorker, three in Harper's Magazine, and one each in Week-end, The New York Times Sunday Magazine, The Atlantic Monthly and Playboy.

What we, as readers, find in this collection is the best of John Updike, perhaps by virtue of the fact that each chapter is a quality story in itself.

What has always struck me about John Updike's work, is his ability to transcend the trite and turn ordinary situations into a matter of consequence. Giving Blood is perhaps one of the best examples of this quality. Suburban marital unrest and subsequent decay is hardly a unique issue, yet somehow, as in the case of the Maples, Updike manages tn deal with their dilemma in such a way as to make it appear so.

How does he do it? By utilizing two techniques, I think. First, conversational character development which allows us to crawl beneath the skin of the cast and identify with their feelings. The second technique has more to do with literary style and the flow of language. Updike's narratives are always simply told yet profoundly descriptive in terms of figures of speech.

As for the story of the Maples themselves, Updike works on the complexity of the couple's personal motivations rather than accusing them of being just another cliche situation.

Perhaps these stories reveal the quintessence of John Updike; his ability to avoid the stereotype, by making his characters come alive for the reader through dialogue and description. The Maple's stories are therefore, not so much a depressing narrative of "just one more divorce," as they are a glimpse into the personal repercussions of the dissolution of a marriage that began and ended with love.

Meet Charlevoix

Helen Dietze is the County Executive Director of the Agricultural Stabilization end Conservation Service (ASCS), which is part of the United States Department of Agriculture. This week the Courier talks with her about the services rendered by this federal agency.

COURIER: How is the ASCS operated locally?
DIETZE: It is administered by a County Committee ol three landowners who are elected for three-year terms.
COURIER: Who is now serving on the County Committee?
DIETZE: Tom Wieland, Bill Korthase, Jr., and Carl Grutsch. Each year the term of one committee member expires, and this year Grutsch's term is expiring. However he is eligible for re-election.
COURIER: How are members of the County Commission elected?
DIETZE: They are elected by the members of three Community Committees which represent three different areas of the county.
COURIER: Then how are the members of the Community Committees chosen?
DIETZE: They are elected by producers (farmers) in each of the three areas. Last Monday was the last day to return the ballots for this year's Community Committee election, and ihe ballots will be counted this Thursday.
COURIER: What are the three areas, and who were the candidates for Community Committee in each one?
DIETZE: Community "A" is made up of Hayes, Bay, Evangeline, Melrose, Peaine, St. James, and Chandler Townships. The candidates in "A" were Dan Berg, Terry Healey, Larry Matthew, Frank Sneathen, August Stolt, and Lester Umlor. Community "D" is made up of Norwood, Marion, and Eveline Townships. The candidates in "D" were Wilson Boss, Sanford Matchett, David Parsons, Wayne Saunders, Harold Thomas, and Dan VonSoosten. Community "J" is made up of South Arm, Wilson, Boyne Valley, and Hudson Townships. The candidates in "J" were Leo Behling, Don Graham, Carl Grutsch, Ronald Reinhardt, William Topolinski, and Joe Tymoc.
COURIER: And how many of these will be elected?
DIETZE: Five. Those receiving the first through the fifth highest number of votes will be elected to the positions of Chairperson, Vice Chairperson, Regular Member, First Alternate, and Second Alternate. The first three will be delegates to the County Convention on Dec. 13 and they will elect the new member of the County Committee
COURIER: How often does the County Committee meet to carry on its work?
DIETZE: The members meet the second and fourth Mondays of each month
COURIER: Now that we know how the ASCS is organized, what do you do?
DIETZE: We administer all federal farm programs.
COURIER: Such as?
DIETZE: One of the most active programs is the Agricultural Conservation Program. This is a cost-share conservation program in which the farmer does the work – such as tree planting, stabilizing a stream bank, or putting in a manure storage facility so it won't run into a stream. The farmer also pays for the work but is then reimbursed by us at a rate of 50 to 80 percent. Another is the Forest Improvement Program. Under this program, the farmer plants a stand of trees or improves a present stand. These are usually certain species that can be used for lumber or veneer. In this area, it is usually red pine because it grows best and is least susceptible to insects. We reimburse the farmer 75 percent of his cost under this program.
COURIER: What else?
DIETZE: We make what we call Facility and Dryer Loans to farmers for grain drying or storage purposes. The farmer pays 15 percent down on the equipment and the rest in seven equal installments over an eight-year period. The loan rate is now 10 and a half percent. We also have short-term nine-month Commodity Loans for which farmers use their grain as collateral
COURIER: Any other services?
DIETZE: Theras the Bee-Keeper Indemnity Program. If a bee-keeper's bees are damaged or killed by pesticides, he may be eligible for re-imbursement for the cost of the bees. This year, one of our special projects was airplane seeding. We received funds from a special Clean Water Program and seeded rye in corn fields while the corn was growing to prevent water pollution from spring run-offs. We think it is working out very well
COURIER: Want to mention anything else?
DIETZE: Yes, the Long Term Agreements for conservation practice. Under these agreements, the farmer can plan ahead because he will be assured of funding for his conservation practices over a period of 10 to 20 years
COURIER: How many farms are there in Charlevoix County?
DIETZE: We estimate about 400 but we receive reports from only about 300.
COURIER: And what kind of crops do they grow on these farms?
DIETZE: Here's a recent report. It shows 5,939 acres of field corn, 321 acres of wheat, 13 acres of soy beans, 406 acres of dry edible beans, 1,211 acres of oats, 183 acres of rye, 315 acres of barley, 172 acres of sweet corn, 15 acres of potatoes, and 200 acres of sunflowers. Another report shows there are 161,700 acres of commercial forest lands.
COURIER: How long has the ASCS been operating nationally?
DIETZE: Since the 1930's, but it's had other names. It operates in every county in the country, although it doesn't have offices in every county
COURIER: Do you have any responsibilities other than working with the programs mentioned above?
DIETZE: Yes, I'm County Emergency Board Chairman. When there are disaster conditions such as droughts, we meet to determine how serious the conditions are and send our recommendations to Lansing for the Governor's approval and he sends them on to Washington. If conditions meet the criteria, local farmers become eligible for disaster benefits in the form of low-interest loans.
COURIER: Are you a farm girl?
DIETZE: Yes, I grew up on a farm in Ottowa County. We moved up here 15 years ago from Spring Lake, but my husband, Clare, is a native. He was born on the Loeb farm, where his father managed the dairy.
COURIER: How long have you been with ASCS?
DIETZE: Eight years. Before that I worked for the Telephone Company and was secretary to the principal of the Boyne City High School.
COURIER: What do you do in your spare time?
DIETZE: I'm interested in knitting, crocheting, and embroidering. I like to work with ceramics and to swim, and to travel if not too far. I'm a student pilot and own one-eighth of a Cessna 150.

Essex contributes $5,000

Charlvoix Area Hospital received an unexpected Christmas gift to ts continuing fund raising campaign from the Essex Group if Boyne City, a division of United Technologies of Hartfod, Conn.

John D. DiMartino, plant manager at the Boyne City division of Essex presented a check for $5,000 to Thomas Carey, President of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors to be usedfor the hospital's Renovation and Construction Project.

Whil making the presentation at the hospital last week, Di Martin explained that "Essex had planned this contribution to the Charlevoix Area Hospital since the beginning of the fund raising campaign more than a year ago."

DiMartino also told Carey that an additional $2,500 donation has ben budgeted by Essex as a donation next year to the hospital's building project.

A patient room in the new wing of the hospital, for which constraction is expected to begin shortly, will be named in honor of the Essex Group's donation.

"A ot of our employees and my family use this hospital," DiMartino told Carey. "We think Charlevoix Hospital is a fine facility and we want to do our part for the community."

Carey said that the Essex donation comes at a perfect time. "Or fund raising campaign is continuing and the constant increases in construction costs make it imperative that we continue to raise funds to offset the effects of inflation."

Carey pointed out that this is a good time of year for individuals and businesses to donate to the Charlevoix Area Hospital Renovation and Construction Project as all donations are tax deductible.

Happy Birthday

Grade school students and teachers at St. Mary's celebrated the birthday of Father Dale Magoon Wednesday. United Way hits $14,000

Approximately $14,000 has been collected in cash and pledges thus far in the 1979-80 United Way of Charlevoix fund drive.

The Board of Directors met Wednesday night and seemed optimistic on reaching the $18,000 goal.

Volunteer workers are still collecting donations. Most businesses and industries have been solicited. A United Way representative is meeting soon with workers at Medusa. About one-third of the residential district in Charlevoix has yet to be solicited, officials say.

Grover Geneit retiring

Grover Geneit, who has served Charlevoix County as Register of Deeds for 27 years, will retire next March 15, he told the County Board of Commissioners last week.

Geneit's wife, Jean, who has served as his deputy for 24 years, will retire at the same time. They will leave the first week in February for a vacation trip to Florida in their new motor home, returning in time to make their retirements official.

A committee composed of County Clerk Clarence Rabach, Probate Judge John Murphy, and County Prosecutor Scott Beatty will appoint a person to fill the Register's unexpired term, which runs until Dec. 31, 1980. Before that, in the November General Election, voters will select a person to fill the office for the following four years.

Youth counselor joins NARC

Tina Verlinden recently joined the staff of the Native American Recovery Center as a youth counselor in the three county area that encompasses Antrim, Emmet and Charlevoix counties.

In this position, Mrs. Verlinden works with any young person or group of young people who seeks his or her own counseling or is referred by the schools, courts, hospitals or parents groups. "No matter who refers the individual or whether the person comes in on his or her own, the emphasis is on youth" Mrs. Verlinden said, adding that all consultations are held in confidence and given without charge.

She said that she was employed to service the Native Americans in the three county area but her services are not limited to this group. "We will help anyone needing help" she added.

Counseling is confined mostly to alcohol and drugs but, she explained, you have to find the problem that brought about the drug and/or alcohol problem. "These do not spring up by themselves. They have to be triggered by something in the young person's life. Once we have the root or the source of the initial problem, the problem, with a little help, will take care of itself," she explained.

She added that the problem could be peer pressure, family problems, problems the individual himself is experiencing for some reason or another. It is our goal to seek these out and then work with the individual in resolving them, she continues.

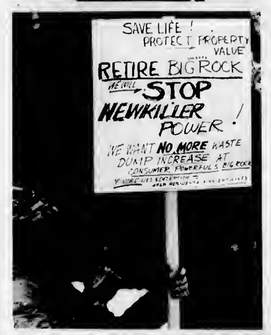
In discussing problems brought on by alcohol and/or drugs, Mrs. Verlinden said "If you plan to buy a car you'd check it out thoroughly and probably seek assistance in a making a decision about buying it. If you plan to marry someone, you introduce the prospective mate to your parents and friends and get their reaction to him or her. Probably nothing will affect so many areas of your life as alcohol and/or drugs and yet so many young people plunge headlong into them instead of double checking the end results they might have on one's life."

"At every turn we hear parents say 'Thank God, it's only beer' when they hear their child is into alcohol. What they don't seem to realize is that alcohol is probably the most dangerous of all drugs because it is so easily accessible.

"We at the Native American Recovery Center want you to know that I am here to help any one person or any group any place in the three county area. If you will call me at 547-4434 or 4435 I'll meet you most any place or time to discuss your problem. We are here to help...not to preach."

Mrs. Verlinden will appear at your school, your classroom, or your club if you call and ask for an appointment. She will bring films, pamphlets and other information. All she wants is an opportunity to spread her message.

A native of Monroe where she attended high school, the former Tina Rudolph went to Concordia Lutheran College in Ann Arbor for two years before transferring to Northern Michigan University where she received a bachelor's degree in social work. She is now married to Mark Verlinden who is employed at Associates Finance Co. In Petoskey. The couple live in Bay Shore.



Rally held

About 30 people opposed to nuclear power attended a rally at Elzinga Park Sunday afternoon. The group huddled in a circle, introduced themselves and stated why they attended the rally, and then marched to Big Rock carrying a large sign calling for the "shut down of Big Rock." It was exactly one year ago that 14 anti-nuclear foes were arrested at the plant for trespassing.

Charlevoix's Tom Fowler

Statistician vital to Tech's sports scene

An important team exists in sports that perhaps is not always given the credit it deserves. It is made up of the statisticians and the play-by-play typist. These people do all of the record keeping for most sports events.

Tom Fowler, a 1977 graduate of Charlevoix High School, is a statistician for the Michigan Technological University sports information department. He has been doing 'stats' since the seventh grade.

"My father kept football statistics when I was in high school, and I worked alongside of him," says Fowler. At Michigan Tech he compiles statistics for basketball and football.

The home team provides the statisticians for the event. After the game they present both teams with a packet of the statistics which also includes such things as the weather and field conditions. As one might expect, this task involves a combination of skill and overall knowledge of the sport being covered.

Fowler has kept copies of the Charlevoix High sports statistics that he and his father compiled. This amounts to 10 years of statistics.

"I would like to compile these statistics in a record form to be kept at the high school," he says about the sports history he feels should exist. "Every college has records of its athletes. This was people can look back into the school's athletic history and compare the athletes. I think it would be interesting to know who the leading rusher of all-time was at my high school."

The junior at Michigan Tech says he likes keeping 'stats' because it keeps him near the sports scene. Even though he doesn't play on the team, he feels that he is still an important part of the sports program.

Fowler's major is mechanical engineering. He says he chose this field because it allows him to develop his mathematical skills. Tom was valedictorian of his high school graduating class. At present his grade point average is the third highest in the mechanical engineering department - 3.80.

Competition excites Fowler, and he enjoys watching and participating in a variety of sports. "This goes beyond the more active sports," he says. "I also like to play in games like bridge and chess. It is the competition that I enjoy."

Fowler is the son of Dave and Nancy Fowler of Charlevoix.

Boyne City wins district title

Boyne City captured the girls Class C district basketball championship at East Jordan Saturday by defeating Charlevoix, 46-43.

Boyne City now advances to regional competition at Roscommon.

The Ramblers had three players score in double figures to offset a fine performance by Charlevoix's Teresa Noirot. Noirot scored a career high 25 points on nine field goals and seven free throws.

Charlevoix owned a two point lead, 8-6, after the first quarter before Boyne City took command. The Ramblers led, 22-16, at the halftime break and, 31-24, after three quarters.

Cindy Scott tallied 11 points and teammates Penny Grunow and Becky Aimesbury added 10 each for the Ramblers, who defeated the Rayders three times this year.

Boyne City had advanced to the finals with victories over East Jordan and Rogers City. Charlevoix, meanwhile, upended Onaway.

In the Onaway contest, Noirot once again had a big offensive night scoring 21 points. Junior guard Mel Kerridge added 20 points and sophomore Holly Tabor contributed 19. Charlevoix maintained a six point lead throughout the first half. An 18-9 third quarter blitz guaranteed the Rayders a spot in the finals.

CHARLEVOIX (43) - Pischner 3 1-4 7, Tabor 1 3-2 4, Buday 0 0-1 0, Noirot 9 7-12 25, Kerridge 2 3-4 7. Totals 15 13-23 43.

But could be a sleeper

Rayders are young and inexperienced

A young Charlevoix Rayder basketball team will be get its feet wet in a hurry this season.

"We open against the two toughest teams on our schedule," said Rayder Coach Dave Moyer.

Charlevoix travels to East Jordan Friday night and then hosts Gaylord on Tuesday. East Jordan finished 8-4 in the Ski Valley Conference a year ago and, according to Moyer, returns four starters. Gaylord and St. Ignace tied for the Michigan-Huron Shores title with 11-3 records and the Blue Devils are loaded again this year - adding 6'6 transfer Joe Andrews to an already talented cast.

Charlevoix could be the sleeper in the conference. The Rayders are tall, but inexperienced. In fact, Moyer has three sophomores on the varsity, something of a rarity here.

"This is the first time since I've been coach that I've had sophomores on the varsity," said the fifth year mentor.

One of the sophomores, 6'3 Gary Drury, is battling for starting spot on the front line. Drury is considered a good passer and shooter and with 6'3 Gerard Doan and 6'5 Ken Otmanowski will give the Rayders some muscle under the backboards.

This is the tallest team Charlevoix has fielded during Moyer's tenure. And, quite obviously, the former Petoskey star plans to take advantage of it.

"One of our goals this year is to get the ball inside (15 feet and closer)," he said, "and so far in practice we've been working hard to do this."

Moyer expects to see a lot of zones this season with opponents trying to clog up the middle and force the Rayders to shoot from outside.

In the backcourt, Charlevoix will rely on another sophomore, 5'10 Jim Buchanan. However, Buchanan has a sprained ankle and is doubtful against East Jordan. Senior Scott Morgan, junior Jeff Drury and sophomore Mark Beaudoin are presently working at the guard slots.

Also competing for playing time are seniors John Grooters, Jeff Peters and Jim Stowe and juniors Paul Hoffman and Frank Kaufman.

Besides Buchanan, Otmanowski has also been slowed by an injury. The senior pivotman has a bruised hip. Otmanowski, Morgan and Doan are the only experienced lettermen on the team.

"It's important that we stay healthy," said Moyer, who is also concerned about his team's shooting and transition game between offense and defense.

Team goals for this year include:

- Three players average in double figures.
- Twelve or more shots per game than the opponent.
- To win 70 percent of the jump balls.
- To shoot 45 percent from the floor and 70 percent from the free throw line.
- To have 10 or less turnovers and 12 or more assists.
- To hold the opposition to 60 points or less.
- To stop the opposition from making over 42 percent of its shots from the floor.
- To commit less than 18 fouls.
- To collect 42 or more rebounds per game.

GemWise JEWELRY FASHIONS FACTS FICTION

THE HISTORY OF GOLD COINS

The fascination of gold has been known all over the world throughout history. The use of precious gold coins dates back to 560 BC. King Croesus authorized the first gold coinage known to man. The use of gold in jewelry predates recorded history, so it is not surprising that from the first, the most exquisite design & craftsmanship were used in creating gold coins... pieces of beautiful jewelry.

During the Middle Ages, gold coins became the world's standard of wealth. Paper money originated in the exchange of 'checks' between merchants whose gold was held for safekeeping by goldsmiths. By 1835, the world was officially on the gold standard. This meant that each nation's wealth depended on the amount of gold its government held to guarantee the value of paper money. Previous gold coins were, of course, the surest currency in circulation. The advantage of the gold standard was that it provided an automatic assurance of the real value of paper money.

All paper was redeemable in gold from the treasury of the country where it was issued, so inflation was automatically controlled by the stability of the value of gold.

Reusch Jewelry invites you to stop and view the gold coin jewelry available, along with the South African Krugerrand, and pure gold ingots.

Remember in your early days,
When you were in your childhood phase,
She turned you from your erring ways;
And managed to be there,
To bandage up your cuts and sprains
And shelter you from all life's pains;
Now just the memory remains
O! all she had to bear.
Your chosen Church will demonstrate
This lesson, if it's not too late,
And help you to appreciate
Your mother's love and care.

State Sen. MITCH IRWIN has announced the Senate has passed a bill that would convey approximately 64 acres of state owned land in Antrim County to be used as a nature conservatory.

"This legislation has already been approved by the House, and I am pleased to see this measure move so smoothly through the Senate," Irwin said. "The Senate's passage of this legislation is an important endorsement, for it means that it will now come before the Governor to be signed into law in the near future. I commend Rep. Ostling and local officials for the introduction and swift action on this much needed measure."

The Sault Ste. Marie lawmaker also said that the land, which is now under the jurisdiction of the State Department ol Natural Resources (DNR), will be given to Antrim County to be used as part of the Grass River Natural Area. Antrim County would pay a nominal fee of $1 for the land.

"This bill will enable the county to add a substantial amount of acreage to the Grass River Natural Area for a token amount, and add it in its effort to preserve the unique plant and animal life existing in that region," said Irwin.

Faulty valves to shutdown Big Rock

By Tom Dammann

Big Rock Point Nuelear Power Plant will shutdown on "about December 29" in order to comply with Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) directives to correct two valve delects in its central system.

According to a spokesman for Consumers Power Company (owner of the plant) the shutdown will last at least 10 days but no longer than a month.

In a telephone interview Monday, company spokesman Robert Wischmeyer said that in its reply to earlier NRC instructions, resulting from the Three Mile Island accident last spring, Consumers had said it would make certain readjustments to the two valves during its annual shutdown early next year.

"But last week the NRC informed us that it disagrees, that the corrections must be made immediately," Wischmeyer said.

He said the NRC had ordered the earliest possible installation of devices which would indicate whether certain relief valves are open or closed.

The second requirement calls for assurance that valves which had opened during containment isolation and had then been closed would not automatically reopen.

"We had proposed installing a hand operated switch which the operator could use to prevent any valve reopening automatically," Wischmeyer explained. "We are going to do this during our next outage in 1980. But the NRC said it must be done now."

Wischmeyer said the shutdown has nothing to do with the containment shield, which alter Three Mile Island, NRC had directed all nuclear power plants in the nation to restudy.

For Big Rock this may require the construction of a cement silo around the containment sphere, sume engineers within the plant have suggested.

But Wischmeyer said no decisions on this have been made yet.

"Engineering efforts for design and installation of the amount of additional shielding needed will begin by January 1st," he said.

Big Rock went back on line November 9, after being shut down since last February to repair leaks and rattles that were discovered when it started up in April.

CETA jobs available in Charlevoix County

Almost $800,000 in Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) money will be available to fund public service employment jobs in Charlevoix County during the 1980 fiscal year.

The jobs will be provided by governmental, educational, and private non-profit agencies to persons who have been unemployed for a long period of time and to low income persons working at low skill levels.

The CETA program is basically a training program alined at schooling unskilled individuals so they may take their place in the job market. Its special target are those on public assistance, young people, offenders, displaced homemakers, single parents, individuals who lack credentials, individuals who require basic and remedial skills development, and persons of limited English speaking ability.

CETA activities are presently concentrated on "projects", which are defined as a "definable task or group of related tasks which will be completed within a definable period of time, not exceeding 18 months, which has a public service objective, and which results in a specific product or accomplishment with existing funds."

Projects may include "the rehabilitation, alteration, or improvement, but not new construction, of public buildings, roads, health, and educational facilities and other facilities for the improvement of the community. These activities may not normally be contracted out and may not be to the benefit of a private profit-making organization."

CETA workers are paid an average wage of $3.41 an hour. Their eligibility for CETA employment is determined by the Michigan Employment Security Commission based on certain criteria as follows:

The applicant must be a citizen of the United States or an eligible non-citizen. He must reside within the geographical area (county) for which funds have been designated. He must be unemployed at the time of enrollment, and have been unemployed for at least 10 out of the 12 weeks immediately prior to application. He must have a family income which "does not exceed 100 percent of the Lower Standard Injcome Level based on the annualization of the three-month period prior to application."

The annual Lower Living Standard Income Level for Charlevoix County is defined as $4,080 for a single-person family; $6,680 for a family of two; $9,170 for a family of three; $11,320 for a family of four; $13,360 for a family of five; and $15,620 for a family of six. For families of more than six people, $2,260 may be added for each additional member.

Another criteria of eligibility is being a member of a family receiving public assistance for at least 30 out of 12 weeks immediately prior to application.

All persons seeking CETA employment should contact the Michigan Employment Security Commission in Petoskey.

Contracts awarded at hospital

Contracts for the Charlevoix Area Hospital Renovation and Expansion Project were announced today by Thomas Carey, president of the Hospital Board of Directors.

The project, which involves remodeling areas within the present building, as well as construction of n new two-story wing, into which patient rooms will be moved to provide expansion space for other departments, will cost a total of $2,372,231.

The general contract was awarded to Tezak Company of Traverse City for $1,630,209. The Tezak Contract includes food services equipment and elevators.

Two Charlevoix firms have been awarded sub-contracts: Manthei Development Corporation for excavation and asphalt paving; and Site Planning Development Corporation for the landscaping for the hospital.

Mechanical contracts were awarded to Rourrie Inc of Cheboygan for $412,650. The electric contractor will be F. W. Moote, Inc., of Gaylord for $329,372.

The contracts will be signed Thursday Dec. 13, and some construction and internal remodeling will begin this winter.

"We expect our expansion project will get into high gear early this spring," hospital administrator Richard Krueger said. Construction is expected to take 18 months to complete.

Residents air views on Big Rock storage request

By Tom Dammann

PETOSKEY - "Welcome Nuclear Regulatory Commission" blazoned the sign in front of the Holiday Inn here this past Wednesday.

Inside a crowd of a little more than a hundred persons buzzed excitedly as television crews set up their gear.

Long haired, bearded men in plaid shirts, young women in modish dresses, skirts and sweaters, men in somber business suits unloading their attache cases gradually found their chairs. Onc couple in bright down jackets quietly removed a snow suit from a toddler and sat down in the rear of the hotel meeting room.

All were there to participate in or witness the proceedings of the long awaited pre-hearing conference of the Nuclear Regulatory Commissions (NRC) Licensing Board on Consumers Power Company's request to increase the storage capacity for spent reactor fuel at its Big Rock Point Nuclear Power Plant outside Charlevoix.

In July the NRC announced that it was considering the request. Almost immediately petitions to intervene were filed by the Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix, John Leithnuser of Levering and John O'Neill 11, a restaurant operator in Maple City on the Leelanau Peninsula.

Purpose of the conference, according to licensing panel chairman Herbert Grossman, an attorney, was to consider all intervention petitions, discuss specific issues to be considered at the evidentiary hearing, and establish a schedule for further actions in the proceedings.

As it turned out a great deal of spade work had been done on the previous day and night during sessions between lawyers for Consumers Power Co., the NRC staff and the Intervenors.

Grossman and his two fellow panelists, also full time members of the NRC Atomic Safety and Licensing Board Panel, Dr. Oscar H. Paris, an environmental scientist and Frederick J. Shon, a nuclear scientist, took their places at a long table on a small stage.

Directly in front of them at a table sat the board's staff headed by its brilliant, blind attorney, Miss Janice Moore. At their left at another table sat William S. Jordan III, the young associate in the Washington, D.C. law firm Sheldon, Hammon, Roisman and Weiss, representing the Charlevoix group, O'Neill and Leithauser. To the right of Miss Moore sat a battery of five lawyers from the prestigious Chicago-Washington D.C. law firm Isham, Lincoln and Beale, dignified and resplendent in their perfectly cut dark suits.

The first hour and half of the morning session was given to five minute statements by members of the public.

Among those 15 persons who spoke were representatives of state legislators, Presque Isle County Sheriff Myron Peltz (who stated that he had been unable to get any information from Big Rock officials regarding evacuation plans in the event of a serious accident at the plant) a Petoskey physician and a registered nurse, housewives, residents of Charlevoix, Petoskey and the Leelanau Peninsula.

In general they opposed the Consumers proposal to double the number of spent fuel rods on the grounds that this would increase the already present hazards of the "Model T plant" as one speaker described Big Rock, the fifth oldest nuclear power plant in the world. They spoke of the dangers to health, of the effects of radiation on Lake Michigan. They urged that the plant be shutdown.

State Senator Mitch Irwin's statement was read by Rosemary Glaser of Petoskey. He and Dr. Gerald Drake, of Petoskey, called for outright rejection of the plant's request to increase the number of spent fuel rods to be stored in the pool – 193 to 441.

"I question the safety of a plant that has to be shut down almost 5 rds of the year due to various problems," Senator Irwin said.

"I am concerned about the containment dome which the NRC in one of its systematic evaluation programs has found that in case of accident would not provide adequate shielding for employees of the plant to gain access to troubled areas. I also question if the dome in its present state provides adequate protection to the public. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission recommends that further shielding be added by 1980. Until that shielding is in place, I seriously question the wisdom of reopening operations.

"I am concerned that Big Rock is not required by the NRC to meet minimun safety regulations set up in 1972 by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, thus causing some to call Big Rock one of the ten most potentially dangerous plants in the country.

"I am concerned that a proper, updated evacuation plan be published and made available to the public. As of now, few people in Charlevoix and Emmet counties know and understand correct action to take if a Big Rock accident should occur.

"I am concerned that there is not a better analysis of the health effects of nuclear radiation on employees of the plant as well as the people living near the facility. I am not advocating a witch hunt on nuclear power in this state or in the country. I am not for returning to candlelight. However, in the particular case of the Big Rock facility which provided on 1.67% in 1979 of Consumer Powers total energy grid and is projected to provide even less in 1980, and with its many problems, past and present, I can not support expansion of spent fuel rod storage.

"The President's Committee investigating the accident at Three Mile Island, said:

Nuclear power is by its very nature potentially dangerous and therefore, one must continually question whether the safeguards already in place are sufficient to prevent a major accident.

"I do not feel that in the case of Big Rock, safe guards are sufficient enough at this time."

Senator Irwin's comments seemed to sum up the feelings of the others who spoke.

Then the panel got down to business, first disqualifying Leithauser because he had failed to answer communications and to file proper documents. He will be allowed to submit the necessary documents, but until he complies with the procedural rules he is out of the case.

One by one the panel and Attorneys (O'Neill acted as his own attorney) went over the contentions which the Charlevoix group (consisting of Christa-Maria, Jo Anne Bier and Jim Mills) and O'Neill have presented as reasons why the NRC must turn down Consumer's request to store additional spent fuel in its storage pool.

Concert Season!

At the high school...

Like a beautiful Christmas gift tied with bright ribbons and tinsel, The Charlevoix High School bands and choir have joined in preparing its own holiday gift to the community, its Christmas concert.

The young Concert Band will open with light, airy music with the Symphony Band presenting the more serious music of the season followed by the Marching Band with the more militant music befitting its place in the program with the 36-voice choir bringing out the true meaning of Christmas.

Michael W. Flikins will direct the bands and Steve Stargardt the choral group.

The concert, scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. Monday, will open with the Concert Band playing "The Flickertail", Ployhar; "The Spirit of Christmas", Fred Frank; "Air for Band", Frank Erickson concluding with Bill Holcombe's "Christmas Wishes".

The Symphony Band will open with Alfred Reed's "A Festive Prelude" followed by the familiar "Twelve Days of Christmas", Jerry Bilik and "Great Songs of Christmas", Robert Lowden and closing with Leroy Anderson's "Christmas Festival."

The full Marching band will play selections more in keeping with the out-of-doors including "March Grandioso," Seitz; "Marcena", Monterder/Moffit; "Toccata", Bach/Ahronheim; "Boris Gudunov", Moussorgsky/Langford; "Conquistador", Nowak and concluding with the stirring "Stars and Stripes Forever" by John Phillip Sousa.

Steve Stargardt will contribute the true songs of Christmas as his 36-voice choir presents "Christmas Medley," "Gentle Wind", "Do You Hear What I Hear?" and "What Did You Say Was the Baby's Name?"

Again, you are invited to this special Christmas concert the Charlevoix High School Music Department has prepared as its holiday gift to you.

...and the middle school

The Charlevoix Middle School Music Department will present a Christmas concert at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Middle School gymnasium.

The seventh grade band, making its initial appearance, will play Christmas March; Sound of Silence by Simon and Garfunkel; Royal Eagle March, Buchtell and the charming "Little Drummer Boy, all directed by Mike Filkins.

The 19-voice Middle School choir will present a program of traditional music of the holiday season including familiar carols under the direction of Steve Stargardt.

The eight grade band will conclude the concert with Frosty the Snowman; Kentucky 1800; the haunting Birth of the Blues and Sing of Christmas with the audience participating.

The program will be presented without charge at the Middle School gymnasium as the music department's holiday gift to the community.

HIRING MILLIONS OF PEOPLE TO WORK ON UNITED WAY WOULD NOT BE EFFICIENT.

GETTING THEM TO WORK FOR NOTHING IS.

The big reason why United Way can do so much for so many is that a lot of big hearted Americans contribute countless millions of hours every year. Free of charge. Volunteers do everything from collecting money to deciding how it will be used in their local communities. So administrative costs are low, and more can be spent on needed services.

And that's how United Way works. And why.

Thanks to you, it works for all of us. United Way

V.F.W. plans post Christmas party for Saturday, Dec. 29

Because of Santa's busy schedule prior to Christmas, Charlevoix V.F.W. Post No. 1153, its auxiliary, and family members, will be holding a post Christmas party on Saturday, Dec. 29 at the post home.

A potluck supper will start at 6 p.m. and will feature a lighted Christmas tree, a visit from Santa, an exchange of gifts for the adults and candies and gifts for the children.

The Christmas tree will be decorated at the regular social hour of the auxiliary at 8 p.m. on Dec. 20. Mrs. Clement Olach and Mrs. William Farkas will host the meeting.

At its recent meeting, President Mrs. Clarence Goldstick read letters of appreciation for Christmas gifts totaling $40 in value that were sent to the State Hospital at Traverse City and the monetary gifts sent to VA Hospitals at Battle Creek and Saginaw.

Mrs. John Gelding reported that 50 percent of the funds realized from the sale of V.F.W. stamps are used for the maintenance of cottages and homes at the V.F.W. Children's Home at Eaton Rapids. All members were urged to return their funds at the earliest date possible.

Mrs. Betty White reported that the local auxiliary was within nine members of having a 100 percent membership renewal. She asked that everyone pay their dues this month.

The charter was draped and a prayer offered in memory of Mrs. Alice Whitley. A book will be placed in the Charlevoix Public Library in her memory and also a copy of "Namesakes II" by John O. Greenwood in memory of past post commander Leroy Plum.

A moment of silence was observed in memory of those who gave their lives during World War II.

Christmas cards and get well cards were signed and will be mailed to the ill and shut-ins.

Mrs. Joseph Seidel and Mrs. Ruhl will host the Jan. 3 meeting at the post home at 8 p.m.

Grange brightens X-Mas

Members of the Grange became Santa's helpers during the past year and, as a result, children at the Charlevoix Area Hospital and others will be remembered through the Community Christmas project in which so many organizations participated.

The soft sculpture project that included toys and dolls of every size and description was a 1979 state-wide project. The toys and dolls were taken to the recent state convention at Sault Ste. Marie where they were divided and each Grange received toys to be donated to worthy projects.

In Charlevoix County the Barnard Grange, represented by Mrs. William Parsons, distributed the toys recently to the two groups selected. Here Mrs. Parsons offers a toy to a little patient, Jaime Stebe, 3, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Others were turned over to Mrs. Byron Wright for use in the community Christmas project.

Other winners included: Hard Goods - Bartlett's Decorating Center, 1st place, and the Literary News Center, 2nd place; Gift Shops - Charlee's, 1st place, and Appletree, 2nd place; Soft Goods - Hamilton's-Golden Shoes, 1st place, and Kaden's, 2nd place; Service - Michigan Officeways, 1st place, and Bogg's Pastry, 2nd place. Receiving honorable mention were Barb's Hallmark Harbor, Muma's Total, Charlee's Too, Wildwood, Reusch Jewelry and the Kit Carson Lumber Company.

The contest was sponsored by the Retail Division of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. Judging the contest were Nancy Wood, Kathy Hynes and Diana Puhi.

Santa at Ironton

While judges were busy selecting the best Christmas window displays, Santa arrived in Charlevoix via a Coast Guard boat. He was greeted in East Park by young and old alike (Picture on page 15). Students from the Charlevoix Elementary School were also on hand to sing Christmas carols. They were directed by Marina LaBlance.

Santa will be in his East Park workshop each weekday night from 5-8 p.m. On Saturday, Santa will climb aboard a City of Charlevoix fire truck and greet everyone in East Park. Then on Sunday from 1-4 p.m. Santa will make an appearance at the Market in Ironton.

Gill netting continues

Bay Mills and Sault Ste. Marie Chippewa Indian bands still have the right to gill net free of state regulation in the Great Lakes.

A ruling - just over a week ago by the U.S. Sixth Court of Appeals - was misinterpreted by a law clerk at the appeals court. Initial reports of the ruling indicated that all gill net fishing in the Great Lakes would be banned until the court could review the entire fishing controversy and issue a final ruling.

However, the court only ruled that the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians would not be allowed to become a party in the suit. The Grand Traverse Indians had sought to become a party to the suit and prevent the state from enforcing its anti-gill netting regulations on members of that band.

Big Rock

At the end of the afternoon Gruisman announced his satisfaction that "an understanding of the wording of the contentions had been reached by all parties concerned, that there will be reviewed in Washington and an order would be issued stating which contentions will be the subjects of arguement at a hearing to begin sometime after Labor Day next year.

The Charlevoix group were particularly pleased that its first contention will be allowed to stand fur arguement.

In this the group states that the NRC cannot permit the expansion of the Big Rock spent fuel until it (the NRC) has completed a court ordered generic proceeding which among other things will determine whether there will be safe off site storage space for spent fuel available before Big Rock's license expires in the year 2,000, and that if there is not such space the NRC must then conduct special procedures to determine whether the spent fuel can be stored ot Big Rock.

At a special evening session nine more persons made statements.

Rev. Austin Regier, pastor of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church said that after listening to the day's proceedings he realized that the NRC and Consumers Power Co., are watchmen who must alert the public to any dangers they see.

He told the Biblical story about a watchman in Ezekiel's time.

"The danger here is one we think of as hazardous to people's health by radiation. In Ezekiel's time, the dangers were visible and now they are not. As I think of a watchman in today's society, I don't know who it is, but I assume it is the people here at these tables" (glancing at the attorneys for Consumers and the NRC and at the panel members), the minister said.

"It would behoove all people to point out the dangers."

Frank Shomin, a 54 year old Ottawa Indian from Cross Village said that the Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant is located near land held sacred by Indians, land un which Indians hold sacred ceremonials in the spring.

Shomin said that in these ceremonies a holy man stood at Lake Michigan .water's edge and threw stones 100 feet out into the water and 100 feet nu to the land and that no seeding or planting is permitted in the land or water between.

He said such sacred rites and their meanings are protected in all federal treaties signed by his ancestors.

"Our elders have always said that if the treaties are not honored, the waters will rise," the Indian concluded.

At the end of the session a staff member was overheard telling a colleague, "These people have legitimate worries and they are su sincere. If only they could understand that we are not the proper body to speak to..."

"But to whom can they speak, if not the NRC," an eavesdropper demanded.

"To their Congressmen. Write their Congressmen. Congress is the only body that can act."

The group who took part in the 24 hour Starv-A-thon

$1,500 raised for Cambodians

About $1,500 has been raised in Charlevoix to help Cambodians who are dying of starvation.

Most of the money - $1,200 - was collected over the weekend by a group of about 20 people who took part in a 24 hour Starv-A-Thon at the United Methodist Church. Another $220 was collected in Sunday morning offerings at the church.

The United Methodist Committee on Relief is appealing to its members to raise funds to help the Cambodians. The money is to be used for food and medical supplies.

"The magnitude of need, the shocking suffering of the people of that ravaged nation and the evidence of a future that threatens to destroy an entire culture and its people are clear, and present dangers," Bishop Edsel Ammons said.

"The appeal became, therefore, not simply a matter of raising money but an opportunity for a genuine expression of concern and compassion in behalf of the Cambodian people. At the present time contributions from our churches are coming in at a most impressive rate." Bishop Ammons said he hopes $2 million can be raised by the United Methodist Churches. Not all of the people who participated in the Starv-A-Thon, however, belong to the United Methodist Church. Organizers of the Starv-A-Thon have asked for help from members of all denominations.

Two years ago, in a similiar effort, about $500 was collected during a Starv-A-Thon. This year's goal was $1,000.

Thanks for your support

Editor:

The employees of the Charlevoix Area Hospital would like to thank the people of Charlevoix and the surrounding communities for their support and attendance at their Bazaar and Salad Luncheon held Wednesday, Nov. 28 at the American Legion Hall.

Approximately $1,500 was raised, which will be applied towards the purchase of a monitor-defibrillator for the Emergency Room.

Your continued support of the hospital is appreciated.

Average Iranian is not an Arab

If you think our problems in Iran stem from our dealings with frenzied, hot- blooded Arabs, forget it.

I have spent part of the past week perusing a book entitled "Mission for My Country" by His Imperial Majesty, Mohammed Reza Shah Pahlavi, late of Iran but now o temporary resident of Lackland AFB, Texas.

After lamenting thot so little is known about his country in the West, the shah points uut that he and his fellow countrymen are not Arabs — but Aryans, the old racial bloodline that populates most of Europe and America today.

The shah says even his country's name — Iran — is derived from Aryan, which seems entirely likely.

"Certainly no one can doubt that our culture is more akin to that of the West than it is either the Chinese or that of our neighbours, the Arabs," the shah writes .."We (Iranians) are racially quite separate from the Semitic stock of the Arabs. Our language belongs to the Indo-European family which includes English, French, German and other major Western tongues."

So your average Iranian is not an Arab; he is an Aryan. And don't forget it by branding all Middle Easterners with the same iron.

You might also remember that it was Adolph Hitler's insistence on the supremacy of Aryan blood that brought six million Semitic Jews to grief during World War II.

Bloodlines aside, the shah divulges some interesting information about his homeland, which used to be called Persia. This came as quite a relief, because I had no idea what had happened to Persia. I studied about it when I was a kid in ancient textbooks. But then all of o sudden it disappeared from the face of the globe — just like Chosen and Siam.

But Persia — for better or worse — is modern-day Iran.

The shah also says that his former country is so fertile — except for the central salt deserts — that it must import very little food. Which is discouraging, because an agricultural boycott to free the 50 American hostages in Tehran probably wouldn't work.

"Those who know my realm particularly prize our delicious fruits, including apples, peaches, apricots, grapes, cherries, plums, pears, pomegranates, oranges, grapefruit, tangerines, lemons, limes, dotes, olives, and a variety of delectable melons," the shah writes. "We also hve a profusion of nuts, especially almonds, pistachios, and hazels. The livestock industry flourishes both among our picturesque nomadic tribal people and our settled farmers in the mountains and on the plains."

Iran also produces wheat, barley, corn, rice, cotton, potatoes, millet, sugar beets, cane sugar, tobacco and tea.

So much for an agricultural boycott.

How about a boycott of raw materials?

Again we strike out. In addition to its vast resevoir of oil, Iran has an abundance of coal, iron, copper, lead, manganese, chromite, precious stones and many chemical salts, including the borates, sulphates and rock salt.

"These we have barely started to exploit," the shah cinims.

Despite its juxtaposition to much of the arid land in the Middle East, Iran appears to be practically self-sufficient. And this is grim news indeed, for the United States.

Top of the heap

Anne Kelly

It's ironic that I had just been enjoying a delightful little book by Trina Paulus, Hope For the Flowers, when the evening paper brought word of the Cincinnati tragedy. Although Hope For the Flowers is hardly a tale of rock groups or concert mania, (it is a parable of caterpillars and butterflies) there is a metaphorical lesson to be drawn between the two.

This is a child's book for grown-ups, an adult book to be shared with the children. It is a "once upon a time" story of a caterpillar who was not content to be ordinary. He was restless with the scavanger, crawling existence and he stove always to find more. He was the Jonathon L. Seagull of the caterpillar world. But unlike Jonathon, soon he discovered that there were others like himself who believed that the way out of such a mediocre existence was up.

Up in seething, crawling caterpillar columns, rising to the sky where other pushing squirming caterpillars like himself attempted to reach the top of the heap. There were problems with the quest. There was the problem of stepping on your neighbor, of not wanting to get too familiar with anyone you met because you might have to squash him in your haste to reach the top. Sometimes it even meant pushing a fellow caterpillar down the sides of the heap to a sure death. If you wanted to succeed, you just couldn't be concerned with anyone but yourself and your goal. The biggest problem of all, was finding that there was really nothing at the top after all that was worh all the selling out. It was lonely at the top. There was no place to go.

As the story goes on the allegorical level, the caterpillar learns through a loving friend, the mystery and triumph of metamorphosis.

On the metaphorical level, I can see hundreds of frenzied fans pushing through two doors of Cincinnati's Riverfront Colloseum in their haste to be close enough to see The Who. Once the pushing starts, it is part of a game-like a chain reaction ... push! Shove! Be closest! Be first!

Anyone who has attended a concert at Castle Farms or Glacier Dome knows the feeling. Once I needed a picture of a pre-show group and had no telephoto lens. My goal was to get close enough to accomplish this task. Soon I found my body literally being carried away by the throngs – body to body, armpit to armpit. I became almost single-minded in my intent–get to the front! Even the band, as I near elbowed the stage, was admonishing fans to sit down and move back. No one was enjoying the concert. They were just trying to maintain footing there. The group, at close hand, looked like they hadn't bathed during the entire road trip – they didn't even have much to offer musically. I wondered after snapping the pictures, if it had been worth it. Would I ever make it back intact?

I wanted only to be back nn the periphery, but the rise near the fence, where you could breathe, not struggle except to see, and await the main attraction unharassed.

There is another level beyond the tragedy of inadequate seating facilities and ineffective crowd control, of only two doors open to accommodate thousands who had waited in line for hours to catch a glimpse of one of the most historic of all of today's rock groups.

There is that parable of the metamorphosis to be reckoned with – and the end that does not necessarily justify the means by which we reach it. The striving for being at the top of the heap, regardless of what that striving means to fellow caterpillars or human beings is the cause may be.

Rock concerts are not the only arenas of insensitivity. You can see similar attitudes displayed while waiting in most any lines: for games, for movies, for department store sales, for garage sale bargains, for parades. Perhaps the tragedy occurred at a rock concert because sponsors of these concerts are among the least accommodating for their patrons, the attitude being-"pack 'em in, don't worry how."

For sponsors, patrons, human beings and caterpillars, it all boils down to the same thing. Is it really worth it, after all, to get to the top of the heap?

County's Emergency Operations Plan updated

By Peg Ohle

COURIER: Just looking at the index indicates that you have just about every official in the county involved in the Emergency Operations Plan.

TUNISON: Yes, beginning with the chairperson of the County Board of Commissioners, who would initiate the plan by declaring a state of emergency. To name a few -- the sheriff would warn the population of impending danger and carry on whatever special law enforcement services that are necessary. The equalization director would be in charge of assessing the damage caused by eny disaster. An emergency public information service person under the direction of the Emergency Services Coordinator would set up a system of disseminating news. A shelter operations officer would coordinate all shelter activities. A radiological defense officer would supervise all radiological defense services. The County Firefighters Association would be in charge of firefighting, some rescue services, and decontamination, among other duties. The Director of the District Health Department would coordinate emergency public health and medical services. The Engineer-Supervisor of the County Road Commission would maintain roads and streets and bridges and clear debris as well as keep open the routes for evacuation. The Director of the County Department of Social Services would be responsible for the general welfare, food distribution, shelter, and clothing. And last, but not least, the superintendents of each school district would be responsible for evacuation and transportation of students in school, and for making school buildings available for shelter.

COURIER: Of course, these are only the people with primary responsibilities. They would all have to have lots of help, right?

TUNISON: Oh, yes.

COURIER: Now, you have a section on "Nuclear Incident Response Action". What's this about?

TUNISON: It was developed for the response of the Emergency Services Forces in the event of a nuclear incident at the Consumer's Power Company Big Rock Nuclear Plant. Much of this plan is the same as for other types of emergencies, but it does go into the nuclear aspect more definitely. Of course, the Big Rock plant, along with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, is responsible for all of its on-site operations. In fact, since Three Mile Island, all nuclear plants must take a greater responsibility in emergency planning and furnishing information.

COURIER: There are dozens of maps and charts in the book to supplement the Emergency Operations Plan. What are they?

TUNISON: Well, here's a map of Relocation Routes in the county. Here's a chart showing the 1979 population for four miles surrounding Big Rock, broken down by sectors and zones. Here's a map showing the location of sirens in the county and the area they cover. Here's a list of public shelters. Here's a list of schools and also a list of churches which could be used for shelter. Here's a list of monitoring stations in the county. Here's a list of equipment owned by the Road Commission. This is the kind of information that would be useful in case of an emergency.

COURIER: How many copies of the Emergency Operations Plan are in circulation?

TUNISON: There are 62 copies out right now. The Governor has one, and so do the heads of all state and county departments involved in emergency services, as well as other involved individuals.

COURIER: We know that through the years the concept of emergency emphasis has changed. What are some of the other things you have been involved with?

TUNISON: An entirely different type of service rendered by our department are the surplus and excess property programs, through which any government agency can buy surplus items from the federal government at drastically reduced prices, with the stipulation that these items be available for use in any disaster if needed. I remember a purchase for $25 that would have cost $450 elsewhere, one for $35 that would have cost $575, and one for $725 for equipment that would have cost $12,116. Of course, the biggest thing we ever acquired was the evacuation plane for Beaver Island.

COURIER: And you've had booklets on a variety of subjects, too, haven't you?

TUNISON: Yes. There's "Tornado Safety Rules", "Spotter's Guide for Identifying and Reporting Severe Local Storms", "Lightning", "Protecting Mobile Homes from High Winds", "Family Guide to Emergency Health Care", and "Emergency Rescue Training".

COURIER: How did you get into emergency service work?

TUNISON: I started as a part time secretary to the then Director of Civil Defense, Gen. George B. Ely, for $1,200 a year. Later on, I got another part time job as secretary to Prosecuting Attorney Harvey Varnum for another $1,200. When General Ely died in 1963, I was appointed director and $500 was added to my salary.

COURIER: When did you come to Charlevoix?

TUNISON: In 1956. I was born in Albion and grew up in Detroit and Dearborn.

COURIER: Do you have a family?

TUNISON: Two sons and two daughters and 13 grandchildren. Richard teaches school in Painesdale, Melville lives in Charlevoix, and Jane and Roberta live in Royal Oak.

COURIER: You're well known for your weaving. When did you start that?

TUNISON: About 40 years ago. I have three looms and do kall kinds of work -- baby blankets, rugs, clothes, draperies, table cloths, linens, woolens, almost everything.

COURIER: Is weaving an expensive hobby?

TUNISON: Yes, it is. Both the looms and the materials are costly. The trick is to put enough material on a loom to make three items -- one to keep for yourself, one for a present, and one to sell. This way you can pay for the one you keep and have a gift besides.

COURIER: Have you ever done any spinning?

TUNISON: Only a little. I'm a novice at it but I enjoy getting others started. Maybe I'll have more time for it now.

COURIER: What else are you going to do in retirement?

TUNISON: Well, I'll still be doing some emergency service work. My successor, Earl Muma, has asked me to serve as a deputy volunteer.

COURIER: What else?

TUNISON: I'm on the Governor's Civil Defense Advisory Council. We meet four times a year and set standards and do long range planning. In this work we have to be on the outlook for everything, natural disasters or manmade ones. Radio active problems will always be with us as long as there is a threat of war or peacetime accidents. It's like the radium dial watches of a while back. There are all kinds of threats, many of which we don't know about.

COURIER: What other problems bother you?

TUNISON: We are building houses and other buildings without shelters. We keep telling people to take shelter -- but where? We don't even have many basements any more. Basements can always be used for rec rooms and other purposes.

Meet Charlevoix

Alice Tunison is retiring this month as Emergency Services Coordinator after serving Charlevoix County for 20 years. She recently completed revising and updating the voluminous "Emergency Operations Plan" which sets forth a method of handling any emergency situation in the county, be it a natural disaster, an enemy attack, an industrial or nuclear accident, or even a civil disturbance. This week the Courier glances over the plan with Mrs. Tunison and also talks with her about other things.

Big Rock's closure means higher electric bills

Consumers Power Company officials are anticipating electric bills to be significantly higher over the next three months as a result of higher fuel and purchased power costs which the utility has experienced.

Richard G. Dahlquist, area monager for Consumers said electricity costs for the months of December, January and February will be higher than in recent months. As an example, he stated that the December bill for a residential customer using 500 kilowatthours of electricity will be $26.68, compared to $21.54 for the same amount of power in November.

Preliminary estimates show that January bills for 500 kilowatthours could cost over $28 and February bills about the same.

Dahlquist cited increased use of coal and oil to generate electricity and the purchase of large amounts of power from other utilities as the principal reasons for the higher bills. The increased use of fossil fuels and the power purchases result from a reduction in nuclear-generated electricity during the past three months.

He noted that under Michigan Public Service Commission rules, fuel costs above a specified base and costs of power bought from other utilities are not included in customer's bills until three months after they are incurred by an electric utility. The MPSC further restricts utilities to passing on only 90 percent of those costs, on which the company makes no profit, to customers.

The bills for December reflect fuel and purchased power costs incurred last September when the 740,000-kilowatt Palisades plant was shut down for refueling and maintenance and the company's 63,000-kilowatt Big Rock Point nuclear plant was out of service for repairs.

Both plants were shut down the entire month of October, requiring continued greater use of fossil fuels and power purchases, Dahlquist said. Under the three month lag, those costs will be included in customers' bills for January.

The Big Rock Point plant resumed operation in November while the Palisades shutdown continues.

Dahlquist said that nuclear-generated electricity is the lowest-cost power the company produces.

The two nuclear plants generated more than 3.3 billion kilowatthours of electricity in 1978, 13.7 percent of the utility's total generation. Including fuel, operating and maintenance costs, the nuclear production cost .967 cents per kilowatthour, compared to 1.65 cents per kilowatthour for coal and 3.31 cents per kilowatthour for oil.

In discussing the shutdown of the Polisades facility, Daldquist pointed out that nuclear plants must be taken out of service for refueling approximately every 18 months and that during the refueling outage, maintenance work is carried on.

He stated that coal and oil facilities also experience shutdowns for maintenance. He cited a coal-fired unit at the J. H. Campbell plant which was out of service from March to July this year, and another fossil unit at the J. C. Weadock plant which was shut down for six months in 1978 as examples.

Eight of the 13 matches ended in pins. Wojan was Charlevoix's most impressive wrestler as he pinned Petoskey's Brad Fineout in 1:13. Golovich and Drenth both won on decisions. Charlevoix had to forfeit two matches.

McCord was appointed head coach last month, replacing Norm Probert. A Los Angeles native, he is presently teaching at North Central Michigan College.

Charity tosses KO Rayders in opener

Scott Morgan heads for the basket

East Jordan canned 26 of 33 free throws Friday night to spark the Red Devils to a 70-58 triumph over Charlevoix.

It was the season opener for both basketball squads.

"Free throws told the story," Rayder Coach Dave Moyer said afterwards. "Defensively we just didn't beat anyone to the path. We got behind (on drives to the basket) and started fouling. It's a mental mistake and it's something we'll have to work on."

Charlevoix opened the game with its guns a'blazin. The Rayders held East Jordan scoreless for nearly 5½ minutes and raced to an 11-0 lead.

But the guns cooled off and East Jordan counter-attacked, finally catching the Rayders midway through the second quarter. The Red Devils made up the difference with a press - that gave Charlevoix fits - and aggressive play inside.

East Jordan held onto the lead for most of the contest. Early in the third quarter, Ken Otmanowski scored to give Charlevoix a 33-31 advantage, but it was short lived as East Jordan bounced right back. The Rayders pulled to within four points - on a couple different occassions - in the fourth quarter only to commit costly fouls enabling the Red Devils to keep the margin at a safe distance. East Jordan converted 11 of 14 free throws in the final eight minutes of play.

Charlevoix shot 32 percent (22 of 66) for the game. East Jordan shot 35 percent (22 of 63).

"We've got to get some consistency on offense," Moyer said. "We were getting good shots but they weren't dropping."

Otmanowski paced the Rayder attack with 14 points. He also had 14 rebounds. John Groters tallied 12 points in a reserve role and Scott Morgan added 13.

For East Jordan, center Duane Carpenter had 20 points - including an 8 for 9 performance at the charity stripe - Don Trojanek added 13 and Del Ingalls and Tim Vermillion chipped in with 10 apiece.

East Jordan outrebounded Charlevoix 39-38. The Rayders were guilty of 20 turnovers and the Red Devils 16.

In junior varsity action, Charlevoix walloped the Red Devils 86-50.

Charlevoix led by 20 at half, 43-23. Dave Buday had 20 points, Mike Schmidt 12, Andy Schafer 12 and Ross Carey 11 for the Rayders.

Christmas favorite to be performed tonight at PMS

"Amahl and the Night Visitors", a Christmas favorite since its television premier over 25 years ago, will be performed for the first time in Petoskey at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday Dec. 12. The opera, which will be staged at the Middle School Auditorium, tells the story of a little crippled boy and his widowed mother who lived 2,000 years ago. One December night, they are visited by the three Kings on their starguided journey to Bethlehem and their lives are changed forever by this wonderful visit.

"Amahl" is also the story of its composer Gian-Carlo Menotti, who was confined to a wheelchair as a child. Growing up in a small Italian village where the three kings were the Yuletide gift-bearers instead of Santa Claus, Menotti as a small boy would fervently with each year that the three kings might bring him the ability to walk. One year, miraculously, he regained the use of his legs. This inspired Menotti to later write the poignantly beautiful operetta, "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

Appearing in Petoskey will be a professional cast headed by David Aiken and acompanied by the Northwestern Michigan Symphony Orchestra, directed by Don Jaeger. David Aiken first appeared in the role of King Melchior in the world premier on NBC-TV in 1951 and has sung in the annual Christmas telecast for many years since. Aiken, a member of the Indiana University voice faculty, is now the stage director for "Amahl". He brings with him Rosemary Kuhlmann as the widowed mother, who also performed in the show's television debut. Richard Knoll and Roger Havranek, also from Indiana, will sing King Kasper and King Balthazar.

"Amahl and the Night Visitors" will be presented at the Petoskey Middle School tonight (Wednesday)

The boy Amahl will be performed by 11-year old Gian-Carlo Vellutino of New York. Gian-Carlo who was named after Menotti, has just completed five months in the roie of Louis in "The King and I". This 70-pound gifted child studies voice and drama with his mother, who is an opera singer, and piano, trumpet, and theory at Westchester Conservatory of Music.

Local singers directed by David Parrish, chairman of the Traverse City Public Schools' Music Department, will take part in the performance as the shepards and shepardesses who gather to greet the three Kings. The part of the Page will be sung by Eric Anderson, a graduate of the Interlochen Arts Academy.

The Dec. 12th performance of "Amahl" is sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council which is in part funded by the Michigan Council for the Arts. Tickets for this Christmas classic are on sale at the Chamber of Commerce in Petoskey and Charlevoix. Because the arts council wishes to involve as many local organizations in this holiday event as possible, they are offering discounts to groups planning to attend. Anyone wishing more information about the production may call the Arts Counell at 347-3973, ext. 371.

Council to consider R-2A district

The Charlevoix City Council will soon be reviewing an amendment to the city zoning ordinance to establish guidelines for two family residential units in the city.

Presently, the zoning ordinance has rules and regulations for single family and multiple family (four or more) units but not for two family units.

The Charlevoix Planning Commission drafted and approved the proposed amendment that calls for the establishment of an R-2A (two family residential) district.

"It's something that had to be dealt with," said Dr. David Strawbridge, chairman of the planning commission. "I think this amendment establishes specific guidelines for the conversion of large existing homes (into two family units) and for the construction of (new) duplexes."

Guidelines set forth in the proposed amendment include:

A minimum lot area of 9,000 square feet.

A minimum width of 90 feet at the building line for new development and 75 feet for existing buildings.

The building shall not use more than 35 percent of the usable lot area.

A 25 foot setback in the front yard, a 35 foot setback in the rear yard and 10 foot setbacks on the side yards (except the street side of any corner lot - then its 25 feet).

Each single family unit shall have a minimum of 800 square feet, exclusive of porches, garages and basements for a one story building and 1,200 square feet for structures with more than one story, also exclusive of porches, garages and basements.

No building shall exceed 35 feet or 2½ stories in height, whichever is less.

Off-street parking shall be provided and not less than two parking spaces shall be required for each single family dwelling unit.

Garbage receptacles shall be provided, maintained and screened (not allowed in front yard).

The planning commission also is reviewing an amendment for three family residential units.

Ski swap planned this weekend

The Fifth Annual Ski Swap, sponsored by the Ski Team at Charlevoix High School, will be held Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 15 and 16, from 1 to 5 p.m. in the cafeteria at the high school.

All ski equipment, both cross country and downhill, as well as ski clothing and skates, will be accepted for sale.

The cafeteria will be open Friday from 4 to 7 p.m. and on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 12 noon to accept equipment.

There will be a 50 cent per item registration charge and a 20 percent donation to the Ski Team for all articles sold.

All proceeds from the sale will go to help defray expenses of training the Ski Team, according to Coach Mike Bonello.

Charlevoix Area Hospital expands Physical Therapy Department, hires Gorkiewicz

Robert Gorkiewicz, registered physical therapist, has joined Charlevoix Area Hospital's Physical Therapy Department.

"With the addition of Bob Gorkiewicz to our staff, Charlevoix Area Hospital has a Physical Therapy Department which can offer the range of treatment ordered by any doctor in the area," Richard Krueger, hospital administrator explained.

Gorkiewicz, who holds a B.S. in physical therapy from Wayne State University, has served internships at Mary Freebed Hospital, Grand Rapids, specializing in children's rehabilitation and at Rusk Institute in New York City, the first rehabilitation institute in the United States. He has been a member of the staff at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac and Northern Michigan Hospitals in Petoskey and has served as a consultant in rehabilitation and therapy to Beverly Manor Convalscent Center in Petoskey.

He explained that his training and license enable him to provide the physical therapy ordered by any physician in the state of Michigan.

Charlevoix Area Hospital has expanded its Physical Therapy Department under Bob and his assistant Joan Gigg, a physical therapy aide, for the convenience of area residents.

People who have injuries, disabilities, orthopedic problems, or other physical problems requiring the care of a registered therapist, may receive treatment at Charlevoix Area Hospital when directed by their physicians, Gorkiewicz explained recently.

As he worked with a young women, suffering a spinal chord injury, Bob calmly helped her find ways of adjusting to her paralysis. He offered hints on exercise for her to perform at home, helped her readjust her wheel chair, and compassionately listened as she spoke of her frustrations and problems.

"One of the jobs of a physical therapist is to help a person with a major problem learn how to take care of themselves," he later explained. "Things we take for granted, getting out of bed, personal hygiene, dressing ourselves, eating, have to be accomplished. If we can't strengthen weak areas to do more, we try to find alternative methods that don't involve the weak areas," he explained.

He added that physical therapy can help older people with disabilities, as well, such as relearning to walk after a major hip fracture.

And physical therapy can help children with developmental disabilities. Bob consults with the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, helping them design therapy for such children in schools.

The Physical Therapy Department at Charlevoix Area Hospital also works with people suffering from pain.

"We treat pain with deep heat, ultra sound and diathermy," the therapist said. "And we have techniques we can use for untreatable pain, such as transcutaneous nerve stimulation."

Patients with such soft tissue problems as bursitius and tendonitus can be treated at the department.

"Basically, physical therapy involves treating any disability which hampers mobility," Gorkiewicz continued.

Bob joined the Charlevoix Area Hospital in October and looks forward to the completion of the hospital's Expansion and Renovation Project, under which the Physical Therapy Department will expand again.

Pointing to the array of equipment, from exercycles which help patients with heart and lung problems, to special chairs for strengthening knee muscles, to whirlpools and trauma tanks, Gorkiewicz said he was particularly glad to see the development of the department because of the convenient service it will provide for area residents.

Forensics team gets good marks at state interpretation pentathalon

The Charlevoix High School forensics team was at Michigan State University Saturday to participate in the 2nd annual State Individual Events Fall Interpretation Pentathalon.

All Charlevoix participants finished high in the competition in at least one event.

Shari Barnes finished first in both humorous and prose; Mary Egler, in story telling; Kristy Mathews, story-telling and prose; and John Grooters, extemporaneous prose and story-telling.

Connie Ford said that Charlevoix was the only school other than Frankenmuth whose students all ranked in the top 20.

Trophies are given in overall awards to the top six winners. Kristy Mathews finished seventh and John Grooters tied with a second student for fifth place but was dropped to sixth place on percentage points.

She added that each team is limited to four students who must participate in five different interpretative events including poetry, prose, extemporaneous prose, humorous and story telling. Winners are based on individual rounds, perforinance, rank and percentage for the entire day.

MRS. WOODBURY RANSOM, a member of the Board of Trustees of Warren College near Asheville, North Carolina, was on the campus recently for three days of decision-making. The Charlevoix resident serves on the Library and Educational Policy and Faculty Affairs committees.

The trustees were joined during their visit by the college's Board of Advisors and Board of Church Visitors. These two groups help the college with more localized and church oriented viewpoints, respectively.

Warner Township in Antrim County will receive a $936 grant from the Department of Natural Resources for the development of groomed snowmobile trails this winter.

Warner Township is near East Jordan.

This is the first year of the Recreational and Snowmobile Trail Grants Program, which was created by a 1978 amendment to the state's Snowmobile Registration Law.

Co-op asks for $1 million rate hike

The Michigan Department of Commerce-Public Service Commission held a public hearing Monday on an application by Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative, Inc. of Boyne City to raise its wholesale electric rates approximately $1 million.

Northern Michigan sells electricity to three owner-members, Cherryland Rural Electric Cooperative of Grawn, Presque Isle Electric Cooperative of Onaway, and Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Cooperative of Boyne City. The three member cooperatives serve approximately 58,000 retail customers in 19 counties throughout the northern Lower Peninsula.

Northern's last wholesale rate increase was in December 1978.

CHARLEVOIX CHURCH DIRECTORY

Mother receives perhaps the most surface praise and the least real appreciation of anyone in our lives. She is all too often taken for granted: her wishes ignored, her advice scorned, her feelings forgotten; until the day it is too late. Her life is a mixture of joy, sarrow, love, comfort, anxiety, pride in her children and agonizing worry about their well-being. We are urged all through the Bible to honor our parents and to think of our mother as a symbol of wisdom and kindness; and it takes more than just a gift for a special occasion to do this. Come to Church and learn how to honor and appreciate your mother and be loyal to her memory all the year round.

The Board of Appeals convened with Councilmen Wood, Muma, Whitley, Porter, Timms, and Roloff present. Absent: None

The Board discussed a variance, as requested by Bernie Waid, Jr. to reduce the required side yard setback at his property on the north shore of Round Lake to allow construction of a residence over an existing boathouse and the addition of a two car garage. Joe Morris, representing the City Planning Commission stated that although the Commission had originally approved the variance, they had unanimously agreed at a subsequent meeting that Mr. Weid's request did not meet the criteria necessary to grant a variance. Thomas Pointner, attorney for Mr. Weston, a property owner within 500 feet of the proposed project stated his client's objections to the project and indicated that his main concern is that the property will be used for commercial purposes. Mr. Ward stated that his is not the case and that he plans to live in the residence. He further stated that he has owned the property for 30 years and that the project will prevent further erosion of the shoreline which he maintains is eroding at the rate of 6" to 1' per year. D. Boone, an adjacent property owner, stated that he had no objection to the variance being granted but would expect Council to grant him the same consideration. Richard Edwards, another area property owner, expressed concern that the granting of the variance would set a precedent. Councilman Roloff suggested that Mr. Ward return to the Planning Commission with a plan more suitable to the property.

Moved by Councilman Roloff and supported by Councilman Muma to deny the variance requested by Bernie Waid, Jr. of 601 State Street, to reduce the required side yard setback on his property on the north side of Round Lake from 15 feet to 1 foot 8 inches on the west side to allow construction of a residence over his boathouse and a two car garage.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen Wood, Muma, Porter, Timms, and Roloff. Nays: Councilman Whitley. Absent: None.

The Board of Appeals adjourned.

Deanno Balch, City Clerk

Samuel C. Supernaw, Mayor

City to use disposal site - still

The City of Charlevoix will continue to use its disposal site off US-31 despite a directive from the Department of Natural Resources to "cease operation."

The DNR recommended the closure after discovering three violations - 1) No license to operate a disposal site has been issued or applied for 2) The waste has been dumped into a water filled pit and 3)No attendant has been on duty and the cable at the entrance has been left open.

The city uses the site to dispose of trees, brush, limbs, leaves, etc. The DNR recommended the city take the waste to a licensed landfill, seek a license from the DNR or mulch the waste.

City Manager Jim Brinker will attempt to get the site licensed. He said the city will continue to use the site and there are plans to fence the area.

Ho! Ho! Ho!

Two weeks ago Santa came to Charlevoix by boat. Last week he paraded around town on a City of Charlevoix fire truck. For those youngsters who would like to see Santa before Christmas, he'll be at his workshop in East Park from 5-8 p.m. weekday nights. A photo feature on Santa's visit with area youngsters Saturday appears on pages 8 and 9.

Will township be included?

A second public hearing on sewer extension scheduled

A handful of city residents who would be served by an extension of the sewer along Stover Road say the project is too costly unless township residents are able to tap-in and pay part of the cost.

The Charlevoix City Council is considering extending the sewer 950 feet along Stover Road from May Street to the United Tool Craft property. Monday night council held a public hearing to discuss the proposed special assessment roll for property owners in the city who would be served by the sewer extension.

The total cost of the project is estimated at $29,650. The seven property owners to be served by the sewer would be assessed $22,565.96 - or $19.44 a front foot. The city share would be $2,332.80. In addition, the city would pay the additional cost to put in a 10 inch sewer line instead of an 8 inch line.

"Originally, it started out to be $9 a front foot and I could afford that," said one property owner. "But I can't afford these new rates."

The special assessments range from $1,652.40 (Kay Ball) to $6,197.47 (United Tool Craft).

According to City Manager Jim Brinker, if township residents were allowed to tap-in to the system - and some property owners have indicated they would like to - it would cut the cost about 50 percent for city residents. Residents would then pay $10.78 a front foot. Stover Road is a dividing line between the city and township.

Council will hold another public hearing on Jan. 7 to consider a special assessment roll that would include township participation in the project. The city cannot assess township residents. The city would bill the township a flat fee and the township would then determine how it would assess its residents.

In other action, council:

•Failed to receive bids on six voting machines. According to Brinker, municipalities in the state are switching to punch card voting making it difficult to sell the machines. He said Wisconsin might be the closest market. Brinker said he would check with the school district, too. "They buy lighthouses," croaked one observer. "Why wouldn't they buy voting machines?"

•Appointed, Dr. Jeff Porter as legislative coordinator for 1980 to the Michigan Municipal League.

•Agreed to a $15 Christmas bonus for all city employees.

•Hired Hill, Woodcock and Distel to handle the city's 1979-80 audit work at a cost of $11,500.

•Approved a dance permit for Duffy's Country Inn.

•Renewed the taxi cab license for the Arcade Taxi Service.

•Increased the city manager's pay to $24,000 annually. Previously, the salary was $22,500. The pay hike takes effect immediately.

•Approved a site plan for an 16 unit condominium development along Belvedere Avenue. The property is owned by Douglas Bathey. Earlier in the evening the Charlevoix Planning Commission had also approved the site plan. The concept for the development was originally approved by council nearly two years ago. It was agreed that the council at that time had approved side and front yard variances for the development. Seven of the 16 units will be constructed in the boathouse on Round Lake.

•Agreed to sell two city lots on Mercer Blvd. to adjacent property owners. One lot - 81 feet X 100 feet - will be sold to Otto Yemmans for $935. The second lot - 81½ feet X 168½ feet - will be sold to Dean Mikulski for $1,015. The city still owns a lot 81 feet X 83½ feet.

From 2-6 A.M.

Parking prohibited on streets

Parking on all Charlevoix streets and in public parking lots is prohibited between 2-6 a.m. until April 1.

City officials prohibit parking to make it easier to remove snow during the winter months.

Also, the Charlevoix City Council has banned parking on the west side of May Street and the north side of Garfield Avenue from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. Monday-Friday. School officials had requested all parking be banned on May and Garfield during school hours. A May Street resident said that students often block driveways and mailboxes when they park their vehicles along the west side of the street.

Council also will install two hour parking signs along Bridge Street in the downtown district.

Council received a petition from some shop owners who said that several employees of shops downtown continually park all day along the street leaving little parking for customers. City Manager Jim Brinker said the Police Department would enforce the two hour limit.

Early deadline

Because of the Christmas holiday, the Courier will go to press Monday morning. Therefore, advertising and editorial deadlines will be Thursday. The advertising deadline is noon. The editorial deadline is 5 p.m.

Big Brothers / Big Sisters launch drive for volunteers

Charlevoix County Big Brothers and Big Sisters has launched a major compaign to enlist volunteers as Big Brothers and Big Sisters to needy children.

The campaign whose theme is "Give a Gift of Friendship for CHRISTMAS" is focused on the week before Christmas, hoping that people will respond to the many youngsters who seek adult friendship and companionship.

There are currently 47 active pairs of Big and Little Brothers and Sisters in Charlevoix County.

But more than 30 children are on the waiting list.

Most Little Brothers or Sisters come from single parent homes where the remaining parent works full time, leaving little time for attention to the children.

Big Brothers and Sisters are people who volunteer time – a minimum of one hour a week is asked – to be with a young boy or girl.

"The emphasis is on fun in this organization," Jim McGarry Big Brothers/Big Sisters president says.

People who volunteer to spend some time with youngsters are not expected to spend money on their young friends. The time Big and Little Brothers and Sisters spend together can be used to talk, play games, go places, and enjoy mutual interests.

The emphasis of the organization is to provide an adult friend for youngsters who need adult companionship.

Big Brothers and Big Sisters are not expected to be counselors to the children, just concerned and caring friends who set a positive example.

Social worker Nancy Wood of Charlevoix oversees the organization, matching Big and Little Brothers, Big and Little Sisters,and providing moral support. She works closely with other agencies making referrals to counseling agencies whenever necessary.

To keep the focus on friendship and fun, Big Brothers and Big Sisters takes all its members and prospective members on five outings each year. Last year special trips included Beaver Island, Mackinac Island, skiing and sledding at Shanty Creek, and horse backriding.

Funds for Big Brothers and Big Sisters come from the United Way and the Juvenile Justice Fund, supplemented by the annual Christmas Tree sales (currently at Glen's Market in Charlevoix).

Children who become Little Brothers or Sisters are referred to the organization by family and friends, law enforcement agencies, schools and other organizations.

The low key but positive approach of Big Brothers and Sisters has received national recognition for its effectiveness in providing positive alternatives to children who might otherwise be left to aimlessly wander the street, finding sources of amusement that could lead to trouble.

It is hoped that this drive for volunteers will result in many adults (over 18) stepping forward to become the friend to a Charlevoix County youngster.

Big Brothers and Big Sisters in Charlevoix County come from all walks of life.

Experienced Big Brothers and Sisters have one sentiment in common - - they agree the friendship they have received from their youngsters makes them feel they receive more than they give.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Charlevoix County hopes others will make this same discovery.

Vet office to be closed

The Charlevoix County Veteran Counselor's office will be closed the remainder of the year. The office will re-open on the first Friday of the January.

Selling Your House by Gene Steele

THE CHANGING MARKET

The real estate market has had some boom years in the last decade. Prices escalated beyond belief in some areas, and turnover was fast. Some properties would sell and resell within months, with staggering profits reported. You've heard the stories.

Real estate is still selling, and selling well. Yet in many areas, across the country, the pace has slowed. The buyers who once raced to buy a house at its list price, for fear that it would be more expensive – or gone – next week, are now less eager and less anxious. They know there will be another house on the market next week.

Today, houses are selling – but they have to be sold. It's not enough to put a property on the market and sit back. That property requires the work of an expert. It requires and services of a real estate professional who knows how to price it, how to promote it, and how to convince a prospect that it's worth owning. It's no place for an amateur.

DNR says two sites contaminated

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has identified 268 sites where chemical wastes have contaminated groundwater.

Two of the sites are in Charlevoix County.

According to DNR officials, runoff from a road salt pile has contaminated groundwater at the county's road commission garage at Ironton. Also, runoff of various chemicals at the East Jordan landfill has contaminated groundwater there, officials say.

Gov. William Milliken said he has directed the DNR to give the site list wide circulation.

"I believe this subject needs full public discussion so that solutions may be developed," Milliken said. "These solutions must deal comprehensively with the problem, address the worst problems first and recognize that local governments and industry will have to bear their share of the costs of containing these existing and potential hazards."

The DNR pinpointed 63 sites that will receive top priority in clean up operations. On the top priority list are sites in Emmet and Antrim counties.

Road salt contamination was found in groundwater at the Emmet County Road Commission garage in Levering and phenol and other wood preservatives have been linked to groundwater contamination at an unknown industrial site in Mancelona.

DNR Director Howard Tanner said it would cost billions of dollars to clean up all the sites - most of which are in the state's heavy industrial areas.

"Only a small percentage of the sites identified by the DNR are known to be contaminated by poisonous chemicals," Milliken said. "The contaminants in the others need to be evaluated before proper corrective action is decided upon."

Unification at last

Editor:

The biggest cultural, social, and economic booster to unite lower and upper Michigan since the opening of the Mackinac Bridge across the straits is Michigan Bell's Straits Area Travelers Directory that has just been issued.

It is a telephone directory for all of Cheboygan, Emmet, Charlevoix, Mackinac, Chippewa, and Luce counties. Now, in this one handy and useful book, are gathered all the telephone numbers of all the tourist-related businesses, public service organizations, and churches in the larger Straits Area. Every tourist cuming to this area should have one. Local residents will find the directory most useful and valuable.

Michigan Bell is to be congratulated for its foresight creating this unprecedented event, which really begins a new era in the history of the Straits Area.

Making Charlevoix beautiful

Editor:

On behalf of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club, I am writing to express our appreciation for the work of the City Council, and Mr. Jim Brinker in particular, for their cooperation and helpfulness in our efforts to make this truly "Charlevoix the Beautiful".

We also would like to commend the Council and our merchants who have decorated the streets and buildings in such a fitting way for the holiday season. Those who only come in the summer are missing the glowing beauty that we find in our shopping areas at this time.

Sincerely,
Portia C. Crawford

Hopes not diminished

Editor:

As the first half of the 80th session of the Michigan House of Representatives draws to a close, I would appreciate the opportunity to speak to my constituency through your column.

There have been many disappointments on the Republican side of the aisle. Teachers' strikes, workmens' compensation, sunset laws and many other areas in need of revision and reform are but a few of the issues in which the Republican minority was ineffective. This was not because we lacked enthusiasm, cohesion and strength of purpose. We simply do not have the votes. As I have stated many times, there is no substitute for votes.

We do not flag in our efforts, however. We continue to offer legislation to correct inequities and put a rein on extravagance and waste. Our futile effort to get termination dates in the sunset laws is but one example of the failure of our caucus to get legislation passed that is of real benefit to the people.

The representatives from the heavily populated areas are in control, not only of the House of Representatives but also of the entire state. I don't mind admitting that it is downright disheartening.

My own interpretation of the duties of my office is to try to pass legislation for the greatest good of the greatest number, keeping in mind at all times the right of the individual. I can only say that I will keep on trying – that I will never lose sight of my goals in spite of discouragement and failure.

My hopes for the new year are not diminished. A person without hope is also without motivation and my motives are to serve to the best of my ability and according to the dictates of my conscience in order that our world and our society can be better and fairer for all.

I wish you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Sincerely,
Ralph Ostling
State Representative

Rounding first and headed for...

Editor:

Regarding "rights" to gill netting fish in the Great Lakes:

Court ruling, overruling and enfusion keeps a disinterested person interested as well as entertained. Admittedly prejudiced, in favor of the "undertog", we enjoy the Indians assertive efforts and success but are not insensitive to "adverse effects."

In taking full advantage of opportunity, and the law, during this questioning and questionable period of "legal rights", it appears that some Indians are seeing more clearly, and perhaps for the first time, what "America land of opportunity" is all about. And, we also note, that they are smiling a lot more these days.

Gill netting fish seen as a way of 'their' making it...some have decided to go for it. "It" being the envisioned quick–gain i.e. short term thinking like exploiting or taking advantage – 'legally' - of buffalo, natural resources and, vulnerable, humble and meek people.

Loving Indian persons, as those who know their beauty do, the first thought-concern, generated by personal experience, was that in their going for "it" - American style with "gusto" - they will lose 'more' than they will gain. For "what does it profit a man if he gains the whole world and loses his soul" (in the process)? But, in digesting more thoroughly The Word and food for thought, the soul-sense 'then' understood as being (or not being) in harmony with, or one-with, the higher spiritual nature of things, our first concern, though still valid, passes.

Given freedom, God bless America, the pursuit and realization of happiness that is 'lasting' is like the game of baseball. On leaving "home" there is no shortcut! To "score" the player must touch and circle 'all' of the bases 'before' heading back and touching home again. Concluding our view and analogy; it appears that the "smiling Indians" have rounded first, are just tearing for seconds. So, go Red..white and blue: Go! Amen! And thank you. Merry Christmas everyone!

The Medusa Cement Company contributed $3,000 to the United Way of Charlevoix fund drive Wednesday morning. Clem Wagner (center) presented the check to Dick Kenny (left), co-chairman of the drive, and Pat Donnelly, board member. Nearly $18,000 - which is this year's goal - has been collected in cash and pledges. United Way volunteers are still collecting donations. The Board of Directors will meet in mid-January - after the holiday season - to review the campaign and determine the exact dollar amount received.

Bus service works fine

I don't know quite how to write this piece and have it come out sounding like a public service announcement rather than a commercial puff.

It is about Charlevoix's new bus line – Delta Valley Tours – and what fine service it is giving the city, whether anyone knows it or not.

Last week, while my station wagon was in intensive care at Foehtman's I had an uppurtunity to try Delta Valley and am happy to report it is a highly satisfactory bus line. It sticks to its schedule within a minute or two, the drivers are courteous and helpful and the 11-passenger, road-hugging Dodge bus is warm and comfortable.

The only problem is, there's nobody aboard. Or at least almost nobody. Friday when I used Delta Valley for the first time, driver Stuard Smith had only two passengers; a little gal who works at Northern Michigan Hospitals and myself. Returning from Petoskey Friday night, there were only two passengers, a little gal who works for Northern Michigan Hospitals and myself.

All of which means business isn't all that red hot at Delta Valley, and it should be booming with gasoline both expensive and – let's face it – getting scarcer every day.

Unlike the last bus line to serve Charlevoix, Delta Valley has taken pains to schedule its runs between Charlevoix and Petoskey to suit the convenience of workers as well as shoppers.

The first bus of the day leaves Petoskey at 6:50 a.m. and reaches the Oleson Shopping Center in Charlevoix at 7:15 a.m. The passengers board (it doesn't take long) and the bus heads immediately back to Petoskey, arriving at the bus station near Haynes at 7:45 a.m. and at the Park Garden Cafe downtown a few minutes later.

If you start your job in Petoskey on or before 8 a.m. you should be able to ride the bus and get there on time.

A return bus to Charlevoix leaves Petoskey at 11:30 a.m., arriving and returning at noon. The third bus of the day leaves Petoskey at 5:10 p.m. (5 o'clock at the Park Garden) and reaches Charlevoix at 5:35 p.m.

Between times, Delta Valley make four round trips between Petoskey and Harbor Springs and once a day another bus makes a round-trip to Traverse City, leaving Petoskey at 8 a.m. and returning at 5:20 p.m. Unfortunately, this bus doesn't run through Charlevoix, but it does hit Walloon Lake, Boyne City, East Jordan, Mancelona, and Kalkaska.

In addition to carrying passengers, driver Ward Davis says the bus company also carried small packages for a single fare. This represents a considerable savings for small businessmen, in light of today's mileage reimbursement rates.

I wouldn't even hazard a guess as to why more commuters and travelers aren't taking advantage of Delta Valley, but fare may be a factor. A one-way ticket costs $2, which seems high at first. But it really isn't when you consider how all prices have risen in recent years and the high cost generally of running and maintaining an automobile.

There's another big plus, particularly during winter when road conditions are uncertain. Think how nice it would be to sit back and relax while drivers Ward Davis or Stuart Smith are left to worry about the snowdrift in front of Ed Shanahan's farm.

My big worry right now is that unless business improves markedly, Charlevoix, Petoskey and Harbor Springs will be left without a commuter service when fuel prices soar out of sight. Mind you, Delta tours hasn't threatened anything, but I, for one, would like to see the company remain in business a long, long time.

Iran, the economic spoiler

Harold Smith

The deterioration of our political relations with Iran has serious implications for domestic economics.

The most spectacular financial incident was the Administration's freeze on more than $8 billion of Iranian assets held in U.S. or foreign branches of U.S. banks. Other big depositors, notably other OPEC powers with close to $40 billion of claims were advised of the reasons for the move. They recognize it as a reaction to uncivilized behavior and in no way as a threat to their own holdings. Thus was avoided any panic that might have thrown the dollar markets into chaos.

Iranian oil is another matter. Though that nation's export goal of 3.2 million barrels daily is far below the 5 million rate under the Shah, it is still important. It represents over 10 percent of OPEC production and 5 percent of total world supply. The 750,000 barrels daily of Iranian oil which the U.S. was importing (about half as products refined elsewhere) until the mid-November cut-off was equivalent to about 4 percent of total U.S. consumption. The Administration believes this loss can be offset through increased conservation measures. However, there is the strong probability that the oil will not be lost to the U.S. market at all, if it does continue being exported by Iran. Once it enters the world market, Iranian oil is indistinguishable from many others of similar grade. It thus becomes eligible for resale to U.S. importers. This is not to say that such a re-routing would not have an adverse effect.

Iranian oil was previously sold to U.S. importers at contract prices of no more than the $23.50 official OPEC maximum. It will now move to the spot market at upwards of $40 per barrel. Applied to all former U.S. imports of Iranian oil, the annual cost would inerese by $4.5 billion

What does all this mean to the U.S. economy? It points to higher oil prices. With spot prices riding so high, the OPEC nations will hardly be satisfied with official contract prices barely more than half as much. Thus it is freely believed that OPEC prices will rise at year end up by upwards of 20 percent on top of the 60 percent increase already made this year. Indirectly, then, the Iran turmoil has made the battle against inflation that much harder for us all.

Innovation? Try "Tusk"

Anne Kelly

Some say that innovation is coming back into the world of rock music. After watching ABC's 20/20 report on the New Wave Rock, one is compelled to wonder if innovation is worth it. The whole concept of this zany rock form involves borrowing from the adolescent rock n' roll of the 50's and creating a new, and very strange protest image for the 80's.

What are punk rock groups protesting? Anything political, anything "establishment" of course, nuclear power, record company monopolies - you name it. They choose to perform in basments of 2nd rate hotels and shun, in general, anything that glitters. All of which would be admirable if the groups weren't so crude and in some cases, grotesque in the final analysis. Both their execution of tunes and appearance are often equally raw. At kindest, the critics classify New Wave rock as having a garage band beat.

Now, I think there are more subtle ways to be innnvative. Ways to get out of the 70's psychedelic, disco-mania rock rut. Fleetwood Mac has done it with their latest L.P. "Tusk."

Promotera were probably pretty sure they would never be able to come up with another Rumours success story (the autobiographical album of the band's love and loyalties turmoil). And besides, the turmoil has subsided, mates have found new matches, Lindsey Buckingham even got a regular hair cut – it was time to go abstract. Which is where "Tusk" went. The album is a double record offering about $15.98 which shows a lot of confidence in innovation at a time when business is reportedly lagging in the music industry.

The title cut is now a hit single of its own accord. Mick Fleetwood explained in an interview with People Magnzine, that the "title itself has no bearing on anything. We just liked the sound of the word, in the abstract."

"Tusk" has an abstract, primitive sound – bike a tribal ritual dance. But bike all Fleetwood Mac musical endeavors, the sound is contagious and strangely appealing. They have managed to be innovative without losing credibility.

Lighthouse restoration will take two more years

Meet Charlevoix

Brian Molitor is Director of the Beaver Island Lighthouse Project for the Charlevoix School District as well as Coordinator of Environmental Education for 10 counties in northwest Michigan. This week he tells the Courier about his work and some plans for the future.

COURIER: How long have you been in Charlevoix?

MOLITOR: Since last January. I was hired as Assistant Director of Environmental Education for the schools and from that I went to Director of Environmental Education and also became Director of the Lighthouse Project. In addition, I work with the Traverse Bay Intermediate School District and the Charlevoix schools on the Youth Employment Training Program.

COURIER: What is the Lighthouse Project?

MOLITOR: We're talking about the old lighthouse on Beaver Island. The purposes of the project are the historical restoration of the buildings, creation of an Environmental Education Center, and the employment of area youths.

COURIER: What does the Charlevoix School District have to do with the lighthouse?

MOLITOR: The federal government deeded the lighthouse and surrounding property to them in 1975 after it was declared surplus property. The school district wanted it to use as an Environmental Education Center.

COURIER: What kind of a program did you have over there last summer?

MOLITOR: We had 70 young people in two four-week periods and 14 staff members. The young people were male and female 16 to 21 years old from economically disadvantaged homes. They worked on a variety of projects, including constructing nature trails, working in the forests, renovating the buildings, and preparing and serving food. While doing these useful things, they were getting paid, receiving school credit, and learning. At the end of the session, each young person had a talk with his staff advisor, discussed what he had accomplished, and received a letter of recommendation. The kids hated to leave. Since then we have received letters from some of the kids who have gotten jobs and they say our letters of recommendation helped.

COURIER: How were these young people selected for the program?

MOLITOR: They were referred by the schools, Social Services, the Michigan Employment Services Commission, among others. Some of them were school dropouts, potential dropouts, and adjudicated youth.

COURIER: What did you hope to accomplish with the program?

MOLITOR: We wanted to provide meaningful employment, teach them good work habits, deal with their problems, give them a chance to earn high school credits, teach them basic environmental concepts, and most of all, provide them with a better self image.

COURIER: How was the program financed?

MOLITOR: From grants. We had a special Governor's grant and a ONR grant and received help from CETA and about 20 other agencies. It was a cooperative effort.

COURIER: Are you going to be able to have a similar program next summer?

MOLITOR: Yes. We plan on having two five-week sessions and more young people.

COURIER: Do you do anything with the lighthouse during the winter?

MOLITOR: Right now we have eight Beaver Island youths doing some work for which they are receiving Industrial Arts credit.

COURIER: What's left to be done on the project?

MOLITOR: We have at least two years more of work on restoration of the buildings. We also want to create a biological laboratory and dark room. Eventually, when the major portion of the restoration is completed, it will be an environmental camp used mostly by Charlevoix area youth. It will be a beautiful learning center. It's such a natural place -- one square mile of sand dunes, cedar swamp, climax forests, and bogs. It's an ideal place for an environmental center

COURIER: What other projects do you have in mind for northwest Michigan?

MOLITOR: We want to create as many environmental camps in northwest Michigan as we can. It's a matter of getting started. We just began work on one with the Mancelona school system that has limitless possibilities. We also are working on one in Cadillac involving restoration of school owned cabins, some erosion control work, and laying out an interpretive nature trail system.

COURIER: You recently did some work on Garden Island, didn't you?

MOLITOR: Yes, we did some restoration work on the old Indian cemetery there. Pete Spieles was the supervisor. I wrote the grant proposal, set up the program, and organized the material. It was a good project. I think it was the first time the ONR and the Indians worked together so successfully. I would like to do more work in the cemetery over there and also on the state cabins

COURIER: Where did you grow up?

MOLITOR: I was born in West Branch and grew up in Saginaw. I graduated from Arthur Hill High School there then went to Delta College and received an Associate certificate in Conservation. After that I went to MSU and received a bachelor of science degree in Natural Resource Development

COURIER: Where have you worked?

MOLITOR: I needed money right after college so I worked for General Motors in Saginaw for a year. But I wanted to get into Natural Resources so I went to Cadillac for two years and worked with the DNR and the U. S. Forestry Service. My duties were everything from running a chain saw to patrolling cross country ski trails at Caber Fae. As a special project, I set up a comprehensive site plan for the Caber Fae Winter sports Area. The county gave me an independent snowmobile crew and I worked on building a 30 mile trail.

COURIER: You sound as if you enjoy your job here.

MOLITOR: I do. It's a nice area, the people I work with are great, and the Island people have been most supportive.

COURIER: Do you live in Charlevoix?

MOLITOR: Yes, except for the four months I spend on the Island in the summer.

COURIER: What do you do in your spare time?

MOLITOR: I play basketball for the Townhouse -- we're having a good season. I also like to fish and hunt.

COURIER: What message do you have for parents of young people?

MOLITOR: As a result of my job working with youth, I would encourage parents to join the Youth Discussion Group in Charlevoix. Parents should take a more active role and spend more time with their children, and care for them. That's what I hear most from troubled kids.

55 referred to program in 1978

Youth program helps take burden off the courts

Fifty-five young people who might have become involved with the courts last year were referred to the Youth Diversionary Program for counseling and placement in alternative youth activities.

The little-known Youth Diversionary Program is funded by a grant from the Office of Criminal Justice with matching funds from the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners. It is supervised by Doug McCombs of the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services with William Aten assigned the job of Youth Diversionary Worker.

Aten presented his annual report to the Board of Commissioners last week. It showed that of the 55 young people referred to the program last year, 39 were referred for offenses that could have sent them to Juvenile Court.

Twenty-nine of these 39 were referred by law enforcement agencies, Juvenile Court, or the Prosecutor's office. Sixteen of the 39 had committed criminal offenses and 23 had committed status offenses (incorrigible behavior, running away, truancy, and school problems). To date, none of the 16 criminal offenders has committed a second offense, although two of the status offenders were resistant to counseling and had to be sent elsewhere.

Services provided these young people were basically short-term counseling for them and their families, weekly meetings with the Diversionary Worker, and checks with teachers and school administrators.

Fifty-five percent received only counseling service, while 30 percent received counseling and referral to agencies which could provide for their specific needs. Eleven different agencies were used, including, Big Brothers-Big Sisters, Charlevoix-Emmet Counties Youth Activities Program, CETA Summer Work Program, and Michigan Youth Services.

The "Hire a Teen" program was devised to provide an "odd job work service" for the county and 54 young people were placed in jobs during the summer.

A breakdown of the statistics for the first year of operation of the Youth Diversionary Program shows that referrals were made as follows:

Juvenile Court, five; police, 17; state police, three; sheriff, one; prosecutor, three; schools, seven; community agencies, six, parents, 10; neighbors, two; and self, one.

The criminal offenses with which some of them might have been charged included breaking and entering, two; destruction of property, two; shoplifting, seven; drugs, two, soliciting funds illegally, two; and prumiscuity, one.

Status offenses included incorrigible behavior, 12; runaways, four; and truancy-school problems, seven.

According to Aten, plans for the second year of operation of the Youth Diversionary Program are now being formalized, with greater emphasis planned in the areas of making more referrals to activities and other programs, teaching parents to be more effective as parents, and teaching the young people responsible behavior.

It's Christmas . . . time to renew our faith in the great principles of peace and brotherhood.

Rayders upend Chiefs

Ken Otmanowski scored 25 points Friday night to lead Charlevoix to its first win of the season, 68-66, over Cheboygan.

The Rayders are 1-2 on the season and travel to Grayling Tuesday night. Grayling is 3-0 after upseting Michigan-Huron Shores favorite Gaylord.

Cheboygan gave the Rayders all they could handle Friday night. The Chiefs led 18-14 after the first quarter. Charlevoix bounced back to claim a 32-29 halftime advantage, but the Chiefs cut the gap to just one point, 48-47, after three quarters. In the fourth quarter Charlevoix opened up a nine point lead, but Cheboygan kept pecking away and finally narrowed the deficit to two points before the clock expired.

"Cheboygan has some good shooters," Rayder Coach Dave Moyer said afterwards. "They're going to beat some teams."

So far Cheboygan is winless in three starts. The three losses, however, have been by a total of eight points.

Moyer was pleased with his team's play - although the Rayders shot just 62 percent from the free throw line.

"Free throws are still hurting us," he said, "but we cut down on our turnovers (13) and fouls (16) and that's a good sign."

Moyer juggled his lineup for the Cheboygan game, inserting Paul Hoffman at guard. Hoffman responded with six points. Senior Scott Morgan, who normally starts in the backcourt, sat out the contest with a viral infection. Moyer said he is doubtful against Grayling.

John Grooters, perhaps Charlevoix's best outside shooter, aided Otmanowski in the scoring department with 15 points - nine in the fourth quarter. Sophomore Gary Drury chipped in with 11 points in a reserve role.

Charlevoix shot 44 percent (25-57) from the field compared to 49 percent (27-55) by Cheboygan. The Rayders had a decisive edge on the boards, however, 36-23. Otmanowski had 11 rebounds and Gerard Doan 10.

Earlier in the week, The Rayders bumped heads with Gaylord and came out on the short end of 58-53 score.

Charlevoix grabbed an early lead, 13-12, before Gaylord took control. The Blue Devils had a nine point halftime advantage and appeared to have a lock on the game when the Rayders put together a late rally - cutting the deficit to three.

Despite the loss, Moyer said "the kids did a good job." He said his team "shot better," played more "aggressively," and boxed out on the defensive boards.

Morgan was the Rayders top scorer with 17 points. Otmanowski added 14 points to go with his 13 rebounds. Charlevoix shot 44 percent from the field (22 of 50).

Gaylord was led by Jerome Garrett with 14 points. Joe Andrews and Scott Glasser added 10 each. The Blue Devils outrebounded Charlevoix, 38-33.

In junior varsity play, the Rayders were victorious against Gaylord, 63-44, but took it on the chin at Cheboygan, 53-49.

Mark Loper canned 22 points to lead the scoring attack against Cheboygan.

Charlevoix is 3-1 on the season.

Despite four Rayder pins

Gaylord grapplers top Rayders

Despite three pins in the last five matches, the Charlevoix Rayder wrestling team dropped a 48-24 decision to Michigan-Huron Shores rival Gaylord.

The Rayders are now 0-2 on the season.

Charlevoix won four of the 13 matches - and all four were by pins. Heavyweight Ken Wojan recorded the quickest pin when he defeated Russ Carpenter at 56 seconds of the first period. For Wojan it was his second pin of the season. Also registering pins for the Rayders were Mick Belfy (119), Allen Bergmann (155) and Kevin Whitley (185).

Anniversaries

Mr. and Mrs. Edwards

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Edwards, lifelong residents of this community, observed their sixtieth wedding anniversary at a family gathering held at their home recently.

Attending the event were their sons and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Edwards and Louis Edwards, their two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Mr. Edwards and the former Rena Cram were married Dec. 10, 1919, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Brown, on Stover Road near the couple's present home. Attending the couple at the wedding were Helena Bates, a teacher in the Charlevoix County Normal School at the time and his brother, Edward J. Edwards. Mrs. Edwards' recalls that the wedding was held during a severe December blizzard. Prior to his marriage, Mr. Edwards had been a telegrapher and during World War I served in the U.S. Navy in this capacity.

Mr. Edwards was always associated with Edwards' Florists which was established on May St. by his father, Albert E. Edwards. Following the sale of the business in 1951, they lived in the Los Angeles area for several years and, in recent years, have spent the winter months at Auburndale, Fla., a rail center for the state of Florida where Mr. Edwards, a railroad buff, has observed railroads in operation. The couple remained in Charlevoix this winter for health reasons and are presently in the Victor Breece home on Eaton Street. They are members of the United Methodist Church.

Mr. Edwards was born in Charlevoix Sept. 10, 1895. Mrs. Edwards was born here April 30, 1899.

District meeting held

The Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 and its Auxiliary recently hosted the quarterly meeting of the Lower 11th District meeting of the American Legion at the post home here.

District President Sophia Stafford of Alpena chaired the Auxiliary meeting. Mrs. Marguerite Bowers of Long Lake, District 10 membership chairperson, presented awards to those auxiliaries who have met their 100 percent membership quotas. Committee chairpersons receiving awards were from East Jordan, Ellsworth, Bellaire, Alpena and Mackinaw City. Presidents of those auxiliaries and past district secretaries were also honored at the meeting.

At the men's session, District commander Gerald Evans chaired the meeting. Eugene Dahlgard, District Service officer, was the guest speaker. Committee chairman made reports, it was stressed that an enlarged membership is important to carry out the work of the organization. Members were urged to write their legislators relating to veterans affairs to gain their support. Members were especially asked to contact their Congressmen regarding the proposed cut in finances for VA hospitals. Concern for the American hostages in Iran was voiced at the meeting.

Plans were also made for the 11th District meeting to be held in Petoskey March 9.

Prior to the business sessions of both organizations, the local Auxiliary served a dinner to the visitors which numbered 68.

At the dinner past and present officers were introduced and honored. Among the local members honored were Louis McKenzie, past district committeeman, Harry Pearsall, District Committeemen, Mrs. Bindi, district chaplain, and Mrs. Lillian Hall, past district secretary.

Expressions Unlimited - also known as Frank's Florist - recently re-opened after a fire on the morning of July 18 destroyed the building. The new structure - on the same site - has 3,000 square feet of showroom. Owners Ron Taepke (left) and Roger Peacock (right) decided against constructing a greenhouse, however, because of economics. Expressions Unlimited carries a wide variety of plants, wicker furniture, cards, candles, crystal and porcelain. Seated in the middle is Perrie Peacock.

C.A.R.I. X-Mas party Thursday

The fifth annual Committee for Action for Rural Indians (CARI) Christmas party will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at the Emmet County Fairgrounds in Petoskey.

The party is for area Indian families from Harbor Springs, Petoskey, Pellston, Burt Lake, Alanson, Boyne Falls, Boyne City, East Jordan and Charlevoix.

In 1978, more than 320 Native Americans attended the dinner and received small gifts. For many families, this event is the highlight of the Christmas season.

Because of limited funding, the success and continuation of the event is dependent on the benevolent contributions and donations of area supporters.

"We would appreciate any donations (money or materials) that you can make," a spokesman for the group said. "Any assistance would be appreciated."

For more information call 547-4434 or 547-4435. A suggestion list (cash, meats, gift certificates, boots, mittens, scarves, candy, nuts, coffee, paper, plastic table service, fresh fruit, Christmas decorations, etc) is available. If you would like to contribute something that needs to be picked up, call one of the above telephone numbers.

Prize winning replica offered for sale

Back in 1933, the late Frank J. Novotny of Charlevoix put the finishing touches on a boat model he had been working on for four years, and, at the suggestion of a friend, decided to enter the model in a contest for model boats at the Chicago World's Fair.

The boat, taken to Chicago by Logan Thompson on his ship the "Silvia", won first place in the contest, and Novotny was acclaimed by all who saw his masterpiece.

Today, the model (of the French battleship "La Couronne") is being offered for sale by members of the Novotny family, who hope it will be purchased by a person or group of persons willing to place it in the Charlevoix Historical Society Museum when it opens next year.

The battleship "La Couronne" was built in 1638, a 72-gun ship carrying a crew of 620. It featured carved emblems of land and sea figures, angels and cupids, the symbols of navigation, an artistic figurehead, and great poop lanterns.

It took Novotny and his son, James, 2,468 hours to fashion and complete the model, according to a story in the Charlevoix Courier in April, 1945. It is 32 inches in height and 32 inches in length and consists of 3,483 pieces of material, every one of which was turned by hand. The entire model is built of copper and brass, including all ropes and masts, and is enclosed in a protective glass shield.

The senior Novotny was a native of Czechoslavakia who came to Charlevoix in 1926 from the Detroit area. He learned the artistry of metal-working at an early age and traveled all over southern Europe as a young man, becoming interested in ships after seeing the sailing vessels in the ports of Italy.

During the depression years, Novotny and his son started working on the model ship in a converted chicken coop on their farm on Novotny Road in Marion Township, which later led to employment by Robert Bonthron, a local plumber, for whom he did much work in copper and brass, including one-of-a-kind weathervanes.

Members of the Board of Directors of the Charlevoix Historical Society have expressed an interest in the model ship and would like to have it in the new museum to honor an early Charlevoix artist.

Further information about the model may be obtained by contacting a member of the Novotny family at 547-2541.

Christmas Cookie Recipes

MOM'S SCHUCH'S ENVELOPE CHRISTMAS COOKIES

Dough
1 lb. butter
1 lb. flour (4 cups)
12 egg yolks

Filling
1½ cups sugar
2 lbs. walnuts in shell (fresher finely ground)
12 egg whites

Mix butter and egg yolks till creamy add the flour and mix. When dough is mixed well you now take little bits of dough and roll in your hands to form little balls. This will make 90 to 115 balls or cookies.

Put the formed balls in the refrigerator in a covered container overnight. Store egg whites in a covered container till ready to use.

When ready to bake heat over to 375 degrees. Get cookie sheet ready - do not grease. You now need a little flour and a pastry sheet or a bread board and a rolling pin.

Mix the filling. Be sure the egg whites are at room temperature. Beat egg whites till almost stiff add the sugar and beat till stiff. Fold in the fine ground nutmeats. Put one teaspoon full of filling in each cookie.

Take a few cookies or cookie balls out of refrigerator at a time. When balls are pliable roll out paper thin on a very lightly floured board or pastry sheet. Put a teaspoon of filling in the center of each cookie. Now fold one half over the other half and lightly pinch the ends. Put on an ungreased cookie sheet and bake for 10 to 15 minutes at 375 degrees.

When cookies are cool roll carefully in powdered sugar and serve. Only sugar as many as you are serving at a time. Keep cookies in a closed container in refrigerator for fresher cookies. They will keep longer this way than at room temperature.

Note: When cookies just start to show a little brown or gold color on the ends you pinched that means your cookie has baked long enough. If you overbake your cookies will become dry and break more easily.

Gladys M. Schuch

P.S. This recipe may sound complicated but it really is not. Today this will cost you around $5. We love these cookies. We hope all of you who try them will enjoy them as much as we do.

MINCEMEAT COOKIE ROLL

1½ cups light raisins
½ cup apple butter
¼ cup of 9 ounce package condensed mincemeat
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon finely shredded lemon peel
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon finely shredded orange peel
¼ cup chopped mixed candied fruits and peels
¼ cup chopped almonds

.....

2 cups all purpose flour
¼ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 slightly beaten eggs
2 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

To prepare the filling in saucepan combine raisins, apple butter, mincemeat, ½ cup sugar, lemon peel and juice, orange peel and juice, mixed fruits and peels, and the almonds. Cover and simmer about 20 minutes, stirring occasionally to break up mincemeat. Set aside to cool. In mixing bowl stir together flour, ¼ cup sugar, and the baking powder. Cut in butter or margarine till mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add eggs, milk and vanilla; mix well. On lightly floured pastry cloth, roll dough to 12 inch square. Spread cooled mincemeat mixture to within one inch of edges of dough. Using pastry cloth as a guide, roll up dough jelly roll fashion; pinch seams and ends to seal. Place roll, seam side down, on lightly greased and floured baking sheet. Excess dough left over from squaring the cookie roll may be rolled out with a rolling pin. The shape should be round with the mincemeat mixture placed in the center. The cookie is then rolled over tart like and crimped on the edges with a fork. Bake in oven 350 degrees for 35-40 minutes. Until nicely browned. Cool; slice to serve. Makes two dozen ½ inch slices.

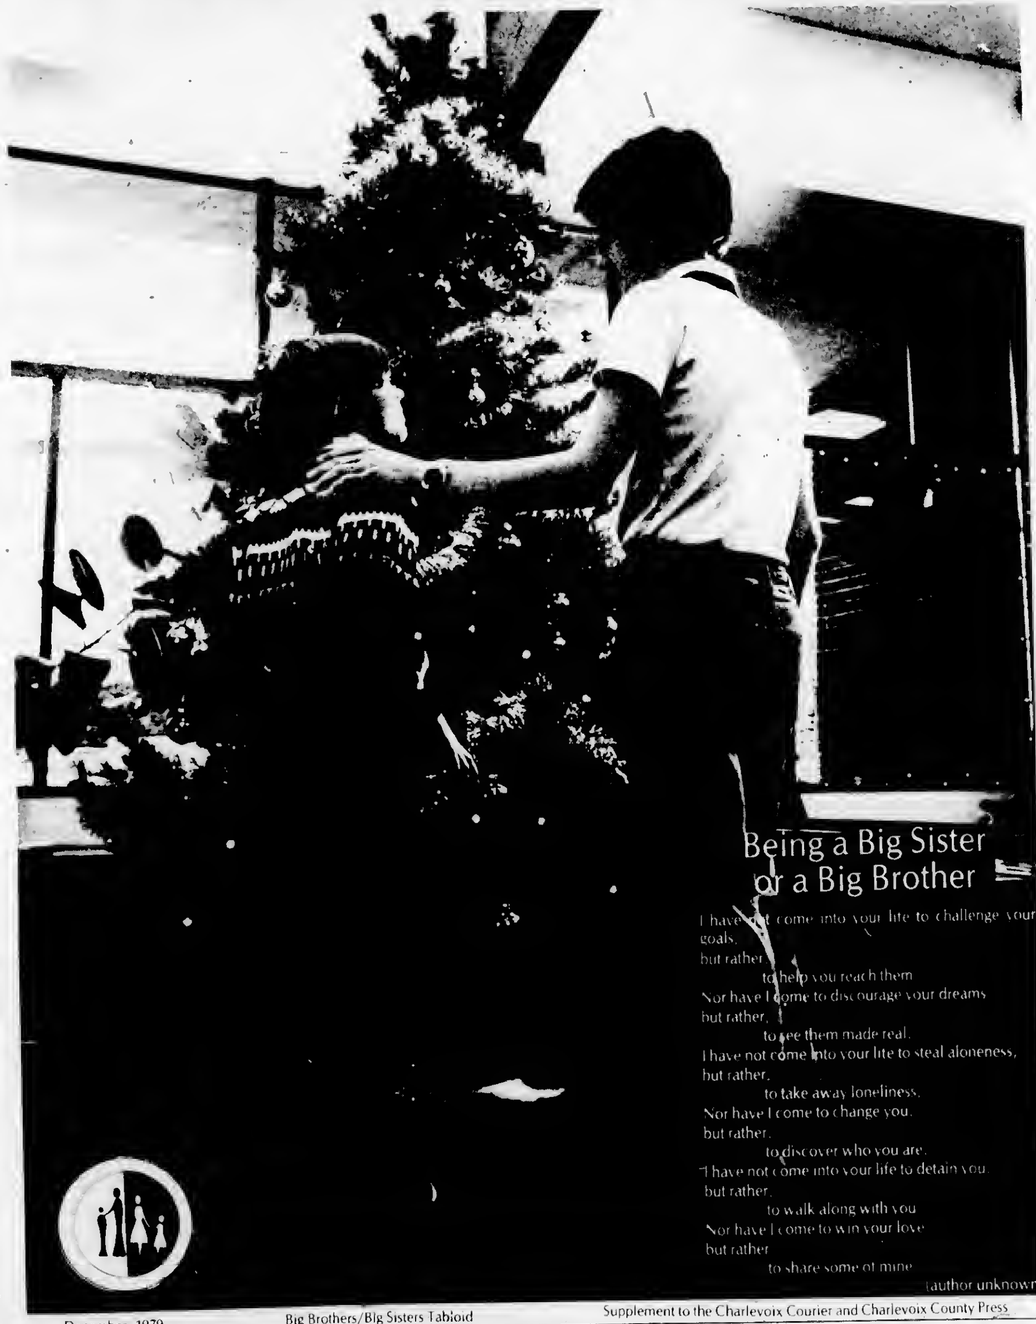
A Gift of Friendship



Being a Big Sister or a Big Brother

I have not come into your life to challenge your goals,
but rather
to help you reach them.
Nor have I come to discourage your dreams
but rather,
to see them made real.
I have not come into your life to steal aloneness,
but rather,
to take away loneliness.
Nor have I come to change you,
but rather,
to discover who you are.
I have not come into your life to detain you,
but rather,
to walk along with you.
Nor have I come to win your love
but rather to share some of mine.

Big-Little Brothers-Sisters: Caring Counts

Darrin Podaskalny and Dennis YoungDyke have been "Brothers" for five years.

Darrin looked at his Big Brother and said, "He has given me support when I needed it. He's made me think a lot, straightened me out, like an older brother."

Dennis YoungDyke answered his 14 year old Little Brother's testimonial, telling an on-looker, "I've learned as much from him as he has from me.

"I am sure all Big Brothers are looking for something. Companionship," Dennis said.

"We both like sports," the Big Brother observed.

"And Darrin enthusiastically finished the thought, "We go to football and basketball games. And we both like to hunt.

"I was 11 when Dennis took me squirrel hunting the first time. He taught me how to use a gun the right way."

Darrin, now in 9th grade, is a tall young man, who can look his Big Brother straight in the eye.

Dennis became Darrin's Big Brother when Darrin was 9 years old. Darrin's father had left home and his mother turned to Big Brothers for help.

Dennis who is a machine mechanic at the East Jordan Iron Works said, "This has been a good experience. We've stayed friends and will stay friends. We share a lot together.

"Our families have become friends. My wife and I have Thanksgiving and Christmas with Darrin, his mother and sister."

One of Darrin's fondest memories is of a family vacation last summer when Dennis took him to Wyoming.

Asked what was important about having a Big Brother, Darrin said, "When I talk, he listens."

"More than 11 million children currently reside in single parent residences..." U.S. Census Bureau

Friendship Has Many Faces

When Joey was eight and his sister Anne, five, their father was sent to prison. Both children had been victims of abuse. While their mother worked full time, their alcoholic father lost job after job, taking his frustrations and anger out on the children. He was eventually arrested for robbery.

Joey and Anne were referred to Big Brothers/Big Sisters by the Charlevoix County Health Department.

Joey's Big Brother was a young man who worked an early shift, so he met Joey after school. In the winter they bowled, talked, went to games, or worked on Joey's school problems. Summers they spent their time together pursuing the Big Brother's favorite sports -- fishing and motor boating.

They were Big Brother - Little Brother for nearly ten years. Today they are still close friends.

Joey is a sophomore at Michigan State University, studying biology -- an interest he credits to his Big Brother and the summers they spent on the water.

Anne's Big Sister is an older woman who still finds time to call at least once a week to chat with her Little Sister. She has helped Anne obtain a number of part-time jobs and has listened sympathetically as Anne talked of her problems growing up.

Today Anne is in high school, doing well, and considering a career as an executive secretary.

"I have a lot of older sisters, but that's not the same as having a Big Sister, "Julie Murdick, 14, said, smiling across a table at Judy Elzinga.

"It's great being a Big Sister," Judy responded. "I can talk with Julie, because she is growing up the same way I did. I went through many of the same things."

Julie and Judy have been Little and Big Sisters for two years. They do a lot together -- nothing big, just small things that give Julie a chance to talk with Judy, to have fun with a special friend.

"At first I didn't think having a Big Sister would be something I liked," Julie confessed. "I didn't know if I could talk to her like a real friend."

Judy had her worries too. When she opened her restaurant in Charlevoix she wondered if she had the time to do Julie justice.

"When I began this business I offered to find her a new Big Sister, but she said, 'No!'" Judy remembered.

"We always time," Julie said. "And just last night she gave me some very good advice." Julie added, mysteriously.

Julie also said two years ago she had school troubles. "I used to be so bad in my school. Now everything is pretty good. I even got my first A, in math, this time," she announced proudly.

How often do they get together?

"Sometimes I will call Julie and we just talk on the phone. Other times she rides with me to Petoskey, so we have more time," Judy said.

The two friends get together when they can. Their is an easy going relationship, of trust and friendship.

And they already have memories that bring warm smiles to their faces.

"Remember the outing to Shanty Creek? You made that large figure eight on cross country skis, and began slicing it up like a pie. I kept falling down," Julie's eyes danced with laughter.

"You kept falling, but we keep trying," Julie added.

What Is A Big Brother or Big Sister?

A Big Brother or Sister is an average person who thinks he or she can be a friend and guide to a child seeking help.

A Big Brother or Sister has friendship and companionship to offer.

A Big Brother or Sister is a volunteer.

A Big Brother or Sister is a person, over 18, who understands and appreciates the art of friendship.

Trips and Picnics Purposes -- Fun

Last winter 75 Little Brothers and Sisters, and their adult friends, joined Hilton Shanty Creek's annual "Irish Shanty Holidays."

Racing down the hills in over sized inner tubes, learning to cross country and downhill ski, spinning across the snow on flying saucers, left the kids and adults with indelible memories.

That was just one of the five annual outings that Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Charlevoix County host for their members.

Last summer the group visited Beaver Island. In the spring they had spent a day riding horses at Sogonosh Stables in Harbor Springs. In October they biked around Mackinac Island. A ride on the Boyne Valley Railroad, followed by games and a picnic ended the summer. One of the favorites each winter is swimming in the heated indoor pool at Charlevoix's Lodge.

Whether playing games, taking leisurely hikes or enjoying the hot dog roast picnics that are always part of the day, the children and adults have a chance to meet each other, to share ideas and experiences.

"These occasions are especially important for the kids, who discover they are not the only ones with Big Brothers or Big Sisters," Nancy Wood comments.

Getting to know each other and having fun are the only requirements on these trips.

Ask Santa to Bring a Big Brother

Jim, a friendly, bright, eight year old, hopes Santa Claus will bring him a Big Brother. His own father died when he was nine months old.

Jim's mother, too, hopes a Big Brother will come along for him. She is an older woman who finds that the age difference between her son and herself makes communication increasingly difficult. She knows he is somewhat coddled by not having a man with whom he can roughhouse, play and learn.

Jim needs a patient and kind Big Brother.

A Friend's Example

When George was nine years old he tried drugs and alcohol. His mother worked full time. His after school hours were spent aimlessly. When the school realized the extent of the trouble he was headed toward they called on Big Brothers.

For the past two years George has had a Big Brother who takes him fishing, hunting, shopping and camping on weekends.

George's Big Brother has not offered him a lot of advice, nor has he made any efforts to change George, except by example.

George has steadily changed, however. He goes to church with his Big Brother. His grades are good and so is his school behavior. And at the age of 11 his interest in drugs and alcohol has given way to building models and playing foothall.

Two Brothers Wait

Ed (14) and John (16) have been hoping to find Big Brothers in the Boyne City area for the past two years. They have lived alone with their widowed grandmother, who is badly crippled from arthritis, for ten years. Their father left their mother when the boys were very young. Then their mother was hospitalized with a mental breakdown.

Ed and John are young outdoorsmen. They like to fish and hunt. But it has been hard for them living alone with no older man to guide them. They are having some problems in school and John is considering dropping out.

They hope to find understanding Big Brothers who will take an interest in them, offer them guidance and friendship. On the brink of becoming adults, they seek adult friendship which they are eager to return.

Jim McGarry, Charlevoix Accountant, Big Brothers/Big Sisters President.

Nancy Podskalny (Rgt) a student at Grand Valley, former Little Sister, has won the Jack Rosendahl Memorial Scholarship two successive years.

She Listens -- Supports

Nancy Wood has been the professional behind Charlevoix County Big Brothers and Big Sisters since 1976. As Director of the organization it is her job to carefully match Big and Little Brothers and Sisters, to be available for professional counseling and to keep the organization running smoothly.

Nancy holds a degree in Social Service from Southern Methodist University. She grew up in Phoenix, Arizona, where she first became interested in social services, working with Arizona Indians.

During World War II she married Ray Wood of Charlevoix, then a cadet pilot instructor at Thunderbird Airfield, Phoenix. While raising their five children, Nancy has served as County Juvenile Officer, Girl Scout Leader, Cub Scout Den Mother, Sunday School teacher, and held down several other jobs.

As Big Brother/Big Sister Director she organizes virtually all the group's activities, from special outings to Christmas Tree sales, works closely with other social service agencies receiving and making referrals, and above all, remains available to provide support for the young people and adults of Big Brothers and Big Sisters.

He stooped to help one small boy

Snow swirled along the sidewalks, spinning against the gutters as Irwin Westheimer glanced out the window of his Cincinnati office building.

If was February; 1903 had just begun its second month.

Westheimer would have turned once more to the stack of papers on his desk in the offices of the family liquor business, except his attention was caught by a small figure. Looking closer, Westheimer could see it was a child and a small dog being battered by chill winds.

The child seemed unaware of the storm around him as he lifted the lid of a garbage can and peered into the container.

Westheimer watched as the child began rummaging through the garbage can, pawing at the refuse eagerly. He chose some bits and pieces carefully, rejecting others.

When Westheimer could stand it no longer, he wrapped himself in his topcoat, pulling his muffler snuggly around his neck and dashed into the street.

The child looked startled to see the man in the flapping coat sail toward him. He stopped his garbage can treasure hunt and seemed poised for flight as Westheimer drew near.

Before the child could run, Westheimer called to him.

"Hey, you, what are you doing there?"

"Nothing, sir. Only trying to find something to eat," came the reply. The child, a boy, could have been eight years-old but his eyes made him appear much older.

Westheimer's hand, placed gently on the youth's shoulder, could feel the bones beneath the tattered coat.

"Would you like a bowl of soup, my boy?" asked Westheimer.

They trudged to a nearby restaurant and settled themselves into a quiet corner. The meal the lad ordered could have satisfied a field hand. Not a crumb remained when he finally leaned back in his chair, a smile beginning to bloom.

That was Westheimer's first meeting with his young friend, hut it was not his last. Before long, Westheimer, then age 23, and several of his friends began to meet regularly with young men who needed friendship and support. That's how the first chapter of Big Brothers was formed.

In 1908, the first Big Sisters organization was formed in New York City. The two organizations merged in 1977 and were chartered by Congress.

Today, 385 agencies, including Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Charlevoix County, Inc., serve more than 130,000 youngsters.

Working with school-age boys and girls, the Big Brothers and Big Sisters provide friendship and support at a time when it is most needed.

The goal of the organization is to encourage positive inner and outer changes in young people, including a strengthened sense of self-worth and improved relations and performance at home, in school and in the community.

And the benefits to the volunteer adults are as rewarding as to the children.

But what of Irwin Westheimer? What became of him?

He still lives in Cincinnati and celebrated his 100th birthday September 19. On that day, a plaque was placed in the heart of Cincinnati on the Skywalk overlooking Fountain Plaza. On it is Westheimer's personal philosophy:

"No man ever stands so straight as when he stoops to help a boy."

Sheriff steps forward

Having grown up in an one-parent home, myself, I know the need of having a second parent or second adult to relate to. I also see the ramifications of the absence of the second adult in many instances that I am confronted with in my role as Sheriff of the County. I am so impressed by the Big Brothers/Big Sisters Program in Charlevoix County that I plan on becoming a volunteer Big Brother myself

Brinker says

'Charlevoix has great potential for the future'

In your opinion, what was the major accomplishment in 1979?

Personally, it was the change from the comptroller's job to the manager's job. That was a surprise. I didn't come here for that. I think the major accomplishment in the city was the stability in City Hall. From what I understand, there had been a lot of unrest in City Hall in the past couple years. I think we have kind of stabilized things again, and that's important. The morale of any employee group is important. Low morale affects work habits. Cooperation (among employees) is important.

.....

What caused the unrest?

Uncertainity. We had a change in mayors and a change in administrators and I don't think the employees knew exactly where they stood. They didn't know who was going to be fired, who was going to be demoted or shipped around.

.....

What are the city's top priorities for 1980?

To work on the marina, sewer facilities plan and to make improvements in the water system (water tower).

.....

What is planned at the marina?

We plan to replace six piers at the foot of Mason Street and four (piers) between Clinton and the Sundew mooring. We also hope to upgrade the water supply and electrical system there.

.....

What about the sewer facilities plan?

The city has been working on that for a number of years. I think it started in 1974 and it still hasn't been approved by the state. That's one thing I'm going to be working very hard on this coming year - to get that moving along. The state has to approve each step of the plan. There are three steps and we're only on step one. One thing we would like to do is separate our combined sewers. Presently, our storm water and sanitary sewers are both going into the sewage treatment plant. It's really unnecessary for us to treat the storm water. We also would like to install sewers in areas where we are having pollution problems.

Where are the pollution problems?

Most are outside the city. The facilities plan includes Charlevoix Township and portions of other townships. Our problem is in our sewer lines and the bottlenecks we have with the combined sewers. We have to solve that problem before we take in too many more customers. There's going to come a time when the state is not going to approve anymore sewers around here because of that problem.

Are there any other priorities?

We plan to start on sidewalk improvements . There's a definite need to replace and repair sidewalks. We plan to start in the downtown area and then move out. Also, we'll work on downtown parking. The first step will be the purchase of the Beaver Island Boat (Co.) building on Clinton Street.

.....

Is purchasing the property a certainity?

A year ago, Jim Brinker was hoping to become the new comptroller in Charlevoix. He not only became comptroller, but he became city manager after the Charlevoix City Council asked for Norm Gaffney's resignation. In this question and answer article, Brinker talks about the job and what lies ahead in our city.

I think so. It's just a matter of working out the language in the purchase agreement. I think the downtown area is vital to the city. Charlevoix has a very unique downtown because of the water, park and marina and I think it's important that we maintain it and provide off-street parking.

.....

If the city does indeed purchase the property on Clinton Street, what would be the next step?

To establish a parking authority. The parking authority would carry the ball and get the merchants involved to help pay (assessments) for the improvements. It's included in the purchase agreement that we can tear the building down at any time.

.....

Has there been any talk about the boat company leaving Charlevoix?

No. In fact, when they offered to sell us that building they wanted a 25 year lease on the docks. Of course, the charter only allows for a five year lease. So there's no talk at all about moving.

.....

Council has agreed to impose two hour parking limits on Bridge Street to keep employees of downtown businesses from parking on the street all day. Do you think the two hour restriction will work?

Yes, I do. I think Bridge Street parking is there for the customers of the shops and not the employees. Business people have brought this upon themselves by allowing their employees to park on the street all day. It's not meant for that. It's meant for the shoppers.

The city has also had parking problems at the airport. What is being done there?

Council has formed a committee to work on a parking plan - we're working on it right now - to fence off a parking area. People will be charged to park there. There will be various rates - daily rates, weekly rates and monthly rates. Presently, people are parking their cars there haphazardly. Some are left for long periods of time. It's not controlled. We will police it (parking area).

When the previous city manager left, he indicated that council was reluctant to let the city manager run the city. Do you find that true?

No. I think city council wants a manager to run the city. They don't want to be involved with the day to day operations.

At Jan. 7 meeting

Stover Road residents to learn of new assessments for sewer

The Charlevoix City Council has concluded its business for 1979 and will not meet again until Jan. 7.

Council normally conduct workshop meetings on the second and fourth Mondays of the month. However, due to the holiday, council has cancelled its workshop session tonight.

When council does convene on Jan. 7 two issues that will most likely dominate the meeting will be the proposed sewer extension along Stover Road and the proposed purchase of the Beaver Island Boat Company property on Clinton Street.

Last week council held a public hearing on the special assessment roll for property owners in the city who would be served by the sewer extension. The assessments ranged from $1,652.40 (Kay Ball) to $6,197.47 (United Tool Craft). Residents argued that the assessments ($19.44 a front foot) were too high and that township residents should be allowed to tap-in and help pay for the cost.

If township residents were allowed to tap-in to the system, it would cut the cost about 50 percent for property owners in the city. Charlevoix City Manager Jim Brinker has been asked to prepare a special assessment roll based upon township participation. The estimated cost for the project - which would extend the sewer 950 feet from the United Tool Craft property to May Street - is $29,650.

Council is also expecting to hear from representatives of the Beaver Island Boat Company. Council is negotiating for the company's property on Clinton Street. The boat company - in return - is seeking long term security on its boat lease at the city dock.

The proposed price on the Clinton Street property is $90,000 with no capital outlay or interest to be paid by the city as long as the dock lease continues. The city would like the property for parking.

Representatives from the boat company had asked for a 25 year lease on two berths at the city dock. However, under the city charter, five years would be the longest lease permissible. Council is considering writing the lease agreement so that should the city fail to renew the company's lease or increase the rent during the 25 year period, the interest on the purchase of the building would come due which would give future councils an incentive for continuing the lease.

Paul Osterberg has also inquired about the two berths at the city dock. Osterberg has said the city is not deriving enough revenue from the docks to cover expenses. He has been asked to submit a bid for the two berths in writing.

The city has been receiving $2,700 for the rental of the two berths. Council is proposing to increase that to $3,600.

Memories of my pal, my father

Why is it that a taste or smell of an absnost forgotten flavor or fragrance can send one's mind back many years?

In the dentist's chair, this happened to me a few weeks ago. My doctor packed a tooth with a substance like gum, and said, "How does it taste?" After a moment I answered, "Just like the spruce sap my father used to take from a tree as we walked through the woods in early spring and we chewed it as gum." He looked on the bottle and said, "By Jove, there is rosin in it."

That night I thought of some of the things dad and I used to do together, and I recalled what good pals we have been.

Today, with the guarded and restricted plants and factories, our grand-children miss a great deal by not being able to "help" their fathers as they earn their livelihood.

My father worked for the Robert Buetel Co., in Bay City, a business which included ice, coal, fisheries, wond and canning. I remember the smell of warm wood, as it seasoned in the dry kiln, later to be made into boxes for shipping fish. The fish would be properly cleaned and packed with crushed ice, in the boxes, which were nailed shut and expressed to many parts of the country.

In winter, I would watch them put up ice. Dad and I would ride out to the ice-fields (usually in an ice-boat) where he would pick a good smooth area. He would see that the markers laid out guide lines for the men to saw blocks into correct sizes. Teams would load the ice on the drays and another team would bring it in to the entrance of the ice-house, where it was pulled up a slide. A man would release the hook that had pulled each load to the top just at the right time, and men inside the ice-house would scoot the blocks along runs to all corners. Others would stack and cover the ice with sawdust. There was a real technique to each of these handlings. It was exciting to stand away back in a safe corner and watch.

No matter what my dad's job, I rode to work with him in a basket on the front of his bicycle, or right beside him on any other conveyance on the job. I'll never forget how I "helped" to drive the big, handsome Belgium horses on an ice-route, if the regular man was ill. Those horses were beautifully groomed and cared for every evening. They were handsome in their studded harnesses, highly polished, with long red tassles bobbing up and down on the sides of their heads. They pulled a truck filled with a ton or more of ice on a route they were as familiar with as the driver. I often held the reins, but I realize now I did not need to. They stopped where it was necessary and did not move until my dad jumped in the seat and said, "Tck-Tck."

I would also hold the reins when we would have two or three teams hitched to a huge dray, loaded with approximately 100 bushels of tomatoes in crates. (During canning season, dad would have to inspect produce at its source, and we would go out with a dray and bring back a load to the canning factory.) I felt so tiny on top of this load.

During one canning season, I had a very good friend, Helen, who was ill with scarlet-feaver. I had collected 90 cents from our friends for flowers for her and was delegated to get them. As we entered town with our load, I was helped down to go to the florists to make my purchase. I wanted pink carnations, (I still love them) and soon I came out with a long face. They were a $1 a dozen. Dad dug up the extra dime, although I imagine he went without some tobacco that week, and I was able to present the carnations to my friend.

Many times I was allowed to watch the canning of navy beans, string beans, tomatoes and pickles in the large canning factory off Midland Street. I had watched my mother can at home in glass jars, but this was fascinating to watch the full and capped can come off the line. (I wonder if automobile manufacturers got the assembly line idea frnm a canning plant?)

I have known my dad to work from four o'clock in the morning to ten o'clock at night. He never even thought of an eight hour day, if there was a job to be done. He would help the fisherman ice and load their nets into the tugs, before they left, at daybreak. (They iced the nets to keep them wet, as they spread out and lowered into the water much better.) He would stay until the last pound of the tons of fish that would come in, was packed, iced and ready to ship.

My father was Mr. Buetel's right hand man, and was often sent to one of the branch offices to "straighten out" some difficulty. He would be gone for weeks. One fall, he had been to Bayfield, Wisconsin, for months, and before he came home, he shaved off his handle bar mustache he had always worn. I hardly knew him. I would have nothing to do with him. I would glance at him, and his eyes would be twinkling at me, but I would burst out crying. This went on for weeks.

He made trips to Duluth, Minn., Thousand Islands, Beaver Island, Charlevoix, Marquette, and other places. I never could figure out how he got along in those places without my "help."

Years later, when Mr. Buetel died and the Company was dissolved, dad bought the branch office in Charlevoix, and went into business for himself. I was then old enough to do his bookkeeping, banking and emergency deliveries.

My dad was always a hard worker, many years for the Buetel Company and many years for himself. He retired at 81, and he could work along with two forty year olds and tire them out. He was like "My Wilbe"; he could "do anything."

Olive Mildred Eckinger, later Mrs. Roy MacArthur, and now married to Hugh Scott, is the author of this story. She lives at LaCroft during the summer. Her father, Dave Eckinger, was once harbormastor of Charlevoix and once owned a fishing business here. He died some years ago.

Selling Your House by Gene Steele

HAVE YOU HEARD THE LATEST?

Rumors abound when it comes to residential real estate. There is usually the story about the house around the corner, and the happy sellers who got $75,000 - or was it $90,000? - for the little place they'd bought for $50,000 a few years back. Your friends will top that with the tale about the "For Sale" ad that attracted two would be buyers who proceeded to bid for the privilege of paying MORE than the asking price.

Some of the stories you hear are true. Many of them, though, are half truths embellished with wishful thinking. They may give you an idea of what's going on the real estate market, but it won't be an accurate one. If you try to plan a market price and a sales campaign based on what you've heard, you're likely to be way off base.

The real estate professional deals in facts, not rumors. We stay on top of the market at all times. We know the REAL price paid for the house around the corner - and all the houses around all the corners in the neighborhood.

Charlevoix County to get $733,470 in state revenue sharing monies

Charlevoix County will receive $733,470 in state revenue sharing monies, Sen. Mitch Irwin has announced. Irwin said that $11,637,569 in state revenue sharing monies has been included in the 1980 Grants and Transfers Budget for the 37th District.

The Legislature appruved that budget in Lansing before adjourning for the Christmas hobdays.

According to Irwin, who chairs the Senate Committee on Municipalities and Elections, each of the 19 counties in his district will benefit from this appropriation.

"Revenue sharing returns a proportion of the sales and income taxes levied by state government to the communities where they originated," Irwin explained. "And in no area of the state are those monies needed more than the 37th District where communities have fewer financial resources than the larger, metropolitan areas of Michigan."

Among those specific appropriations that will be going to the 19 counties located in the 37th Senatorial District is $259,923 to Alcona County; $1,511,151 to Chippewa County; $398,607 to Alger County; $1,347,658 to Alpena County; $568,559 to Antrim County; $733,470 to Charlevoix County; $729,611 to Cheboygan County; $274,671 to Crawford County; $1,597,470 to Delta County; $665,091 to Emmet County; $1,025,829 to Iosco County; and $214,204 to Kalkaska County.

Luce County will receive $255,456; Mackinac County, $406,061 Montmorency County, $199,502; Oscoda County, $171,615; Otsego County, $403,471; Presque Isle County, $544,593; and Schoolcraft County, $390,627.

Irwin pointed out that the bulk of those monies will be remitted to the various cities and townships in quarterly payments during the coming year.

Your Opinion

Thanks for the help

Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the citizens of Charlevoix and Petoskey for the support they have provided the Air Force men and women of Detachment 6, Bayshore. You have, through individual kindness and collective community attitude, made us all feel a little less like strangers in your midst. I hope that your sons and daughters who are serving away from home are as fortunate as we are, especially during the holidays when thoughts of friends and family "back home" bring on a sense of loneliness and isolation.

Recent evidence of your support is the generous donation of gifts for our detachment Christmas party provided by the listed individuals and businesses. We all thank you, Charlevoix and Petoskey, and wish you a happy Christmas and New Year.

Sincerely,

Valves not faulty

Editor:

Please allow me a moment to clear up some misinformation contained in a December 12 front page article, "Faulty Valves to Shutdown Big Rock."

There is absolutely no truth to the headline's reference to "faulty valves" nor to reference of "defects" in the valves as written by the reporter. To the contrary, the valves (there are more than two) are in proper working order, and are performing their intended design functions.

The facts are:

1. From lessons learned at Three Mile Island, the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission is mandating Consumers Power Company and other utilities throughout the country (which own nuclear plants) to make required modifications to assure that now-safe operations are even safer. These requirements go into effect January 1, 1980, and Big Rock intends to comply.

2. Among the requirements at Big Rock are: 1) indicators showing whether certain relief valves are open or closed, and b) control modifications that will require action by an operator to reopen containment isolation valves after they have automatically closed.

3. To comply with the above requirements, additional controls, wires, etc. will be installed.

4. These modifications could have been done during the most recent shutdown, but needed equipment had not arrived.

It may be helpful to compare one requirement to a car door. The door may operate fine, safely, get tested periodically, and is reliable. But a new Federal law may require that the driver of a car has to know when the door is open. If the law also states one could not drive one's car after January 1, 1980 unless something would tell the driver the door was open, one would either have to quit driving the car, or else make a modification (if the person is law abiding).

Those are the facts. There are no "faulty" or "defective" valves involved. Such inferences make informing and educating the public about nuclear power much more difficult.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
John J. Popa
Senior Engineer
Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant

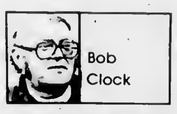
Put it in writing

Poor George, he put his foot in his mouth



Bob Clock

Poor George Romney. He's intelligent, dedicated, well-organized, highly estimed and handsome in a grandfatherly way.

But he doesn't know enough to keep his mouth shut.

His recent comments on the Equal Rights Amendment are an example.

In his new position on the governing board of Wayne State University, I would not expect Romney to spend ten seconds worrying about the ERA, which has passed in Michigan but still must claim at least three more states before June, 1982, before it becomes the law of the land.

Actually, ERA should have been a dead issue this year and would have been if Congress hadn't extended the deadline for passage. But that's a different story.

The point is that no one should be really interested in what Romney has to say about ERA because as a member of the WSU board he has so many other important problems on his hands. It is not fair to expect him to waste himself on issues that aren't really pertinent to his position.

Yet this week he gratuitously treated us to his opinions of the Equal Rights Amendment, including his belief that ERA is supported by gang "moral perverts" who are out to undermine the sanctity of the family.

Holy Mackinaw! Those are fighting words if I've ever heard them.

There is no question that a few persons with quaint sexual preferences may have come out in favor of ERA. But there is also no question that the vast majority of ERA supporters are straight, gung-ho, god-fearing, 100 percent American men and women who wouldn't even know a "moral pervert" if they ran into one on Bridge Street.

But Romney, for some obscure reason, has chosen to throw down the gauntlet by branding all of the backers of ERA with the same iron. Which is just plain dumb. One of the first things I learned when I was growing up are that categorizing or generalizing – except in the broadest context – are the lazy man's way out. In news work, generalizations must be avoided at all costs.

The effect of Romney's remarks on the State Legislature – which is more or less the parent organization of the WSU Board of Directors — was electric. Thirty-two legislators of both parties and sexes already have demanded that Romney resign from his post at WSU and others will probably join the general protest.

Gov. William Milliken, who has long been an active supporter of ERA and who appointed Romney to the university board, thinks such a drastic move is unnecessary. So does Romney, who says he won't quit, even if Milliken asks him to.

And both men are probably right. Romney's ERA comment in and of itself is not sufficient to deprive the state of his presence on the WSU board.

However, if Romney's views on ERA serve to color his relations with other members of the WSU board, and, indirectly, the students it serves, then perhaps he would be doing everyone a favor by stepping down.

After all this, you might be surprised to learn that I am on the same side of the ERA question as George Romney – but for different reasons. I find no quarrel with the equal rights, equal pay and equal opportunities implied by the ERA. But as the father of three little girls, I can see no way around the conscription of women as well as men if ERA ever becomes the law of the land. And I don't want my little girls to march off to war. It's as simple as that.

My friends, of course, assure me that I'm all wet, pointing out that the nation could if it wanted draft women today. And they're probably right. But if ERA passes and we become involved in a knock-down, drag-out fight with the Arabs or the Russians or the Tonkinese, there is absolutely no way my little girls are going to avoid being drafted. If we ever reinstitute the draft under the ERA, we will have to have universal conscription. There are no two ways about it.

Am I selfish? Of course I am. Do I really mean that I would deny my little girls the privilege of fighting for their country? You bet I would.

'Ashes In the Wind' a turn-off

Anne Kelly

Somehow I feel as if I have been watching one of those old hero-villian-heroine movies of long ago.

The heroine has a Southernbelle accent, the hero is hairy and generally virile. He is a Union doctor with dedication worthy of the Hypocratic oath. The villian is the North in the land of Dixie.

I'm reading Ashes In The Wind by Kathleen E. Woodiwiss. I'm not going to finish Ashes In The Wind. And I know now why I never read Shanna, Ms. Woodiwiss' last romance novel. If ever there was a reason to rebel as stereotyped housewives and mothers, the reason is here in a single $4.95 paperback.

If there are truly among us, women who must sublimate to the extent one must sublimate in reading this kind of book, I promise to send one case of bon-bons to each for the afternoon soaps and/or a bottle of Reunite in hopes of stirring up some genuine romance in their lives. Believe me girls, there are better things out there – both in the real world and in the world of literature. Here is a sampling from the first and long awaited love scene. Are you ready?

Cole (Yankee doctor): "A kiss I would have," be murmured thickly, "lest I grow weary of the wait. Come." He pulled her hard against his chest. "Give me a sampling of your wares that I might better anticipate your return."

(later) after one kiss he, of course, wants another "Not – another?"

Alaina (Southern belle) stared at bim, confused, until the sudden realization dawned. She blushed furiously but managed to give him a tantalizing taste of the velvet laugh.

"Of course not, Captain. But I do have other duties, you know."

Well, I realize that even Scarlett O'Hara had a way of sounding kind of schmaltzy at times. But Gone With the Wind had something Ashes in the (same) Wind cannot boast or even claim modestly. Even more than Scarlett and Rhett, it had style and substance.

This book was given to me in hopes of hurrying along the forces of nature. "Guaranteed to induce labor for an early delivery of your fifth child," was the kind intention. Despite the fact that I indeed brought forth a child prior to due date, I must confess that it could not have been the result of titillation upon reading Ashes In The Wind. It was the flu. But, in all fairness, I did not complete the book, and perhaps it redeems itself in the last hundred pages. If it does, I will gladly eat my words, my bon-bons, and drink the wine.

Dogs probably invented optimism

Erma Bombeck

We got to talking the other day about optimism and it occurred to me that the only ones in the world who are actively practicing optimism today are dogs.

In fact, I'll go one step farther and suggest that dogs probably invented optimism.

We have a small Yorkshire terrier (who should be owned by a good trial lawyer) who has sat by my chair at the dinner table every night for nine years waiting for something to drop.

He knows we have a family history of never feeding a dog at the table.

He knows we have children who have the agility to grab for a cookie in mid-air and catch it in their teeth a good three seconds before it hits the floor.

He knows I've never been decorated for cooking.

Yet, meal after meal, Murray keeps his vigil... his body rigid and poised to spring... his eyes shiny and darting... his every muscle quivering.

The dog lives on hope. Take the case of Murray and my mother. She has never made a secret of how she feels about dogs. To her dogs are mobile germ machines with rapier toenails used to shred nylons who cannot keep their uncivil tongues in their heads. ("You never know where the tongue has been!"

For eight years my mother has knocked on the door, then yelled, "Put that beast in the utility room or I'm not coming in." Yet for eight years Murray has greeted her happily at the door like she was covered with chicken fat.

Personally, I don't know how Murray does it.

He runs to the door with an enthusiasm reserved only for a victory at the polls at least 30 times a day. There's never anyone at the door for him.

When you put him in the car to take him for a ride, he goes crazy with anticipation. Yet he has never gone anywhere but to the vet for shots.

I have watched him in the yard chasing lizards. For nine years he has stalked and pounced until dehydration and exhaustion set in. Yet he has never admitted that the last time a dog caught a lizard, the lizard was on a leash.

Last night a sad thing happened. I dropped one of my cheese biscuits to the floor. Murray had been waiting all of his life for such a moment. He pounced on it, sniffed it, and then walked away from it.

My husband said, "Welcome to the real world, Murray."

Independent oil companies deserve tax exemption

When we talk about the "oil companies" we think of the huge major oil companies. There are, however, fewer than 30 really large companies in the United States.

There are over 10,000 small businesses in the U.S. directly involved in the extraction and distribution of oil. Many of these independents employ fewer than 10 people and have assets of only a few wells. Individually, they account for small amounts of oil, but together they produce tremendous quantities. These independents represent more than half of the industry's exploration and production capacity.

During the Senate consideration of the Oil Windfall Profits Act, the independent oil producers were recognized as distinct enterprises whose businesses are of an entirely different nature than that of the large companies. The Senate voted to exempt from the Windfall Profits Tax, the first 1,000 barrels per day of oil produced by the independents. This exemption will allow thousands of small companies to continue their independent, often risky operations, whose success is sometimes considered marginal at best.

Several recent studies have indicated that such an exemption will allow the United States to supply more oil for its own consumption, thereby helping us to achieve a higher degree of energy independence. The U.S. Bureau of the Census recently reported that the independents are reinvesting 105 percent of their net revenues in new oil exploration and development. This exemption will allow such reinvestment to continue and even increase.

Under the 1,000 barrel exemption, it is estimated that 14,500 new wells will be drilled; domestic recoverable oil reserves will be expanded, by the equivalent of 1.5 billion barrels of crude by 1990, 300,000 additional barrels of oil per day will be provided by 1987, and our nation will save $48 billion in import costs by 1990.

As a supporter of the Windfall Profits Tax bill which passed the House some months ago, I believe the exemption for independent oil dealers is in the best interest of our country.

The U.S. Department of Interior has announced that Michigan will receive $10.165 million for its share of the Land and Water Conservation Fund budget.

An attempt was made in Congress earlier this year to cut the level of funding for the program substantially. While I favored alloting $359 million for the fund, the flouse Appropriations Committee recommended only $290 million. The compromise of $300 million was agreed to by Congress last month. Although Michigan's share was down from the $12.4 million we received last year, it is substantially more than the $6.2 we would have gotten with the House Appropriations version.

The L&WCF is used to provide funds, on a matching basis, to local communities to assist them in developing recreational facilities that would otherwise be too expensive for the communities to build.

Because of the delay in agreeing on the funding level, the deadline for submission of full applications for the state DNR has been extended to January 31, 1980. Pre-applications for 1981 funding should be filed by March 15, 1980. Local communities should contact their regional planning commissions for assistance in filing.

'P.S. The Added Touch' opens in Market Mall

COSMOTOLOGISTS at "P.S. The Added Toich" include Pat Smalley (seated), Judy Timmerman, Donna Harvey and Ruth Geeck. Missing is Rosemary Follette.

Despite inflation, people will still do two things, says Pat Smalley, 1) eat and 2) look nice.

Pat is the owner of "P.S. The Added Touch," a new hair and beauty care salon in Charlevoix. The salon opened in the Market Mall last week.

"Charlevoix is growing and I think it can use another (beauty) shop," Mrs. Smalley said.

"P.S. The Added Touch" will employ five cosmotologists - Pat, Manager Donna Harvey, who has 16 years experience, Ruth Geeck, who has six years experience, Rosemary Follette and Judy Timmerman.

The salon will offer complete hair and beauty care for the entire family. In addition to hair styling, the salon offers manicures, facials, peticures, colors and permanent waves. appointments can be made by calling 547-2604.

The salon is open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday. On Monday and Thursday, the shop will be open from 8 a.m. until 8 p.m.

"I really like this kind of work," Mrs. Smalley said. "And I like being my own boss."

Mrs. Smalley and her husband moved here 11 years ago. Prior to opening her own beauty shop, Mrs. Smalley drove a bus for the Charlevoix School District. In fact, she still substitutes for the district.

Scott Morgan lands an opening enroute to basket

Rayders blitz cold shooting Hurons

Rogers City basketball coach Dennis Lyk must have wondered Friday night if there was a lid on the basket.

His Huron basketball team had all sorts of problems trying to put the ball in the hoop as Charlevoix coasted to a 64-28 triumph.

Rogers City connected on just 11 of 50 field goal attempts for 22 percent against the Rayders.

"It was a poor shooting night for Rogers City," Rayder Coach Dave Moyer said afterwards. "The ball just wouldn't fall.

"Our kids worked very hard defensively which created extra pressure. It was a good win before the holidays."

Charlevoix made a rout of the game soon after the opening tipoff. It appeared the Rayders would hold Rogers City scoreless in the first quarter until Kevin Selke hit a jumper from the corner with 13 seconds left. That basket came after Charlevoix had scored 12 unanswered points.

The Rayders pushed the margin to 25-8 at half as Moyer began to substitute freely. The score mounted to 41-14 after three quarters.

From the field, Charlevoix shot 40 percent on 26 of 65. The Rayders were 12 of 19 at the charity stripe for 63 percent. Charlevoix garnered 28 rebounds to the Hurons 20 and committed 19 turnovers to Rogers City's 11. A big difference - in addition to shooting percentages - was in the number of steals and assists. Charlevoix had 15 steals and Rogers City had two and the Rayders had 21 assists to the Hurons six.

Gary and Jeff Drury paced the Rayder attack. Gary scored 11 points and brother Jeff added 10. Selke had 10 for Rogers City.

The win improved the Rayders record to 2-3. Earlier in the week Charlevoix bowed to Grayling, 81-72.

In that contest, Grayling took control early building up a 10 point halftime lead, 45-35. The Rayders stormed back to cut the deficit to three, 57-54, after three quarters. And with just over two minutes remaining Charlevoix grabbed the lead, 68-66, before the roof caved in.

"Mistakes really killed us in the last two minutes," Moyer said. "I think a lot of it was due to our inexperience."

In the fourth quarter, Moyer played predominantly three sophomores, a junior and senior Ken Otmanowski. Two seniors - Scott Morgan and Jeff Peters - missed the contest due to illness.

"Grayling is an improved team," Moyer added afterwards. "They like to run and gun like Harbor Springs."

The Rayders actually shot better than Grayling, making 26 of 55 for 47 percent. Grayling shot 46 percent. But the Vikings put the ball up 76 times, connecting on 35.

Charlevoix had trouble at the free throw line, hitting on 20 of 36. The Rayders were also guilty of 27 turnovers.

The Rayder scoring attack was led by Ken Otmanowski with 19 points, Mark Loper 16, John Grooters 11 and Gerard Doan 10. Otmanowski also grabbed 14 rebounds, Gary Drury added 11 and Doan nine.

The Rayders will resume play on Jan. 4 at St. Ignace.

In junior varsity play, Charlevoix beat Grayling, 73-65, and Rogers City, 75-28.

Against Grayling, the Rayders got off to a sluggish start, trailing 16-11 after the first quarter. But a big second quarter gnt Charlevoix rolling. The Rayders led 33-27 at half.

Five players scored in double figures for Charlevoix - Ross Carey and Mike Schmidt both had 17, Van Sloan 13, Scott Kelly 12 and Dave Buday 10.

Against Rogers City, the Rayders had no trouble, bolting to a 23-7 first quarter avantage. It was 37-11 at half and 55-15 after three quarters.

Sloan led the attack with 15 points, Mike Schmidt added 14 and Kelly 11.

The Rayders are 4-1 on the season.

Jeff Drury scored 10 points in Friday's win

Explain the bond proposal that has been drafted for the proposed water tower.

Residents will be voting on whether or not the city should issue $500,000 in general obligation bonds to construct a water tower. With the general obligation bonds, citizens will reap a two fold benefit - 1) the interest rate is lower on general obligation bonds than on revenue bonds, which means less taxes and 2) paying for the tower through taxes means they'll be able to deduct that off their state and federal income tax. I think this is especially helpful for those people on fixed income because they'll get most of their money back. If the city were to issue revenue bonds, that would mean an increase in water rates to pay for the tower.

Cities throughout northern Michigan have been increasing rates (water, electric, sewer, etc) to cover rising costs. Charlevoix has increased its electric rates but not its water rates. Is a change in water rates forthcoming?

The water rates have not changed since 1974. We are not proposing any rate changes for the next fiscal year, but we will be studying the rates. The electric rates were increased to help balance the fund. We've lost money the last couple years in that fund. Our rates were set too low. We were buying wholesale at 3.1 cents per kilowatt and selling it for 4 cents. There wasn't enough of a profit margin to pay for the expenses (maintaining lines, capital improvements, etc). We hope to build some surplus in that fund so we can continue with our capital improvement prugram (burying lines underground).

In this fiscal year, an extra mill was levied to raise additional funds to operate the city. Will the millage be increased again next year?

At the present time I do not plan on proposing an increase. We can live within that millage (11 mills). I think we can maintain the services. It will mean tighter control, though.

.....

A recreation committee has been formed. What's its purpose?

The committee's purpose is to plan for the future recreational needs of the city. The committee is just getting organized.

.....

Speaking of recreation, what has to be done yet at Mt. McSauba?

There's still some work to be done on the back side of the hill. That's got to be seeded because we're having some erosion problems. As far as the snow making machine, that's not dead. What we're trying to do is get some Coastal Zone Management money for Mt. McSauba. Money set aside in this year's budget (for Mt. McSauba) is being spent on a bulldozer.

.....

You are also trying to get grant money for improvements at Michigan Beach. Explain that proposal.

The grant we're trying to get is through the Department of Agriculture for soil erosion control. We have an erosion problem down the side of the hill behind the parking area and along the beach) caused by foot and vehicle traffic. With the grant we would install four wooden walkways down the steep bank along Park Avenue. We would put up post and rail fence along the top of the hill to funnel the traffic down the wooden steps. We would also use rock rip rap along some of the lower places along the beach and install posts and rails to mark off the parking area and driveway in an effort to keep vehicles from going on to the beach. There are four or five places that need to be seeded to control erosion. We've been contacted by Sen. Levin's office and by Sen. Riegel's office and we're at the top of the list (for the grant money). As soon as money can be released we should get it.

What's the toughest part of your job?

The demand on my time. There are not enough hours in a day to get things done the way I want to get things done. The addition of Bob Mumu (cumptroller) has freed up some of my time. I'm not burdened with two jobs anymore, like I was when I first took this job. But even then I got a lot of help from the staff. Everybody pitched in and helped. I've had people comment to me that they've never seen the people in City Hall in such good moods and with such good work habits. Something comes up that has to be done, everybody pitches in and helps. That's the way it (City Hall) should operate. Another thing I want to work on is confidence in City Hall. I think some pelple think things done at City Hall are sneaky and underhanded. I've had that comment made to me a few times. I'm going to work to establish (public) confidence in City Hall by keeping people informed, by being above board and by using the open door policy. That's the key - communication.

What's the most rewarding part of your job?

Getting projects accomplished and solving someone's problem. I have an open door policy. If anyone has a problem they can come to City Hall and - if I'm not in o meeting - I'll gladly discuss it with them. I was taught that no matter how small the problem may seem - whether it be some dead limbs on a tree or a chuck hole in a street - to that person it's the most important crisis in their life at that time. And it's up to me to help solve it. If I can, well, that's rewarding.

What are your impressions of Charlevoix

Charlevoix is a wonderful town. I've met some wonderful people in the 11½ months I've been here. This town has great potential for the future. I plan on staying here a long time.

Power boat marina opens on Round Lake

When Northwest Marine and Brokerage Inc. opened last week, it was testimony to the owners' firm belief that Charlevoix area needs a complete power boat marina.

Despite winter snows, owners Bob Sooy and Denny Heck know by early January boaters are already planning ahead for spring launchings.

Sooy, of Charlevoix, and Heck, of Torch Lake, have combined their business talents and boating interests to open what they think Charlevoix aren has long needed – a full service power boat marina.

Their showroom over looks Charlevoix's Round Lake on the north side of U.S. Highway 31 liridge.

"We will carry everything for boats, including interior decorating items and clothing," Heck described.

The new business offers a range of boats, including Chris Craft, Sea-Ray, Mercruisers and Mercury outboards, and a variety of trawlers.

As a brokerage, the owners add, they can buy and sell anything that floats.

Sooy moved to Charlevoix eight years ago, foresaking edvertising in Chicago for business in the north. Heck, who has been President and part owners of DeWitt Marine on Torch Lake, joined Sooy to form the new power boat marina.

"Denny has been in the marine business from the ground up," Sooy quips.

Heck began his career pumping gas and selling worms at the age of 14.

The two chose Charlevoix for their marina because, as they say, "there is no marina here now that completely covers powerboats needs, from sales to service to storage.

"Northwest Marine and Brokerage will add a needed dimension to boating in Charlevoix."

"Charlevoix is a water oriented community, We are here to serve the needs of its power boaters," Heck states.

Northwest Marine will sell boats for dinghys to cruisers. They will service all power boats, starting next spring when a full-time fully-trained inboard and outboard, diesel and gasoline engine marine technician will join the company.

Standing behind the showroom's desk, made from the stern of a classic wooden inboard, Sooy looks around showroom.

Customers walk around marine equipment and clothing displays on dock planking. Display cases and racks offer everything from candle sticks to shackle pins, yachting clothes to safety gear.

By spring a land-based dock with boats on trailers will fill the grassy incline leading to the water's edge.

"Customers will be able to walk on these docks to survey the boats in the slips," Sooy explains.

In another section of the main building trawlers, dinghys, inboards and outboards will be displayed indoors.

Sooy says the marina will also have two boat slips in Round Lake for use by service customers and for demonstration models.

Heck emphasizes the philosophy of Northwest Marine, "We want the customers to know we feel they are doing us a favor coming to our store, not that we are doing them a favor.

"If someone comes in and spends $10 that customer is equally important to us as the one who spends $50,000."

Bob Sooy and Dannis Hack

Life after death? Film explores issue

The motion picture "If I Should Oie" will be shown at the Community Church of God 202 W. Hurlbut Street on Monday evening, Dec. 31 as part of a Watchnight Service, according to Rev. Walter G. Hastings, pastor. The evening's activities will be from 8 p.m. to midnight, and include a time of recreation, refreshments, worship and communion. The film will be shown at about 10:30 p.m., and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Death!! That inevitable and inescapable fate – or is it??
"I heard the doctors say that I was dead...
that's when I began to feel as though
I was tumbling, tumbling through a long, dark tunnel that was bringing me closer to a distant light. Suddenly..."
Case Paraphrase, Life After Life
Dr. Raymond A. Moody, Jr. M.D.

America is talking about death, but more importantly, Life after Death. The subject that once was discussed only is whispers in now the center of conversation at office parties, bridge clubs and student gatherings. The newsstands and daily papers are filled with stories on the subject and television talk-shows are devoting entire evenings to its discussion.

E.C.R.F.'s Newest film, "If I Should Oie" explores this age old topic and much more.

This film examines these life after death experiences and asks:

- Are they real or simply hallucinations of a dying brain?
- Why are these encounters supositive and NON-JUDGEMENTAL?
- Are they revealing that the Hell talked about in the Bible was really a myth or a remnant of primitive religion?

"If I Should Oie" brings together some of the world's most respected Christian doctors, theologians and psychologists to investigate this subject and how it relates to histories most consistent textbook on death and dying. – The Bible.

This 46 minute film reveals how no one is immune to the sting of death – its grief or sorrow; yet, through personal testimonies the film shares a living hope for man – to face not only death itself but also the loss of loved ones.

CHARLEVOIX CITY COUNCIL MINUTES

DECEMBER 17, 1979
8:00 P.M.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Supernaw presiding.

Present: Councilmen Muma, Whitley, Porter, Timms, Roloff, and Wood. Absent: None.

The Minutes of the December 3, 1979, regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the Special Assessment Roll for the proposed Stover Road Sewer Extension. Several City residents to be included in the Special Assessment District were present to voice their opinions in the matter. The majority were against the proposed project unless the Charlevoix Township property owners on the south side of Stover Road are included in the assessment, thereby lowering each property owner's cost per front foot.

Moved by Councilman Muma and supported by Councilman Wood that a Public Hearing be held on January 7, 1980, regarding the Special Assessment Roll for the proposed Stover Road Sewer Extension, said Assessment Roll to include that portion of Charlevoix Township adjacent to the project.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen Muma, Porter, Timms, Roloff, and Wood. Nays: Councilman Whitley. Absent: None.

Lenore Landon named children's protective services worker

Lenore Landon, a native of the Boyne City area, has returned to Charlevoix County as the children's protective services worker for the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services. In that capacity she will investigate complaints of child abuse and/or neglect throughout the county.

Prior to returning to Charlevoix County, Lenore was a children's protective services worker for Grattot County. She has a masters degree in counseling and she taught in a junior high school and a senior high school prior to her employment with Social Services.

Lenore emphasizes that the two major goals of the Children's Protective Services Program are: 1) to assure that children are protected from physical and emotional harm, and 2) to provide services to maintain children in their own homes, when possible, by working to strengthen families in areas which directly affect the safety and well-being of children. Children are only removed from their parent's home as a last resort. When it is necessary to remove a child, he or she is returned to his parents as soon as the threat of harm is removed. The intent is not to punish parents but to help them provide proper care for their children.

To report suspected child abuse or neglect to the Department of Social Services in Charlevoix County call 547-4471 between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. After 5 p.m. or on weekends, call 347-1700, which is the Children's Protective Services answering service, operated by the Emmet County Sheriff's Department (they will relay the message to the children's protective services worker).

Child abuse and neglect are very emotional topics in our society, yet many basic aspects of the Child Protection Law are generally unknown. The Child Protection Law contains a definition of child abuse and neglect, a list of professions required by law to report suspected abuse or neglect, a policy on the anonymity of the reporting person, and the Department of Social Services responsibility for investigating reports of child abuse and neglect. The following excerpts from the Child Protection Law develop the aspects of the law listed above.

Child - a person under 18 years of age.

Child Abuse - harm or threatened harm to a child's health or welfare by a person responsible for the child's health or welfare which occurs through non-accidental physical or mental injury, sexual abuse or maltreatment.

Child Neglect - harm to a child's health or welfare by a person responsible for the child's health or welfare which occurs through negligent treatment including the failure to provide adequate food, clothing, shelter, or medical care.

Physicians, coroners, dentist, medical examiners, nurses, audiologist, certified social workers, social workers, social work technicians, school administrators, school counselors and teachers, law enforcement officers, and duly regulated child care providers are required by law to immediately make an oral report to the Department of Social Services when they have reasonable cause to suspect child abuse or neglect. A person required to report an instance of suspected child abuse or neglect who fails to do so is civilly liable for the damages proximately caused by the failure. Any person, including a child, may report to the Department of Social Services or a law enforcement agency if they have reasonably cause to suspect child abuse or neglect.

The identity of a reporting person shall be confidential subject to disclosure only with the consent of that person or by judicial process. Any person making a report or assisting in any other requirement of the Child Protection Law shall be presumed to have acted in good faith and shall be immune from civil or criminal liability. This immunity does not extend to a negligent act which causes personal injury or death or to the malpractice of a physician which results in personal injury or death. The Department of Social Services must commence an investigation of the child suspected of being abused or neglected within 24 hours after receiving a report. For further information or to report suspected abuse or neglect, call Lenore Landon, 547-4471.

Band Boosters to stage city's largest auction

By Dennis Chase

The event: Charlevoix's largest auction
The date: Saturday, Jan. 26
The time: 2 p.m.
The place: Charlevoix Middle School gymnasium
The purpose: To raise money to buy new band uniforms

In an effort to raise nearly $20,000 for the purchase of new band uniforms, the Charlevoix Band Boosters will be sponsoring - what it believes will be - the largest auction in the city's history.

"We'll have everything known to man available at this auction," said Tom Duke, who will be the auctioneer. "We've got washtubs, a stereo tape deck, tricycles, skies, ice skates, paintings, copper mugs, and so on and so forth."

"I wouldn't be a bit surprised if we have 1,500 to 2,000 items," he added.

Mayor Sam Supernaw: "What! Let you auction off our water towar...

Of course, to have that many items the Band Boosters will need some help.

"We're asking people to help us out by donating (items) to a very worthwhile cause," said Dave Fowler, general chairman of the event. "Maybe you have some things on your shelf that you'd be happy to contribute. We don't care if it's out of style, fashion, or date or that it's dusty from sitting on the shelf. We just ask that it be in good shape. I want to emphasize that this is not a rummage sale or a junk sale. This is a white elephant sale. Everybody has an old typewriter or an old adding machine. That's the type of thing we'd like - as long as it's still in working condition. A cord of wood, for example, would be a fabulous item to bid on because so many people are wood conscious today."

"...I never had it explained to me like that before...

Donations are now being accepted and will be accepted "until the auction is over.

"We're asking people to bring an item with them on the day of the auction," said Duke. "This will be their entrance fee, although we'll admit that if you forget to bring something we'll probably let you in anyway. But we're hoping the people will help us out and will bring something when they come - even if it's a package of close pins. Keep in mind that this adction is for one purpose and that every dollar we raise will go to the Band Boosters."

There will be a carnival-like atmosphere at the auction, too.

"Part of the fun of having an auction is not only the fact that people get a chance to bid on and take home good quality merchandise at a very fine price, but that they have a good time, too," said Duke. "We intend to make this a very memorable experience in the sense that there will be very unusual things taking place."

"Jim (Brinker) prepare the papers."

Big Rock to shut down

By Tom Dammann

Beleaguered Big Rock Nuclear Power Plant is going to shut down by New Year's Eve.

This will be the third time the plant has shut down this year.

This time it is doing so to make certain modifications ordered by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) for all nuclear power plants in the nation, resulting from experienees at Three Mile Island (TMI), according to spokesmen for the Jackson-based Consumers Power Co., owner of the plant.

"Among the requirements at Big Rock are 1) indicators showing whether certain relief valves are open or closed, and 2) control modifications that will require action by an operator to reopen containment isolation valves after they have automatically closed," explained John H. Popa, Big Rock Senior Engineer in a telephone interview this week.

This statement was amplified by corporate spokesman Steve Irish in a telephone interview.

"The second circuitry requires operator action to re-open containment isolation valves which close automatically when they receive signals caused by high containment pressure, high containment radiation levels or low reactor water levels," Irish stated. "TMI showed that in some eases these pneumatic valves could re-open automatically after signals had cleared.

"This was also found to be true at Big Rock and the new circuitry will prevent this," Irish concluded.

According to Jo Ann Bier, member of Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix, official NRC records show that these valves have consistently failed to function during various tests performed over the years.

During the telephone interviews both Popa and Irish disclosed that Consumers Power Engineers are working on another TMI oriented order from NRC requiring a study of the plant's containment shield.

Some plant engineers suggest that it will be necessary to construct a massive concrete silo with walls two to three feet thick around the containment sphere because the present shield is made of three-quarter inch thick stainless steel through which gamma rays can pass.

The fourth oldest nuclear power plant in the nation and the first in Michigan, Big Rock is a 75 megawatt generator. It is the first plant licensed to use plutonium fuel.

Consumers Power has petitioned NRC to amend its operators license to permit storage of 441 rather than the current 193 fuel rod assemblies to be stored in its spent fuel pool.

The utility argues that unless this is allowed, Big Rock will be forced to shut down by the mid 1980's because of lack of waste storage room. Big Rock's operators license expires in the year 2000.

The Concerned Citizens of the Charlevoix Area and John O'Neill, a Maple City restaurant operator are protesting this and have been accepted as intervenors by the NRC. A full hearing will be conducted on the request in Petoskey some time next summer.

Big Rock was shut down for maintenance and refueling last February. When it began starting up in April a radioaetive water leak and rattles were discovered in the reactor vessel.

It finally started up Nov. 7, only to be shutdown for a day to repair a minor steam leak.

It went back on line Nov. 9.

City expected to drop litigation in dispute over site plan

The Charlevoix City Council is expected to drop litigation against Clark Matthews, developer of a multiple housing project off Belvedere Avenue, at its Jan. 7 meeting.

The city filed suit in Charlevoix Circuit Court alleging Matthews "departed" from the site plan that was approved by council nearly one year ago.

In its suit the city claimed a solar collector was constructed above the sun deck, which was not included in the site plan approved by council.

The suit says that upon discovery the city requested Matthews to cease construction of the solar collector, however, "Matthews relentlessly persisted in attempting to construct" the collector. The suit adds that City Manager Jim Brinker contacted Matthews and told him not to proceed with construction since the solar collector was not shown on the site plan. It further adds that Matthews "refused to honor the city's request."

Matthews -through attorney Robert Hoffman - denies having departed from the site plan, denies having "relentlessly persisted" in constructing the solar collector and denies receiving notice to cease operation although admitting the architect - Jack Begrow - did receive a letter.

On Dec. 10, Judge Martin Breighner ruled that work on the solar collector be stopped until a full hearing on the merits of the case could be held. It is scheduled to go to trial Jan. 10.

However, members of council inspected the development just prior to Christmas and, according to a poll taken by Brinker, four of the six are in favor of dropping the suit. It will come up for a vote on Jan. 7.

According to Brinker, the developer has agreed to take down the air conditioning units on the roof.

WVOY granted permit for FM station

WVOY AM 1270 in Charlevoix has been issued a construction permit for a 100,000 watt FM station.

The frequency of WVOY's new FM station will be 105.9.

Construction on a 300 foot plus tower - to be built on Richardson's Hill in East Jordan - will start in early spring "or as soon as weather permits," according to officials at the station.

The FM station could be in operation by July, according to John Yaroch, barring any "unforseeable problems."

Yaroch said it has not been decided if the station will have 24 hour programming or if the AM and FM will have separate or simultaneous programming.

Yaroch added that the 100,000 watt FM station will penetrate as far south as Cadillac and Manistee. It will also reach the Upper Peninsula - as does the AM station - he said.

The granting of the permit culminates a three year effort by WVOY to proceed with an FM station.

Jaycees will pick up Christmas trees

Do you have a Christmas tree you would like to discard?

The Charlevoix Area Jaycees will take care of it. The Jaycees will picking up Christmas trees throughout the city on Saturday, Jan. 5.

According to Mike Greeley of the Jaycees, if you have a tree you want picked up, place it near the curb on Saturday.

Greeley said the Jaycees decided to pick up trees again this year because "city crews no longer do it."

Selling Your House by Gene Steele
THE AD THAT PULLS
Ever read the real estate classifieds? Sure you do! Whether you're looking to buy a house or sell one, you read the ads to find out what's being offered. Think back now, to when you were seeking a home for your family, what did you look for in an ad?
Of course you considered location and price. Everyone does. But what makes you follow up one ad and ignore the next? It's more than the simple listing of numbers of bedrooms and bathrooms.
The effective advertisement gives the reader a verbal picture of the house as shelter, as a place to entertain, as a background for happy children, as a prudent investment. A house is many things to many people, and the successful ad writer will capture the imagination of a potential buyer with a word picture that meets his expectations for a home.
It's not really hard to write an ad that lists: "West End, 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, $60,000." But an ad that SELLS - that takes a pro!
When you want advertising that will really sell your home, put a pro to work for you. The staff at Charlevoix Properties has a proven record of marketing all types of Real Estate. Charlevoix revisited: A look at 1979

Nineteen seventy-nine started on a discouraging note when the main dining lodge at Camp Sea Gull went up in a blaze. Last week it ended on a happier note when Sylvester Weisiik won $8,000 in the state lottery.

Nineteen seventy-nine will not soon be forgotten. Big Rock was shut down for the better part of the year and did not produce electricity. A referendum vote was petitioned for in Charlevoix Township to question the rezoning of property owned by Medusa. The City of Charlevoix picked a new city manager. Voters in the Charlevoix School District approved a bond proposal to expand the high school. An addition was built at Grandvue. The Charlevoix Area Hospital awarded construction bids and is ready to renovate and expand. The Charlevoix Housing Commission is wrapping up the details on a 62 unit senior citizen housing project. It was a year to remember. And here is how it went:

Sixty-three inchas of snow in January

January

One hundred years ago Charlevoix became a chartered village.

The main dining lodge at Camp Sea Gull on the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road was destroyed by fire. About 30 cross country skiers were staying at the resort, owned by Lewis Schulman, but no one was injured.

John Osterberg of Charlevoix received a Citizen Award from Sheriff George Lasater for saving the life of nine year-old Karal Ice. Karal was feeding the ducks on Round Lake when she fell into the icy water. Osterberg, who was working nearby, was alerted of the mishap and by his quick actions rescued the third grader.

The Charlevoix City Council accepted the resignation of 2nd Ward Councilman Ivan Whitley. Whitley's term expires March 21, however, he'll have the option of returning to council starting April 1 when a new two year term, to which he was elected in the fall, takes effect. Whitley cited health and business reasons for his decision.

James Brinker, a Flint native, was appointed the city's new comptroller.

The Charlevoix Courier received a Blue Ribbon award from the National Newspaper Foundation for its coverage of local news.

The Charlevoix Board of Education increased the price of its athletic tickets for the 1979-80 season. The price increase was recommended by the Michigan-Huron Shores Conferenco.

Clyde Cunningham was re-elected chairman of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners. Newcomers Chad McDonald and Casimir Toton officially joined the board.

Leland High School captured the Charlevoix Volleyball Invitational.

Kathy Cook was selected as Charlevoix's representative in the 11th annual Campus Life Sweetheart Pageant.

Verna Helms, 40, was killed in a head on collision on ice covered US-31 North.

Charlevoix County Prosecutor Scott Beatty said that no criminal intent was found in a voting mishap in Wilson Township (Nov. 7, 1978 general election) whereby four improperly registered voters were allowed to vote. What made the issue touchy was that incumbent Supervisor Harvey Crozier barely edged opponent Raymond Guzniczak, 145-143. A recount was taken, but the results did not change.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department opened a sub-station in East Jordan.

Fourteen anti-nuclear demonstrators appeared in 90th District Court for a pre-trial hearing. The group was arrested for trespassing at the Big Rock Point nuclear plant. Attorney James Dlson asked that the safety of nuclear power be put on trial.

The Charlevoix Public Schools received a grant from the governor's office to continue with improvements at the school's lighthouse on Beaver Island.

Over 63 inches of snow accumulated during January. Students received an additional week off from school when a storm hit right after New Year's. It snowed 28 of 31 days in January.

February

Bill Bellows was appointed to the Charlevoix City Council to fill the vacancy created by Ivan Whitley's resignation.

The Charlevoix Board of Education agreed to bring a $700,000 bond issue before the public on April 30 to underwrite the cost of constructing and furnishing an addition to the high school.

Richard McKinnon resigned from the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners. McKinnon moved to North Carolina.

Employees at the Big Rock Point nuclear plant received Consumers Power company's top award for safety - the President's Award.

Kathy Cook finished second runner-up in the Campus Life Sweetheart Pageant.

Kim Schnackenberg was named queen and Doug Buday was picked king of Charlevoix's Winter Homecoming.

Despite bone chilling temperatures, Charlevoix's Winter Cup Festival once again proved successful.

Cross Country skiing will become part of the physical education curriculum at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

The Charlevoix High School Symphony and Concert Bands received 1st division ratings in the District II Michigan School Band and Orchestra Festival to qualify for state competition.

The mercury dropped to zero or below 20 out of 28 days in February. The coldest temperature was 36 degrees below - not counting wind chill.

March

Thomas Breakey Sr. was named to the Charlevoix Board of Commissioners. Breakey succeeded Richard McKinnon.

The Charlevoix volleyball team captured the Class C district title at Interlochen.

Wrestlers Dennis Whitley and Dave Golovich placed fifth and sixth, respectively, in the Class C state finals in Lansing.

Mark Lignell placed eighth in the state in the boys giant slalom ski race at Iron Mountain.

The basketball team won the Class C district at Dnaway.

After trailing for the first nine weeks of the annual Masons-Odd Fellows cribbage tournament, the Masons came from behind to beat the defending champs.

Disappointed with his job performance, the Charlevoix City Council asked for and then accepted the resignation of City Manager Norm Gaffney.

The Bergmann Center was given a three year accreditation by CARF.

The Charlevoix Board of Education accepted the resignation of Jim Heggard, who moved to California.

Harry Lieber resigned as the county's electrical inspector.

Winds of up to 80 mph in April

April

The Charlevoix City Council approved a $2.9 million budget. The city will now assess 11 mills instead 10.

Vietnamese refugee, Dang Phuoc Ngoc, 21, arrived in Charlevoix. The United Methodist Church is sponsoring Dang's stay here.

Nancy Podskalny was the 1979 recipient of the Jack Rosendahl Memorial Scholarship given annually to a person who has participated in the county's Big Brother-Big Sister program.

Winds of up to 80 miles per hour whipped through northern Michigan - uprooting trees, wiping out electrical lines and creating lots damage.

Shirley Roloff and Ivan Whitley were sworn in as members of the Charlevoix City Council. Mrs. Roloff replaced George Plumm, who did not seek re-election. Whitley returned to council after a three month absence (for health and business reasons). Bill Bellows filled Whitley's vacancy during that time.

Dennis Kusina and Elaine Martin filed petitions to fill the unexpired term of John Haggard on the Charlevoix Board of Education. Charles Elzinga will be unopposed for his four year seat.

Donald Anderson was named Charlevoix County's new electrical inspector.

The Charlevoix City Council adjusted its electrical rates to help balance the fund.

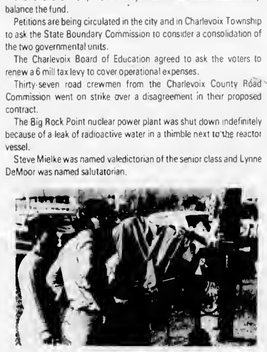
Petitions are being circulated in the city and in Charlevoix Township to ask the State Boundary Commission to consider a consolidation of the two governmental units.

The Charlevoix Board of Education agreed to ask the voters to renew a 6 mill tax levy to cover operational expenses.

Thirty-seven road crewmen from the Charlevoix County Road Commission went on strike over a disagreement in their proposed contract.

The Big Rock Point nuclear power plant was shut down indefinitely because of a leak of radioactive water in a thimble next to the reactor vessel.

Steve Mielke was named valedictorian of the senior class and Lynne DeMoor was named salutatorian.



Filming the re-enactment of the Battle of Pine River

May

Steve Mielke took first place in the 17th annual Michigan Industrial Education Awards program for his architectural drawings.

The Charlevoix City Council approved a six unit condominium to be constructed off Pine River Lane overlooking Lake Michigan.

Richard Mansfield D.D. was named the county's new medical examiner succeeding Dr. Robert Martin who resigned effective June 1.

Construction on Marina Bluff to start in spring

Construction on Marina Bluff, an 18 unit condominium development near Hampton Village, is expected to commence in the spring.

"We're hoping to start in May," developer George Richardson said. "We plan to build one cluster this year."

One cluster will contain six units - two two bedroom units sandwiched between four three bedroom units.

"We project this to be a three phase development," Richardson added. "A second cluster (six units) is planned for next year and a third cluster (six units) the year after that.

"But demand will have a bearing on that."

Richardson - and his partners Tom Erber and John Malpeli Jr. - appear confident that a market exists for the development.

"There's a very strong demand for secondary homes in a resort area," Richardson said. "Charlevoix is a hot market. It's near Lake Michigan. It's near a big inland lake. It has major airports 50 miles to the north and south making it readily accessible to Detroit and Chicago. It has nice shops. It has excellent recreational facilities. In general, it's just a neat town to live in. And that's why condominiums sell here."

But condominiums did not always sell here.

"In 1973-74 - when the first condominium developments started here - about 135 units went on the market at once," Richardson said. "That was just too many units for the marketplace to absorb. And besides it was an untested market at that time and it was during a tough economic period. It took five years to fill those units. Now the market has stabilized. I can only think of three, maybe four, (condo) units for sale at this time."

Originally, Richardson, Erber and Malpeli approached the Charlevoix Planning Commission with a 40 unit proposal. But several residents of Hampton Village voiced objections and the plan was reduced to 18 - the maximum allowable for the size of the lot in a PUD (Planned Unit Development) zone. It was approved by the planning commission and city council without much opposition.

Marina Bluff is aptly named. The development will be constructed on a bluff overlooking picturesque Lake Charlevoix. It will also be near the Irish Boat Yard.

"It's a h— of a nice view," Richardson said. "Besides, the downtown area of Charlevoix is saturated with condominiums. All the feasible sites are gone unless you want to try and fight zoning."

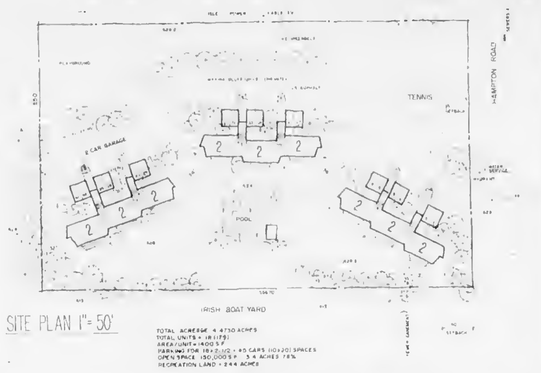
The condominiums will be contemporary in appearance with a cedar (wood) exterior. The view of the lake will be maximized in each unit. Decks and patios will overlook the lake.

"We're going to build them as energy efficient as we can," Richardson added.

The 12 three bedroom units will have 1,400 square feet of living space. The six two bedroom units will have 1,100. Each will have a combined living room-dining room, a kitchen, two baths, and a utility area. A storage area will be provided contiguous with the garage. Each unit will e one car garage with an additional 1½ parking spaces. A swimming pool and tennis court are planned in the future.

Richardson said the property will be landsceped with evergreens, birch and maple trees.

He said he is hoping the first cluster will be completed by the end of the year.



SITE PLAN 1" = 50'

TOTAL ACREAGE = 4.730 ACRES
TOTAL UNITS = 18 (12)
AREA = 1.400 S.F.
PARKING FOR 18 = 2.0/D + 45 CARS (10+20) SPACES

Cribbage tourney starts Thursday

The annual cribbage tournament initiated by the Charlevoix Lodge No. 282 F. & A.M. and Round Lake Lodge No. 293, I.O.O.F., will begin its 50th year of play at the Masonic Temple Thursday, Jan. 3.

Play, however, will not be limited to members of the two fraternal organizations, but will be open to all cribbage players in the area. The tournament will be played at alternating site for 10 weeks with the winners being entertained at a dinner by the losers to conclude the tournament.

Plays begins at 8 p.m. every Thursday beginning at the Masonic temple. The I.O.O.F. will entertain at the American Legion post home where it holds its meetings.

The Oddfellows are the defending champions and have won the tournament 27 of the 49 years it has been played.

Ronald Geer has been named tournament secretary, the sixth since the series was started. Others have been Forrest Fowler, Sr., S.O. Sorensen, Joseph L. Williams, A.D. "Hap" Cunningham and the most recent, Sims Baker.

The invitation to participate in the tournament is open to all cribbage players in the area.

Sweet Adelines need director

The East Jordan chapter of the Sweet Adelines will resume weekly meetings Jan. 8 at 7 p.m. at a new location - in the East Jordan Middle School music room.

The East Jordan group has received prospective chapter designation and is hopeful of becoming an officially chartered group in the near future. As many as 25 women have been attending some of the meetings.

The women held their first public appearance when they sang at the Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

The group is drawing from throughout the area. Bonnie Omland Thomas says. She invites anyone interested in joining to contact her at 536-7775. The group is also looking for someone with music directing experience to join the group.

Opinion

Our Opinion

A topsy-turvy year

In several respects, 1979 was a topsy turvy year.
For some it was a year of progress.

• The Charlevoix Area Hospital, after a successful fund raising campaign, received approval from FHA for a $3 million loan so it can begin its expansion and renovation project.

• The Charlevoix Public Schools, after voter approval on a $700,000 bond issue, commenced construction on expanding the high school.

• And the Charlevoix City Council apparently found a city manager it feels comfortable with.

For others it was not so good a year.

•Big Rock Point nuclear power plant was shut down most of the year for repairs.

• And a mild recession in the economy accounted for a 5 to 10 percent drop in business for our merchants, according to a survey by the West Michigan Tourist Association.

What will 1980 bring? Most reports are not encouraging - especially since the cost of energy is expected to increase 50 percent. How people react to the expected price increase will be extremely critical to northern Michigan, where tourism is the No. 1 industry.

We must also take into account the automobile industry - and in particular the Chrysler Corporation. Michigan is dependent on the auto industry. A continued slow down in production will very likely mean more layoffs. And, according to Wes Tebeau of the West Michigan Tourist Association, it was the residents of Michigan who saved the 1979 tourist season. If unemployment climbs, tourism could very well plummet.

Indeed it will be interesting to watch how 1980 unfolds. Hopefully, the economy will improve and make 1980 a healthy and prosperous year for all.

Editor:

I have had my cookie entry recipe on a torn piece of a paper bag for 33 years.

I wish to thank you for your cookie contest. I now have taken time to put the recipe on paper so I can read it.

Thank you
Mrs. Gladys M. Schuch
3rd place winner

Editor's note: The cookie contest was quite successful and very competitive. But we made one mistake. When we printed the 1st place recipe for apricot and orange marmalade crescents a part of the recipe was omitted. The recipe should also have said to cut butter and cream cheese into flour and add solt. We regret the omission.

Have an opinion?

Put it in writing

Area ski resorts raport that business is down as much as 40 percent this year. One reason is the lack of snow. Most resorts have had to turn to snow machines to make snow in order to stay opan. The Charlevoix ski team incidentally, opens its season on Jan. 9.

Next president - Gerald Ford

Although the lingering crisis in Iran is stealing the thunder from the presidential election campaigns now in progress, I think the year's end is a good time for me to look into the future and let you know who will be the next President of These United States — to steal a line from the Readers' Digest.

The next President of These United States will be — Ta-Da:

Geraid R. Ford, late of Grand Rapids, Mich.

"Gerald Ford? You've got to be kidding!"

No, I'm not. Not one bit. Let's look at the candidates.

On the Democratic ticket we have the incumbent Jimmy Carter, who most of us had written off as a lost cause two short months ago. Then came the seizure of American hostages by Iran Nov. 4 and Carter's stock has grown remarkably ever since.

His sole opponent at the Democratic Convention next summer, of course, will be Teddy Kennedy, who appeared to be the party's fair-haired boy until he launched a nasty diatribe against the Shah of Iran a few weeks ago. The effect of his heartless comments was politically devastating, since it smacked of giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

Overnight, Teddy was the "Toast of Tehran," according to one New York newspaper.

Since then, the groundswell of support that marked the opening days of Kennedy's campaign has evaporated and some of his early backers are beginning to regret their hasty endorsements.

So, if Carter can get the hostages home unharmed, the Democratic nomination is his, no questions asked.

However, Jimmy Carter will still have to face up to the realization that his administration has left the country in a financial mess of colossal proportions. Inflation is progressing at an annual rate of better than 13 percent, interest rates remain unrealistically high and layoffs plague vast sections of the country.

And unless Carter can pull solutions to these perplexing problems out of his hat in the next ten months, his chances of being re-election are mighty slim — regardless of how well he does in Iran. Admittedly, many of the problems are world-wide in scope. But the White House is where the buck stops — and that's where Carter lives.

Now let's look at the Republican ticket. To date, ten candidates have announced, which is a good indication that the party is pretty badly divided. According to all the polls, Ronald Reagan, the retired movie star who later served as governor of California, leads the pack — for what that's worth.

But for my money, Reagan hasn't turned in a first-rate performance in any field since he played the mutilated young hero in the ancient movie "King's Row." Politically he stands too far to the right for most eastern and midwestern Republicans and I don't see how he can pull off a victory at the convention.

And neither can any of his opponents — including the affable John Connally of Texas who is still remembered in Republican circles as a former Democrat. Some conservative members of the Grand Old Party believe he still is.

I see the GOP Convention going down to the wire without a clear-cut victor. Then someone will remember Gerald Ford, who hasn't ruled himself out as a candidate, and who still enjoys a broad base of support around the country.

Ford will win the Republican nomination; and unless Carter can work a financial miracle before November, the election will go to Ford.

A song for all parents

Anne Kelly

"Cat's In The Cradle"
Words and Music — Harry Chapin
Story Songs, Ltd. (ASCAP), 1974

My child arrived just the other day
He came to the world in the usual way
But there were planes to catch and bills to pay
He learned to walk while I was away
And he was talkin' 'fore I knew it, and as he grew
He'd say "I'm gonna be like you, dad,
You know I'm gonna be like you.

And the cat's in the cradle and the silver spoon
Little boy blue and the man on the moon
"When you comin' home dad?"
"I don't know when, but we'll get together then
You know we'll have a good time then."

My son turned ten just the other day.
He said "Thanks for the ball, dad, come on let's play
Can you teach me to throw" I said, "Not today
I got a lot to do." He said, "That's O.K."
And he walked away, but his smile never dimmed,
And said, "I'm gonna be like him, yeah,
You know I'm gonna be like him."

And the cat's in the cradle and the silver spoon
Little boy blue and the man on the moon.
"When you comin' home dad?"
"I don't know when, but we'll get together then
You know we'll have a good time then."

Well he came home from college just the other day.
So much like a man I just had to say
"Son I'm proud of you can you sit for awhile"
He shook his head and said with a smile
"What I'd really like is to borrow the car keys.
See you later. Can I have them please."

And the cat's in the cradle and the silver spoon
Little boy blue and the man on the moon.
"When you comin' home dad?"
"I don't know when, but we'll get together then
You know we'll have a good time then."

I've long since retired. My son's moved away
I called him up just the other day
I said "I'd like to see you if you don't mind"
He said, "I'd love to dad if I can find the time
You see my new job's a hassle and the kids have the flu
But it's sure nice talking to you dad
It's been sure nice talking to you."

And as I hung up the phone it occurred to me –
He'd grown up just like me
My boy was just like me

And the cat's in the cradle and the silver spoon
Little boy blue and the man on the moon.
"When you comin' home dad?"
"I don't know when, but we'll get together then
You know we'll have a good time then."

I hadn't really been into Harry Chapin when I heard that he would be appearing in Traverse City. That was two years ago. I became a Chapin fan during the show and have remained one ever since.

Harry Chapin isn't your typical rock star writing the typical commercial ditty. He is most concerned with meaningful lyrics which tell a story. He found the fine line between "artistic and going out of control," and "that you can do story songs and communicate and not sell out." But Harry Chapin writes lyrics which strike a universal note and occasionally these songs can't help but go commercially popular. While "Taxi" and "Cat's In The Cradle" are two which lyric-lengthwise surprisingly made it, there is no surprise about their popularity themewise.

A good song is like a well-brought up child, it's got its own reality, tonality and toughness. It has reflections of the parent, but hopefully it's got a different personality and it's got its own way.
–Harry Chapin, father of six (interview in Songwriter Magazine, July, 1978)

We think a lot about "Cat's In The Cradle" these days. New Year's is that traditionally nostalgic time of year when the passage of months and years registers "Too Fast" on the Life-o-meter.

Especially frustrating is the lack of hours in each day which can be spent with the children either together or alone. If the man in the song didn't have time to spend with one, how can a parent find time for five? People have asked me this and there is only one answer: you just have to, that's all, so you do.

If you're a mother like I am, you bake cookies and sew and help them stage living room productions. You explain, experience and sort out life for them on a daily basis.

If you're a father, you take your kids to ball games and barbecue burgers on the grill with them. If you're non-sexist, you can switch these roles and still have fun.

Both of you take them for bike rides and picnics and go sledding or skating with the whole crew. You pop popcorn in front of the fireplace, host parties for each of them and their friends (including sleep-overs). You make even house and yard work into group therapy sessions, both to get jobs done and to train the kids in the fine art of cooperation. You take family vacations as well as the ones to get away by yourself. You give each in his turn a time along with you. You laugh, cry, argue and make up together.

You do all these things because you love them little human beings you agreed to bring into the world – no matter how many. And most importantly, you do these things because if they should happen, as children will, to grow up "just like you", you hope that you can be proud of the similarity.

A politically jampacked January ahead

Nick Thimmesch

WASHINGTON — The pictures of Iran are of raised fists, shouts, angry faces, double-talking Irani officials and the iron-fenced embassy building where our Americans are kept hostage.

The consequent pictures in America are flags flying and bells tolling on Unity Day, worried faces of the hostages' families, spirited anti-Irani demonstrators and vignettes of a grave President Carter.

A big charge is developing here and, coupled with the burst of business Congress, the government and the electorate will be conducting soon, we might be in for an intensely rhetorical, even explosive, January.

Emotional feeling about the hostages naturally grows even stronger during the holidays. Congress is hearing louder demands for action from constituents. The people's frustration and anger over Iran is bound to be expressed to the brace of Democratic and Republican presidential candidates when they work the country from coast to coast next month.

With the perplexing, agonizing Iranian situation on its mind, Congress still did a lot of work in December. The tricky Chrysler aid plan which challenges the very premises of the free-market system was finally worked out. The debate over SALT went on and on and has a long way to go. The President's legislation for a windfall profits tax on the oil industry, an issue which can be political dynamite, moved closer to enactment, and the outlook is nobody is going to be completely happy with the final version.

Meanwhile, the White House is in the midst of intense budget review sessions and is also formulating the components for the President's State of the Union message. A great deal of self-evaluation is going on in Mr. Carter's White House over legislation, 1980 programs and the reshuffled upper levels of the departments of Commerce, Transportation and Treasury.

Besides windfall profits and the new budget, the Administration and Congress must wrestle with proposals to sharply increase defense spending and the possibility of increased counter-cyclical funding. The latter is triggered when unemployment rises or the gross national product slackens, and is intended to provide economic help for the local areas hit the hardest. The politics of such counter-cyclical spending can have direct bearing on the presidential campaign.

President Carter has a lot at stake in SALT, and, ironically, the Iranian situation which boosted him in the polls is delaying Senate approval of this treaty. He wanted a success on SALT to go with him into the 1980 campaign.

Despite the approval the American people are giving Carter for his handling of the hostage crisis, he will still be the target of Sen. Kennedy and all those Republican aspirants as they step up their campaigning in January. The criticism might get a bit picky.

But it would seem that the charge that the President hasn't shown leadership will be tougher to prove. Though much of what Congress has accomplished this year has taken second-place to the drama in Tehran, the President and Congress have made a good record. House Speaker "Tip" O'Neill, though an Irish soul-brother to Sen. Kennedy, has been praising this record of cooperation for some time now.

So if the American people like Carter's method in dealing with the hostage crisis, and come to understand his accomplishments with Congress, the question of leadership will diminish as an issue.

Several months ago, politically, Carter looked like a dead duck, a gone goose, an eviscerated chicken. But the quick jerk of events – an Iranian situation – and the power of the incumbency are the kind of factors which might cause Sen. Kennedy, in his innermost thoughts, regret that he got into this campaign.

The countrysida is brown, but tha tamperatura is cold anough so ski rasorts can make snow.

Can Michigan save its own tourist industry?

Wes. Tebeau is president of the West Michigan Tourist Association. In this question and answer article with the Courier, Tebeau talks about the 1979 tourist season and the prospects in 1980.

Assess the 1979 tourist season in northwest Michigan?

It started off strong with good snow conditions throughout the area in January, February and March. Near the middle of March we got quite a thaw in southern Michigan and in northern Indiana and Illionis and it turned off the rest of the ski season for us.

However, in April fishing came along and was doing very well along with some preliminary camping activity when we got besieged with a great deal of rain and cold weather, which unfortunately struck mostly on the weekends and disrupted the normal flow of tourist traffic in the latter part of May, through all of June and into the first week of July. This was very damaging to our business because it took away outdoor recreation, which is the main lure of northern Michigan as far as tourism is concerned. The continued threat of gasoline shortages and the continual pounding by the media of how high the price of gasoline was getting to be also acted as a deterrent to the expansion of the tourist industry. So we had an economic force - high priced gasoline - and a weather force working against us, and, if that wasn't enough, the UAW was facing a possible strike with the automobile industry last fall. That affected business in the spring and summer because a lot of the auto workers thought they might be on strike and were conserving their money. That was another element.

The summer got going in high gear starting around the 4th or 5th of July. The summer was sweet but it was short. July and August were excellent months for us. And September and October turned out to be the really nicest months (weather wise) we had the whole year. It was a long Indian summer and we did a very nice business dunng that period.

The winter did not develop as we wanted it to - to finish off the year. We often ski the Thanksgiving holiday weekend, but we were unable to do that because of warm weather. We did some spot skiing from Thanksgiving to the week before Christmas, but unusual warm weather in late December prevented us from skiing all out. Some resorts were open partially. It looks like the last week of the year will be saved because it has stopped raining and the temperatures have dropped below 30 degrees, which means they can make snow. So we appear to be in business for the peak Christmas-New Year's holiday business.

In general, southern Michigan - a line from Bay City to Muskegon downward - had better traffic and more activity than northern Michigan - those counties in a line north of that boundary. Statewide, automobile traffic was off 7.6 percent. Camping was down 10 to 12 percent. The state parks were off 2.2 million campers this year. We have no figures on the private sector, but we know their figures had to be off also. We did a survey in west Michigan and found that businesses in northwest Michigan were down 5 to 10 percent and businesses in southwest Michigan were up 5 to 10 percent. It appears the region as a whole just about broke even. This was not true in the rest of the state. The Upper Peninsula was off and so was eastern Michigan and and southeast Michigan.

In 1977 and 1978 the tourist industry really boomed. Do you consider 1979 an off year?

Those (1977 and 1978) were record setting years. We can and we should increase it (revenue) by just doing the same amount of business we did the year before because of inflation. That's a factor I didn't mention. Inflation is shrinking discretionary income. People have to have discretionary income to buy a vacation. They have to pay the rent, the food bill, utilities and buy clothing. Those are basic expenses that must be met before they buy a vacation. Discretionary income - which is so vital to the tourist dollar in Michigan or anywhere really - is under pressure.

How are you promoting tourism in 1980?

We're promoting fuel conservation and fuel economy. We're telling people to drive to a destination, park their car and leave it and then participate in non-fuel using recreational activities like biking, hiking, canoeing, rowing, sailing - that type of thing that doesn't use gasoline. We're in the same boat as everyone else is in. Some people in Washington think we're a frivolous industry. But we're not. We're a serious business with literally 200,000 people in Michigan depending on tourism for their livlihood.

What is the first priority on the promotional chart?

The winter season. We're putting pressure on citizens in Michigan and those who live nearby to save gas and buy a vacation close to home.

Do you think it will be effective?

Yes. It was last summer. Normally 52 percent of our tourists come from Michigan. Last summer some resorts said 90 percent of their business came from Michigan. Many reported 80 percent. Many reported 70 percent. We have said the citizens of Michigan saved the tourist industry's summer last year. We're hoping they'll come back. But one thing we can't fight is 50 degree weather and rain. We had that this week (Christmas week) and we had that the 4th of July. Identical weeks - 50 degrees and rain. We must get some cooperation from Mother Nature or we're going to be in real serious trouble. You can promote your heart out, but if they're sitting there in Chicago and they see on the weather report that it's going to be 50 degrees and rain in Michigan, and they're a camper, golfer or tennis player, they're not coming. And I don't blame them. Who would want to spend $200 to sit in a motel room!

Do you think 1980 will be a good year?

I'm personally optimistic. Tourism seems to be recession proof. The name of our game is recreation. When you break that down it means to recreate. People have to have a release from this pressure packed world they live in. They've got to get away from their job, their city, their home and just recreate their own body - sort of a self renewal thing. They need a vacation. So what they're looking for is the best possible value. And we think that in Michigan you get a great value. That's why we're getting an increase in tourism from Ontario. The Michigan vacation costs a great deal less than it does in Canada. In Charlevoix, you're getting a lot of people from Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, who are coming to shop and spend a weekend because it's cheaper in Charlevoix than in Sault Ste. Marie, London, Stratford or Windsor. Their inflation is worse than ours.

Will the price of gasoline seriously hamper tourism in 1980?

I think a great portion of the people will pay the price. The real problem is the availability. We've got to have gasoline. There's no way to survive without gasoline. As the price rises, though, it will knock the lower economic levels off the market base. Take a household where the husband is making $17,000 and is raising a family on it, they might be able to take just two weekends or one week at a cottage or a campground. When things are really rolling, they take five or six short vacations. That's what we might miss. Our advertising and promotional campaign is going to be more aggressive than it has ever been. We - the West Michigan Tourist Association and the Michigan Travel Bureau - are combining efforts to power the market as best we can. We're going to advertise heavily in Chicago, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Columbus and Fort Wayne. We're going to really burn them (markets) to take a vacation close to home and come up to lovely west Michigan. We have a bigger budget to work with, too. Last year the West Michigan Tounist Association had a $500,000 budget and this year our budget is $560,000.

Are you going to advertise heavily in Michigan?

The state does not buy advertising in the State of Michigan. Last year the West Michigan Tourist Association did run an ad campaign - a hurry-up campaign - in July in six of the biggest cities in southern Michigan. We spent $12,000 saying to people, 'You're Lucky. You Don't Have To Travel Far To Vacation Here.' The campaign appeared to work. Although it's not direct in state advertsing, we do reach Michigan residents through our ads in the big magazines like National Geographic, Sports Afield, TV Guide, Family Circle, Better Homes and Garden, Redbook and Woman's Day. So we do talk to people of Michigan through those magazines. We are doing everything we can think of to get people to look favorably upon Michigan - and west Michigan specifically - as a vacation site.

Town House upended in final

Mike Ridley scored 37 points Saturday night to lead Ormsbee Motors of Cheboygan to a 113-103 victory over Town House in the finals of the 1st Kiwanis Club of Little Traverse Bay Holiday Invitational.

Ormsbee Motors had a strong tournament - scoring 100 points or more in all three of its wins.

In the finals, the Cheboygan squad led 33-26 after the first quarter, 61-45 at half and 89-69 after three quarters. Scott Hancock added 22 points for Ormsbee Motors.

For Town House, Charlevoix's entry in the tournament, Bud Klooster scored 31 points and Rick Leslie added 28. Ridley, incidentally, was named the tourney's MVP.

Town House had advanced to the finals with victories over Charly Brown's Store of Harbor Springs, 88-72, and Waldvogel Insurance of Petoskey, 74-68.

Against Charly Brown's, Town House held slim lead after the first quarter, 20-18, and at halftime, 36-33, before blowing the game open open in the second half. Leslie's 19 points topped the scoring. Dave Moyer contributed 18 points in the winning effort.

Against Waldvogel Insurance, it appeared Town House was going to make a rout of it early - grabbing a 20-8 lead in the first quarter. But Waldvogel kept chipping away and narrowed the deficit to seven at half, 36-29, before catching Town House, 54-54, at the end of three quarters.

Stu Coleman had 18 points for the winners.

Town House is undefeated in the Charlevoix Recreation League.

Auction

"Perhaps the most unusual items to be auctioned off will be whipped cream pies - not to eat but to throw.

"We have contacted several of our leading citizens and in a tremendously spirited manner they have agreed to join in the fun and take a whipped cream pie in the kisser," said Duke. "We think this will be fun. We all know that everybody would like to hit the mayor, or the sheriff, or the school principal in the face with a pie - so we've picked the most logical people and the highest bidder will be allowed to step forward and let that person have it.

"For example, I'll say 'Ladies and gentlemen, I have a pie here with the name Thomas Erber on it. Have you ever bought an automobile and thought you paid too much? Ever get taken on a trade-in? Are you getting rust on your auto? Auto not run? You say you didn't buy it from Tom Erber, you bought it in Georgia? We don't care. Tom Erber represents the car dealers of America.'

'Have you ever got a ticket driving through Georgia? Didn't like the sheriff? Had a little problem and didn't think you were treated right? Well, we've got a sheriff here.'

'You say your taxes are too high? Who raised the taxes? Jim Brinker, that's who. All he has to do is lower them and the city will get along just fine, right? But will he? Noooo! Take it out on Jim.'

It's all in jest, of course.

"It's got to be so far out that it's ridiculous," said Duke. "So people really don't think 'hey, is it really his fault?' We just want to have a little fun.

"In addition, with only one exception every single citizen that was asked - with a good sense of humor and recognizing the cause - agreed to take a pie. That shows what good sports they are. I can't think of accolades enough that can be heaped upon these people - along with the whipped cream."

Taking pies in the "kisser" will be Mayor Sam Supernaw, Chief of Police Jack Mol, Sheriff George Lasater, District Court Judge David Fershee, City Manager Jim Brinker, Superintendent of Schools Gordon VanWieren, High School Principal Vane Smith, Middle School Principal Vince Chew, Band Director Mike Filkens, Auto Dealer Tom Erber, Courier Ad Director Trish Wright, Banker Lou Hollow and Realtor Dick Georgi.

Another unusual item to be auctioned off will the city's 73 year-old water tower.

"You can be the one and only individual in the United States to own a water tower," said Duke. "We'll give you a bill of sale, complete with a notarized gold seal and red ribbon. You'll get a very impressive document of ownership. Of course, the bill of sale will contain several reverter clauses so the city can reclaim the tower. But even if you own it for one hour it would be great fun. And we will also take your picture and submit it to the Book of World Records."

Mayor Supernaw approved the sale Thursday night in a publicity stunt in Council Chambers. But it took a little coaxing - a whipped cream pie in the face.

There will be several other unique items auctioned off, including rides on a city fire engine or in a police car or in a helicopter.

"The sheriff has agreed to allow us to auction off jail sentences," Duke said. "So if you want to go to jail or if you want to put someone in jail you can. It will require everyone's cooperation, though. And we'll also take your picture behind bars."

Also, 10 six-course gourmet dinners will be put up for bids.

"We're getting two or three couples together and they will offer themselves as hosts for a gourmet dinner - with wine," said Duke. "All the proceeds will go to the band boosters and we think it will be a fun evening for both the couples preparing and hosting the dinners and the lucky bidders."

Six people will be served at each dinner.

"So you can bid collectively on a dinner," said Fowler. "Rather than bid $5 you would bid $40, $50 and $60 because where could you go for a six-course gourmet dinner for under $60 for six people?"

Members of the band will also be involved. They will be pledging X amount of hours to do things like babysitting, grass cutting, window washing, gardening and snow shoveling. The band members will fill out coupons indicating the service they will perform and the number of hours they will work. An address and phone number will also be on the coupon.

Members of the flag corps will display and distribute each item to be sold. Before an item is sold, a flag corps member will walk around the gym showing it to all interested. Then, when the bidding is concluded, she'll take the item to a table in the middle of the gym where the high bidder can pick it up.

"Every seat will be a good seat," Duke said.

And if you see something you like, but you're short on cash, don't worry. Financing will be available - 10 days at one percent.

"What we're trying to do is to make it a fun and spectacular afternoon," Duke explained. "And this isn't going to be like any other auction where it takes two to three minutes to auction off one item. This is going to be the fastest auction you'll ever see. It will not be drawn out. If people get

Local officials to discuss coastal projects

Funding and technical assistance for local governments on coastal-related projects will be the topic of the Local Officials Coastal Workshop, sponsored jointly by the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission and the Northeast Michigan Council of Governments.

Local government officials in northern lower Michigan will discuss with state and regional representatives the value of our Great Lakes shoreline, and will learn of funding and technical assistance available to them for coastal-related projects through the Regional Coastal Zone Management Program. Examples of eligible coastal projects are marinas, parks, nature educatinn facilities, erosion studies, historic building preservation, local shorebine zoning, natural area preservation, port feasibility, and others. According to Larry Sullivan, coastal zone planner with the Northwest Regional Planning Commission, all communities located along the Great Lakes shoreline or connecting waters are eligible for assistance under these programs.

A workshop sessions is scheduled in Petoskey at the City Counell Chambers on Jan. 9.

The workshop will start at 9 a.m. and end no later than 1 p.m. The session is open to the public.

The Northwest Regional Planning Commission and the Northeast Council of Governments are agencies created by the counties of northern lower Michigan as a method of handling shared problems and providing assistance on matters of mutual concern. The Northwest Regional Planning Commission is headed by Roy Howes, Manistee County board chairman, and includes the counties of Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Manistee, Missaukee, and Wexford.

For additional information, contact Larry Sullivan, coastal zone planner, Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission, 946-5922.

Consider northern Michigan candidates, Milliken told

Five Northern Michigan Republicans have asked Governor Milliken to "give every possible consideration to candidates from the Northern Lower Peninsula" when he fills a vacancy on the state's Natural Resources Commission.

Milliken is expected to announce a replacement for Carl T. Johnson, who recently announced his retirement, in the next few days. Johnson is from Cadillac.

State Representative Steve Andrews (R-Wolverine), who drafted a letter to Milliken asking him to carefully study the backgrounds of applicants before making his choice, said he hopes the position is filled with a commissioner "who is an active participant and avid supporter of hunting, fishing, and related recreational activities administered through the DNR."

"Given the historical mix of geographic locations of members of the Natural Resources Commission, it is our hope that you will give every possible consideration to candidates from the Northern Lower Peninsula," the letter read.

Andrews noted that candidates for the opening who live in the Northern Lower Peninsula would "demonstrate greater awareness of the tremendous impact these activities have on our unbalanced economic structure in that area of the state, and our heavy financial dependence on tourism."

The letter was co-signed by State Representatives Ralph Ostling (R-Roscommon), Charles Varnum (R-Manistique), Connie Binsfeld (R-Maple City) and Senator John Engler (R-Mt. Pleasant.)

CHARLEVOIX CHURCH DIRECTORY

A good way to start the new year is to resolve not only to attend Church regularly, but to go beyond this and offer to help your Church in any way you can. This does not mean just financial support, for it might well include any physical labor you are able to perform; from typing the Church bulletin to pulling weeds or painting lines on the parking lot. Do you like to sing? If your Church has or could have a choir, you might volunteer for that. You need not be operatic material, just able to carry a tune and find middle C on the music. By doing any of these things, you will make many fine friends and gain a deeper appreciation of the services, from the satisfaction of belonging to and helping this Church which has done so much for you.

there after 2 o'clock they're going to miss a lot because the items are going to go in machine gun fashion. Believe me, they're going to move. It's the only way we can get this done and end the auction by 4 o'clock. If it runs to 5 or 6 o'clock, it's not because we didn't try. There's going to be no dawdling. If you try and milk the bidders to get the last dime you waste so much time that people get bored. If items go in a matter of seconds, people will be on the edge of their seats. Psychology is very important."

For those who donate merchandise, a recording secretary will be present to prepare slips indicating how much your item sold for and to note the fact that it was donated to the Charlevoix Public Schools so you can use it as a legitimate tax deduction, Duke said.

First State Bank and Charlevoix County State Bank will be sponsoring ads in the Courier further publicizing the event. School children will also be taking home information on it.

So far, the Band Boosters has nearly $3,500 in its uniform fund. The uniforms are 13 years-old and, according to Fowler, in very bad shape.

"This is a Band Boosters function (Merle Plagge is chairman)," said Fowler. "We felt that the band uniform fund should be a separate entity because we didn't want to conflict with other band activities (travel, parades, seminars, etc). Marsha Trimper came up with the (auction) idea and suggested Tom Duke as the auctioneer because he has done this type of thing in the past."

Added Duke, "This should be one of the high points of the year in Charlevoix."

IRS offers help on tax questions

The Internal Revenue Service today reminded area taxpayers that help with federal tax questions is available by phone and at the local office. IRS's toll-free telephone assistance network is open Monday through Friday. Hours for help by phone are 8 a.m. through 12 noon and 12:45 p.m. until 4:30 p.m. Telephone numbers are listed in the tax forms package and local directories. IRS says you can get quicker service if you call during slow periods. The best time to call is early in the morning or late in the day. Try to avoid Mondays and Tuesdays if you can. IRS says they are the two busiest days of the week. The agency's phone system handles about 75 percent of the assistance needs of taxpayers.

The local office staff offers free in-person help with tax returns. The office in Petoskey is located in the Woodland Mall. It is open Mondays from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

IRS monitors a sample of each day's phone calls to promote accuracy of answers to tax questions and courtesy to taxpayers. In addition, all tax returns prepared at IRS offices are given a "quality review" to ensure all schedules are attached and all line entries are made properly.

The IRS again reminds taxpayers whose 1979 income was less than $10,000 that they may be entitled to a special benefit, in some cases as much as $500. It's called the "Earned Income Credit." It is available to certain qualifying persons, even some who may not otherwise be required to file a tax return, or even some who had no tax withheld in 1979. "But," says IRS, "if you qualify, you must file a return to get the benefit of this credit." IRS suggests a simple rule: If you earned under $10,000 on your job last year, ask about the earned income credit!

State Senator MITCH IRWIN (Sault Ste. Marie) has announced the Legislature's final approval of a "sunset" bill as action that he hopes may lead to a state government that is more efficient, responsive and accountable, but also less expensive.

"The enactment of this sunset legislation will establish a process of regularly reviewing all state departments, agencies and programs. This will be a means of maintaining a check and balance system to determine if agencies are really doing their jobs and if programs are actually working," said Irwin, Chairman of the Senate Municipalities and Elections Committee.

He also said that the existence of the review process will encourage state agencies to do a better job and focus legislative attention on any departments or programs that are not producing.

"Anything that isn't working is a waste of the taxpayers money and we should either eliminate it or require that it become efficient," Irwin added.

The northern Michigan senator said that the concept of a sunset legislation – which is based on the terminating programs and departments that are not effective – has caught fire throughout the nation in recent years.

"The Michigan Legislature has been working on its sunset bill for the past three years and has benefited from the experience that more than 30 other states have had with their sunset laws," he said.

Irwin explained that the Michigan Legislature, unlike some others, ended up passing a bill that does not provide for automatic termination dates at which an agency or department would automatically cease to exist unless specifically continued by the Legislature.

"I preferred a bill with selective termination dates, and in fact voted for two amendments which placed termination dates in the law. Unfortunately, the amendments failed. In my judgement, writing selective termination dates into the law would have "beefed up" its effectiveness. We have an outstanding evaluation process, but sunset without any termination dates is like having a good bite, without teeth," Irwin said.

"However, if the Governor should veto this bill because it lacks termination dates, as it has been rumored he might do, then I will go back and again fight for some form of selective automatic termination," he added.

The senator emphasized that all state agencies and departments will be accountable under this review process.

"None will escape this scrutiny," Irwin said.

Furthermore, he promised that he will continue to monitor the effectiveness of this bill to see if it is working.

"I'm going to take a close look to determine if we are trimming the fat," Irwin said. "If this doesn't prove to be a cost effective measure, then the sunset review process may itself have to be revised or terminated."
